THE GOOD OLD FARM.
There's got to be a revival
Of the good old farm, men,
Before the days of property
Will dawn upon us again.

My yacht, and, in fact, had to short on the sail to meet you at all!

from under his bushy eyebrows in the ball room, and when she came up dripping from her bath she could scarcely pass him, his sarcastic eyes were so overpowered.

The "Dark Horse" of 1860.
Now you may know who the "dark horse" is in the coming political campaign.

MR. MARY DEPOSES THE CONFLICT OF NATURE AND THE DEMOCRACY, IN A PITIFUL STRAIN.
CONFERRED X ROADS,
(Which is in the State of Kentucky,
July 28, 1879.)

Cure of the Eye.
The sight in most persons begins to fail about the fifth or sixth year of age, as is evidenced by an instinctive preference for large print.

Mr. Lee looked doubtfully on the fair little face nestling against his shoulder; he was evidently ill at ease.

No, it is something very disagreeable. The new moon gleamed uncertainly on the water, and the stars shone as they walked up and down upon the sands.

Mr. Lee, I have had an interview with your daughter, Mrs. Grant.

"What did you say, my dear Mrs. Page?" asked Mr. Lee with a serenity he was far from feeling.

"I have had an interview with your daughter, Mrs. Grant."

Several evenings since I was attacked with a severe dental neuralgia. After resorting to friction, cold and hot applications, etc., without obtaining any relief, I lay in bed, trusting that sleep might come and give me respite.

"What a scare for nothing!" interrupted Jack. "He is only in love; I thought it was all fixed."

"Wait until you hear more," solemnly replied Archie.

"I wish William was here," exclaimed Archie, "he'd tell us what to do."

"He'd tell us what to do," exclaimed Archie, "he'd tell us what to do."

The Problem of Intemperance.
A writer in the Sunday Afternoon discussing the increase of intemperance, and seeking about for a plausible theory to account for it, says:
As long as the American people consume such quantities of stimulating and high-seasoned food as they do, they will want to imbibe stimulating drinks.
