The dark Reday, in silent scoff. Lay, grim and threat ning, under And the tawny mound of the Malakeff No longer belebed its thunder,

There was a pause. The guardsman said, "We storm the forts to-morrow; Sing while we may; another day Will bring enough of sorrow." They lay along the battery's side.

Brave hearts from Severa and from Clyde, And from the banks of Shannon. They same of Love and not of Fame: Forgot was Britain's glory; Each heart recalled a different name. But all sang "Annie Laurie."

Voice after voice caught up the song, Until its tender passion Rose like an anthem, rich and strong-Their battle-eve confession. Dear girl! her name he dared not speak;

Semething upon the soldier's cheek Washed off the stains of powder. Beyond the darkening ocean burned The bloody sunset's embers,

How British love remembers. And once again the fires of hell Rained on the Russian quarter With scream of shot and burst of shell And bellowing of mortars.

An Irish Nora's eyes are dim For a singer, dumb and gory An English Mary mourns for him Who sang of "Annie Laurie."
