CAPTIVE QUEENS IN THE MARKET.

As you and down the ways I went, I found a place of still and strange delight.

A length of time had passed, and I was still in the market.

"No, you may never marry, Liddy," signed her sister.

"I love Anson, and I love Liddy, too," my little motherless Tom.

"I cannot rob him of his patrimony, and I cannot live without Anson."

"I have a plan, my dear sister, to marry myself."

"I should be glad to see you, if you would."

"I should be glad to see you, if you would."

"I should be glad to see you, if you would."
