The grist mill stands beside the arream, With bending roof and leaning wall, So old that when the winds are wild The miller trembles lest it fall ; Bedeck it o'er from year to year. The dam is steep, and welded green;

The lowest round for evermore : Methink they have a sound of ire. Because they cannot ellmb it higher From morn till night, in autumn time-When heavy harvests loud the plains; Up drive the farmers to the mill. And back apen with londed wains: They bring a heap of golden grain. And take it beme in most again. The mill inside is dim and lark, But peeping in the open door,

You see the milier flitting round, And dusty bags along the floor: And by the shaft and down the spout, The yellow meal comes pouring out. And all day long the winnowed chaff Floats round it on the sultry breeze. And shineth like a setting swarm Or golden winged and beetled bees; Or sparks around a black-mith's door, When bellows blow and forges roar.

It 'minds me of my early prime:

Tis changed since then, but not so much

As I am by decay and time; Its wrecks are mosses from year to year, But mine all dark and bare appear. I stand beside the stream of tipe: The mighty current sweeps along. Lifting the flood gate of my heart, It turns the magic wheel of song. And grinds the ripening harvest brought From out the golden field of thought.
