

The Somerset Herald.

ESTABLISHED, 1827.

VOL. XXIX. NO. 18.

SOMERSET, PA., WEDNESDAY, OCTOBER 6, 1880.

WHOLE NO. 1526.

H. McCALLUM,

77 FIFTH AVENUE.

(Above Wood Street.)

PITTSBURGH, PA.

Carpets, Oil Cloths,

China Matting,

Druggists,

Shades, &c., &c.

The Best Quality that is Made of each Particular Kind of Goods.

AT PRICES AS MODER-

ATE AS CAN BE FOUND.

H. McCALLUM.

CHARLES HOFFMAN,

MERCHANT TAILOR,

(Above Henry Hoffman's Store.)

SOMERSET, PA.

—X—

LATEST STYLES AND LOWEST PRICES.

SATISFACTION GUARANTEED.

R. C. LANDIS

His constantly on hand for his store.

PURE RYE WHISKY

For sale by the barrel or cask, with or without interest.

MEDICAL AND MECHANICAL

PURPOSES.

SOMERSET, PA.

—X—

WALTER ANDERSON,

MERCHANT TAILOR,

COR. WOOD ST. AND SIXTH AVENUE,

AND

NO. 226 LIBERTY STREET,

PITTSBURGH, PA.

—X—

Agents for Fire and Life Insurance,

JOHN MICKS & SON,

SOMERSET, PA.

And Real Estate Brokers.

ESTABLISHED 1850.

Persons who desire to sell, buy, or exchange property, or will lend their credit to register the descriptions thereof, no charge is made for the services.

General Agents for all kinds of business generally will be promptly attended to.

JAMES L. PUGH,

ATTORNEY-AT-LAW,

Somerset, Pa.

Persons engaged in business enterprises

and advertising companies

are invited to them, will be promptly attended to.

R. L. GARDNER,

ATTORNEYS-AT-LAW,

Somerset, Pa.

Persons engaged in business enterprises

and advertising companies

are invited to them, will be promptly

attended to.

J. E. MILLER has permanent engagement in Boston for the practice of

—Opposite Charles

1850.

H. B. BRUBAKER renders

personal services to the citizens of Som erset, in residence on Main Street.

D. A. G. MILLER,

PHYSICIAN & SURGEON,

resided at South Bend, Indiana, where he practiced as a physician and surgeon.

WILLIAM COLLINS,

DENTIST, SOMERSET, PA.

McKinnon Block, above Boyd's Drug store, and various medical, dental, and other offices.

J. JOHN BILLS,

DENTIST.

Somerset, Pa.

J. DUNSTON AGENCY.

Somerset, Pa.

Persons desiring to purchase U. S. 4 PER CENT FUNDDED LOAN, can be accommodated at this Bank. The coupons are prepaid in denominations of $5, $10, $20 and $50.

NEW BANK.

—X—

Somerset County Bank,

CHARLES J. HARRISON.

Cashier and Manager.

Collections made in all parts of the United States.

Charges moderate. Butter and other checks collected and cashed. Eastern and Western exchanges always on hand. Remittances made with promptness. Amounts collected.

Persons desiring to purchase U. S. 4 PER CENT FUNDDED LOAN, can be accommodated at this Bank. The coupons are prepaid in denominations of $5, $10, $20 and $50.

FALL 1880.

FRESH GOODS

CARPETS

IN ALL QUALITIES.

From the commonest INGRAIN to the ROYAL WILTON.

Mattings in all grades and widths.

Shadings and Window Shades the latest style.

AUCTIONEER.

SALES meeting my service on Best of Fertials, or anything to be disposed of at any time, will be sold at public auction, by mail promptly attended to.

W. A. KOONTZ,

Commissioner, Pa.

The Truth is Mighty

and will stand up to the truth of any seller.

SELLER'S LIVERPOOL

CLOTHING CO.

NO. 32 FIFTH AVENUE,

PITTSBURGH, PA.

Sept. 13, 1880.

F. W. HASTINGS'

WEST PHILADELPHIA

ACADEMY.

