The great political revolutions of the last decade, with the natural result of the lapse of this, have brought into view a multitude of new men, whose names are in every one smooth, and of whose lives every one is curious to know the particulars. Great battics have been to ught and important slegges maintained, of which the details are as yet pre-served only in the newspapers or in the transient publications of the day, but which ought now to take their place in permanent and suthentic his-tory.

Once on a time she came to me.

To be a mortal's sole delight.

My little darling crept to me.

A baby ange! strange to see, My little darling came to me.

And life and living baby wiles--

The way to cling, to coax, to kiss,

This little love who came to me.

More fond than any voice of love, So shy, so sweet, so tenderly,

My little darling spoke to me.

I know not how to tell the grace

That dwelt upon her wistful face--

The hair as soft as moth wings be

My little darling showed to me.

Alas ' I know that all is gone,

That here I sit and grieve alone, That every fair and gracious thing

I loved and lost is but a sting ;

Another thorn thy memory,

My little darling, brings to me.

The tinted skin, the lip's pure bloom,

The clearest eyes that knew not gloom,

To fill my soul with deepest bliss ;

My heart of hearts, my life, was she,

What words she stammered, soft and low No other ears but mine could know ; More gentle than a cooing dove,

A trembling, tender, fairy thing, Too grave to smile, too sad to sing,

Aware of earth with grieved surprise An alien from her native skies,

But love and loving taught her smiles,

A love by day, a dream by night,

The sweetest thing on land or sea,
