A MEMORY. BY CLAUD DEBAVEN.

If he had come in the early dawn, When the sunrise flushed the earth, I would have given him all my heart, Whatever the heart was worth. If he had come at the noon-tide hour, He would not have come to late; I would have given him patient fatth, For then I had learned to wait. If he had come in the after gloom, In the peace of the even-tide, I would have given him hand and train, And work for him till I died. If he comes now, the sun is set, And the light has died away ; I will not give him a broken life
