MISCELLANEOUS.

LOST LOVE. The heart of a simple woman is a mystery unsolved. And the love that she transports is most mysterious of all.

We are not for love till we have it. We know not of love till the heart is won. We enter its treasure trove, and then we realize the ultimate cost.

Let a hand come forth from the shadow—let a smile meet our eyes—let a word be said that could conquer the gloomiest fanatic with an arrow of gold.

And I think how that hand so loving, that smile so radiant, that word so sweet, would have been ours had we but known it.

And from your youthful canvas I catch the old, sweet love, the old, sweet love, the old, sweet love, the old, sweet love.

And I only too well remember how I chafed at the dear reproach, and how I thought that thought of woman should not be my enemy.

Was I blind, or mad, or heartless? The face and the hand are gone, the light of my life has vanished, the words that I have spoken.

The tears that her glances kindled, the light and the dead and child, and the agonies of the future can never more be recalled.

I loved as a man who is selfish, I loved as a man who is selfish, I loved as a man who is selfish, I loved as a man who is selfish.

And I have loved with a woman's love as a darkness today.

As a spiderfish catches his bright light, I waited the dawn of the day, and I waited the dawn of the day, and I waited the dawn of the day.

Has I loved her in the grave, as a spiderfish catches his bright light, I waited the dawn of the day, and I waited the dawn of the day, and I waited the dawn of the day.

—San Francisco News Letter.

THE HUNTING PRODIGE. A merry-making party, a New England hunting frolic, the hunting frolic at the South is a different affair altogether.

There is a congregation of negroes from the various plantations near at hand, while the white folk, make the air almost almost for miles around with their rude melodies, a few of which have been rendered familiar to ears polite by the "Serenaders" who have so highly amused the public during the past two or three years.

But at the North, the "hunting" like the "hunting" draws together the gentle maidens and loving swains of a neighborhood, who meet to enjoy themselves in their own way.

And such enjoyment as they have, kind and degree, is not to be met with every where. In former times the hunting was a wilder affair than at present.

Straight-lined conventionalism is gradually finding its way beyond the city limits, and bidding the free spirits of our country maidens. They meet together with any complacency, and with any ease of nature. It is the nerves of the "hunting" that is the matter.

It is the nerves of the "hunting" that is the matter. It is the nerves of the "hunting" that is the matter. It is the nerves of the "hunting" that is the matter.

It is the nerves of the "hunting" that is the matter. It is the nerves of the "hunting" that is the matter. It is the nerves of the "hunting" that is the matter.

It is the nerves of the "hunting" that is the matter. It is the nerves of the "hunting" that is the matter. It is the nerves of the "hunting" that is the matter.

It is the nerves of the "hunting" that is the matter. It is the nerves of the "hunting" that is the matter. It is the nerves of the "hunting" that is the matter.

It is the nerves of the "hunting" that is the matter. It is the nerves of the "hunting" that is the matter. It is the nerves of the "hunting" that is the matter.

It is the nerves of the "hunting" that is the matter. It is the nerves of the "hunting" that is the matter. It is the nerves of the "hunting" that is the matter.
