Frank W. Hay
"Uncle John, one said very early, but in a tone that told her mind was fully made up. 'I am going to marry Mark Anderson next Monday.'"

Mark and Kitty
"Mark and Kitty were married in a very simple, quiet fashion, and went to house-keeping in a pleasant little place a few miles from Hartley Grove."

Three young children of James Menon, residing in the east of 622 North Twenty-fifth street, Philadelphia, are lying in a critical condition, having been poisoned by eating pieces of tobacco which they picked up on the street.

Andrew Boyan, proprietor of the Centennial Hotel, Hollidaysburg, mourns the loss of eighty-seven dollars, which he left in a bag behind a door one night last week, and which disappeared with the departure of a young man who had been sleeping at the house. It is not known which way the young man went, and no one seems to know who he is.

It transpires by reason of the late date fixed for the granting of licenses that all the Greenburg hotels will be closed from the 12th to the 26th inst. In consequence the bibulous inclination of the town will be enforced at least for 13 days. The effect which 12 day's total abstinence will have on the town will be understood when Hoge, the brewer, sold $300 worth of beer to the hotels last week.

The trade tribunal appointed to settle the wages of the railroad coal miners, announced last Tuesday that the disagreement over the discharge of a miner on account of his connection with the tribunal had been adjusted, and there is nothing to interfere with an amicable arrangement of the rate of wages. No business was transacted save the examination of statistics received from operators, showing the cost of mining.

Alexander M. Kennedy, of the central committee on national labor legislation, has received from the president's private secretary a letter in reply to the memorial recently presented by the former asking the president to call an extra session of congress to consider labor legislation. The president, through his secretary, says that he cannot with a due regard for other interests comply with the wishes of the petitioners for an extra session of congress at this time.

For several years Professor Douglas of Ann Arbor University, has been manufacturing cyclones. He does it by suspending a large copper plate by silk cords. This plate is charged heavily with electricity, which hangs down like a bag under the influence of the electric force, and scatters them on all sides. General Grant has been spending a few days at West Point during the commencement exercises at the Academy and is receiving great attention from his old associates. During an interview to-day with the Art Committee of the Southern Exposition he expressed great interest in the enterprises and projects in a number of art objects collected by him in different parts of the world for exhibition in the art gallery during the entire period of the Exposition will be open. The Art Committee believes such collection will be regarded as a tower from which special interest and as a very practical expression on the part of Gen. Grant of his good will.

The ungulate hand of time has wrought wondrous changes in Rome. The tomb of Augustus is now a low theatre, while the great Mausoleum of Hadrian is a military fort. The gardens of the Pope were once the gardens of Nero, in whose walls is pointed out a tower from which tradition says, this Roman emperor was wont to float over the agonies of the Christian martyrs burning by his orders as torches to light up his garden. On the place were great Caesar fell stands the shop of a green grocer, and but a step further on is the site of the Forum of Trajan, the Arch of a temple has become the workshop of a cobbler, while the theatre of Marcellus is ablaze with the fires of a dozen blacksmiths.

The Washington Sunday Herald prints the following: "It is said that the bride, Mrs. Northcote nee Fish, and Mrs. Don Cameron are to be the two foremost American ladies in London society during the height of its season this summer. Mrs. Cameron when she left Washington was engaged to go to the Asot races the first day with Mr. Morgan, the well-known banker, and the second would sit with the party of the Prince of Wales. The Philadelphia Press writes that Mrs. Cameron was much, and Mrs. Cameron, it will be remembered, are both from Cleveland. So that town will be likely to gain a reputation in Europe for raising handsome women, such as the State has here for providing office holders.

Nothing has been heard from the steamer Africa, which sailed from New York for London, Scotland, March 27. She should have arrived there April 12. The agents here give her up and say she must be lost, probably with all on board. The only possible clue is that the steamer Claudiu had been beached at Bihel's, having been in collision with the Africa. The Africa was not in Africa had a crew of twenty-seven men, commanded by Edward Carr, of Hamburg, but on this trip had no passengers. She was built in 1879 and cost $150,000, and was considered one of the most staunch iron vessels ever built in the ocean. It was a great steaming fellow who had nothing on earth to do, and he fell a way below zero in everybody's estimation. We pitied the man from the bottom of our heart. Nothing to do. No ambition, no nothing to get up an appetite for the next meal by drinking bottomless toasts to his health, and then he was gone. Then we studied the fellow all day and half of the next day. He was rapidly promoted to the rank of captain, and accompanied his regiment through the war, and was killed at the battle of Gettysburg. For some time he was attached to General Hancock's staff. He was the last man in his regiment to be mustered out. At the close of the war he married the Ohio Wesleyan University.

Joseph Benson Foraker, the Republican candidate for Governor of Ohio, was born July 5, 1846, near Bainbridge, Highland county, Ohio. He entered the army when only sixteen years old, as a private in the 36th Ohio Volunteer Infantry, having much difficulty in passing muster on account of his youth. He was rapidly promoted to the rank of captain, and accompanied his regiment through the war, and was killed at the battle of Gettysburg. For some time he was attached to General Hancock's staff. He was the last man in his regiment to be mustered out. At the close of the war he married the Ohio Wesleyan University.

Afterward he went to Cornell University, where he graduated in 1870, and then to the law. He was admitted to the bar in 1873, and was elected Judge of the Superior Court in 1875, but resigned in 1876 to accept of a position in the army. He was promoted to the rank of major, and was killed at the battle of Gettysburg. For some time he was attached to General Hancock's staff. He was the last man in his regiment to be mustered out. At the close of the war he married the Ohio Wesleyan University.