ENGLISH, CLASSICAL & COMMERCIAL

Twenty-first Year Commences

September 15th, 1880.

Boarding and Day School for Young Men and Boys.

Extensive, thorough & practical preparation for the traveling public.

Rooms for lodgers, with a large public hall attached.

Large, airy, and roomy stabling.

Each room has its own private entrance.

Such old people! And I have come to take their home away," said

Mr. Faxon.

There was a strong pain in his dark face now, as he stood looking down at the porch floor.

After a moment, he stepped off the porch on the further side, and walked away under the apple trees.

When Mr. Faxon came back from his brief stroll, his presence

as he crossed the yard, was observed.

A white-haired old man, who had come to the open door and taken up the hickory stick, turned back hastily, with a few hurried words, and the aged woman dropped her knitting, and rose up with a paleness dropping over her face.

But while Mr. Faxon hesitated on the porch again, both came to the door. Sad, startled faces they both had, but they were civil. Their greeting was kindly, as to a friend.

"My name is Faxon," said the visitor, "I am."

"We know who ye be sir," said the old man, "we know who ye be, though we never seed ye before. Will you come in?"

Mr. Faxon stepped across the white hall floor into the quaint, cool and comfortable sitting-room.

The rough, blue paper, like chintz, on the wall, some "honesty" and dried grasses in opaque white vases upon the high, narrow mantelpiece unconsciously struck his eye, while he took a seat, his mind was occupied with other thoughts.

"We've been long expectin' you, sir," said the old lady.

Her hands crossed on the spiced gingham apron upon her lap, trembled a little, but the serenity of her manner was not much changed.

But the old man's eyes swam in tears. He rested both hands upon the hickory stick between his knees, as he sat in a corner, and bending his forehead upon them, partially hid his face.

"Yes, yes! but it comes sort of sudden now," said the old man.

Mr. Faxon sat in speechless sympathy.

After a little pause, old Mr. Derby looked up and met his eyes.

"Of course, it's all right, sir. We don't question your right to the place, but we've been sort of unfortunate. I think so—don't you?"

The old lady lay back among the cushions of the dimly-covered chair. She had a look of physical weakness.

Mr. Faxon had not observed before, that even when she was young, there was a strong character in her smile, and now it was very evident.

"Mother—lather!" he said. "I cannot go, for I know you have forgotten me!"

And after a little pause, old Mr. Derby

looked up and met his eyes.

"Of course, it's all right, sir. We don't question your right to the place, but we've been sort of unfortunate. I think so—don't you?"

The old lady lay back among the cushions of the dimly-covered chair. She had a look of physical weakness.

Mr. Faxon had not observed before, that even when she was young, there was a strong character in her smile, and now it was very evident.

"Mother—lather!" he said. "I cannot go, for I know you have forgotten me!"

And after a little pause, old Mr. Derby

looked up and met his eyes.

"Of course, it's all right, sir. We don't question your right to the place, but we've been sort of unfortunate. I think so—don't you?"

The old lady lay back among the cushions of the dimly-covered chair. She had a look of physical weakness.

Mr. Faxon had not observed before, that even when she was young, there was a strong character in her smile, and now it was very evident.

"Mother—lather!" he said. "I cannot go, for I know you have forgotten me!"

And after a little pause, old Mr. Derby

looked up and met his eyes.

"Of course, it's all right, sir. We don't question your right to the place, but we've been sort of unfortunate. I think so—don't you?"

The old lady lay back among the cushions of the dimly-covered chair. She had a look of physical weakness.

Mr. Faxon had not observed before, that even when she was young, there was a strong character in her smile, and now it was very evident.

"Mother—lather!" he said. "I cannot go, for I know you have forgotten me!"

And after a little pause, old Mr. Derby

looked up and met his eyes.

"Of course, it's all right, sir. We don't question your right to the place, but we've been sort of unfortunate. I think so—don't you?"

The old lady lay back among the cushions of the dimly-covered chair. She had a look of physical weakness.

Mr. Faxon had not observed before, that even when she was young