BE WHAT YOU ARE. H. E. BANDAEL.

John B. Hay

Whatever may be the attractions That art to your person can lend, Remember that people will find you To be but yourself in the end.

If wanting in beauty of person, Don't think to supply it by pelf; Although you may greatly correct it. You'll never be aught but yourself.

Or if you should lack education, Don't boast what you can't comprehe Let all see your true satuation.

And be but yourself in the end, Then do not endeavor to be more, Or know more than God has designed Twill only increase your annoyance,

And show the true state of your mind. Whatever may be your position, You'll never advance very far, If, slighting your present condition,
