NOBILITY. True worth is in being, not seeming. In doing, each day that goes by, one but is doing, and is doing. Of great things to do by and by. For whatever men say in blindness, And spite of the fancies of youth, There's nothing so kindly as kindness, And nothing so royal as truth.

Those who have been charged with the direction of the conflicts have thus far done hardly anything more than to study the ground of the battle, have maneuvered for position, have selected points to be taken and held by the several corps and divisions, and we come to-night simply to deploy a skirmish line in front of a column that in a certain way to win a glorious and decisive victory in this city for the State.

That great work that was entrusted to it—saving the life of the Nation—when the party could look upon itself, take a careful survey of the errors which had grown into abuses during those years of objective warfare, provide for the purification of itself and a remedy for whatever might be wrong in methods or management.

majority in the State, it can be so divided as to make sixteen out of sixteen. It is a case coming up before a Grand Jury that will be of great interest to thousands of people who have long desired a decision on some of the points that will be developed. It seems that a young man, a member of one of the Chicago Clubs, a gentleman of wealth and refinement, is to be tried by the father of a young woman for $50,000 damages for injury to her health.

Beaver's Ovation. The Quaker City greets the War-Maimed Candidate. Kelly and the Candidate at Industrial Art Hall.

There is a story, which has the merits of being both typical and true, that in one of the battles of the war the colors of the Pennsylvania reserve regiments were entrusted to a youthful sergeant, who was impulsive as well as brave. In making a charge which had been ordered by the colonel, the young standard bearer carried the colors far in advance of the regiment. The colonel called out to him: "Sergeant bring back those colors to the troops."
