THE FALLOW FIELD.
The sun comes up and the sun goes down;
The night might smother the sleeping town;
But if he be dark or if he be day,
If the tempest beat on the breezy play,
Still here on this upland slope I lie
Looking up to the cheerful sky.

Naught am I but a fallow field;
Never a crop but a fallow field;
Over the wall at my right hand
Stately and green the corn blades stand,
And I hear at my left the flying feet
Of the winds that rustle the bending wheat.
Open while yet the morn is red
I list for our master's eager tread.
He smiles at the young corn's towering height,
He knows the wheat is a goodly sight,
But he glances not at the fallow field
Whose idle acres so wealth may yield.

Sometimes the shout of the harvesters
The sleeping pulse of my being o'er,
And as one in a dream I seem to feel
The sweep and the rush of the swinging steel,
Or I catch the sound of the gay refrain,
As they heap their wains with the golden grain.

Yet, O my neighbors, be not too proud,
Though on every tongue your praise is loud,
For another Nature is kind to me,
And I am beloved by bird and bee,
And never a child that passes by
But turns upon me a grateful eye.

Over my head the skies are blue;
I have my share of the rain and dew;
I bask like you in the summer sun
When the long bright days pass, one by one,
And calm as you in my sweet repose
Wrapped in the warmth of the winter snows.

For little our loving mother care
Which the corn or the daisy bears,
Which is rich with the ripening wheat,
Which with the violet's breath is sweet,
Which in red with the clover bloom is,
Or which for the wild sweet fern makes room.

Useless under the summer sky
Year after year men say I lie.
Little they know what strength of mine
I give to the trailing blackberry vine,
Little they know how the wild grape grows
Or how my life-blood feeds the rose.

Little they think of the cup I fill
For the mosses creeping under the hill;
Little they think of the feast I spread
For the wild creatures that must be fed,
Squirrel and butterfly, bird and bee,
And the creeping things that no eye may see.

Lord of the harvest, Thou dost know
How the sun melts and the winter goes,
Never a ship sails east or west
Laden with treasures at my behest,
Yet my being thrills to the voice of God
When I give my rind to the golden rod.
