JIM GARFIELD OF THE WEST.

Times of my return to the West... I shall like to write him favorably, Rose. Have you any objection?

OUR WASHINGTON LETTER.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 6th, 1880.
Yesterday was the day set apart for the opening of the National fair at Ivy City.

ROSE FORRESTER'S ESCAPE.

Everybody envies Rose Forrester. The pale girl, in gold-colored silk, lifted her lids from her closed eyes for a moment, as the words reached her ear, then she bent over the photographs upon her lap again.

MILLS BURNED.

Lowell, Mass., October 6.—A fire broke out in the driving room of Chase's mill in this city this afternoon.

A Private Quarrel.

CHICAGO, Oct. 18, 1880.—A serious affray occurred under Sunday in this State today, between Julius A. Boyd and his son, an eight-year-old boy.

SOMERSET MARKET.

ROSE FORRESTER'S ESCAPE.

As she rose in the full light it revealed that she was very young, scarcely twenty, yet tall of stature, and with a marked repose of manner.
