

GOVERNOR'S PROCLAMATION.

PITTSBURGH, July 25, 1877. To the People of Pennsylvania: WHEREAS, There exists a condition of turbulence and disorder which in the State, extending to many interests and threatening all communities, under the impulse of which there has grown up a lawless assembly of persons who are armed and equipped for the purpose of self-protection and preserving the peace...

J. F. HARTMAN, Governor.

Important Order from Governor Hartman.

HEADQUARTERS, N. O. OF PENN., ADJUTANT GENERAL'S OFFICE, PHILADELPHIA, July 26, 1877. To Brig. Gen. Jos. Brown, Pittsburgh, and Maj. Gen. H. S. Heisterkamp, Meadville, Pa. First, During the existing emergency, in all cases the troops are to be moved as quickly as possible and this giving encouragement to violators of the law.

Third, Officers in command of troops will report to these headquarters the names of all citizens who have attempted, or may attempt, to dissuade members of the National Guard from the discharge of their duties.

It LOOKS now as if the force of the strike is broken, and the railroad will soon be surrendered to the control of their legitimate managers.

Since our last, the railroad has spread throughout the country, extending to all the main lines in the middle and western States.

The strikers holding possession of all the trunk lines, have refused to permit freight to be moved thereon, and provisions and fuel have become scarce at many points.

At 8 o'clock this evening seven companies of the Fourth Regiment, National Guard of Pennsylvania, arrived and proceeded along the railroad to Penn street.

At 10 o'clock this evening seven companies of the Fourth Regiment, National Guard of Pennsylvania, arrived and proceeded along the railroad to Penn street.

WE TRUST that no sensible citizen will permit his reason to be led astray by the blather and drivell of demagogues and knaves about the "rights of labor," "suppression of capital," &c., &c., with which it is attempted to cloak or extenuate the prevailing insurrection.

The Great Strike.

Ten Men Killed and 150 wounded in Chicago.

West at 10:30 A. M. Everything is quiet here now. BUFFALO, N. Y., July 24.—An effort to get the workmen out of the principal manufacturing establishments utterly failed. A small flag, bearing the words, "We will let the men go," is placed on the several windows of houses, as well as on the principal business buildings.

The Authorities Getting Complete Control Everywhere.

CHICAGO, July 26, 1877.—Advices from West Twelfth street state that the mob is holding a small detachment of police in check. One policeman was seriously wounded with a stone.

The "Hoodlums" on the War Attempted Incendiarism.

SAN FRANCISCO, July 25.—940 P. M.—The Citizens' Committee began to assemble at T. P. M. as Horatio Nelson, the building was soon filled.

The third section of the train was detached above the depot by the strikers and was several times attacked by the mob.

Early in the afternoon an assault was made by nearly 2,000 rioters on about 200 soldiers, who were guarding the Lake Shore roadhouse.

The Temperance Movement.

is progressing favorably. All the noted orators of the country are brought to the aid of the cause.

Life Insurance Again.

The Universal Life Insurance of this city is now in hot water, the State Superintendent having made it the subject of a special report.

Business.

beginning to revive with the confidence the new crop inspires. Orders for goods are coming in already from the country that has harvested its wheat.
