

The Republicans of Ohio have taken a bold stand on the liquor question, and thereby run great risk of losing the German vote, which may lead to their defeat, and yet the prohibitionists have nominated a separate ticket, thus playing into the hands of the enemies of temperance.

The Pittsburgh Dispatch publishes an interview with Senator Stewart, in which he is reported to have said that his course in the coming campaign, will depend largely on the conduct of the State Convention, and the character of its candidates, and that the same is true of the majority of the Independent Republicans; and the Philadelphia Record states that Chairman McKee will call the Independent State Convention together soon after the 11th of July next, when it will determine whether to endorse the State ticket nominated by the Stalwarts or not.

These announcements are intended as a menace to the coming State Convention, which we hope that to-day will have the good sense to totally disregard. Let the delegates organize in accordance with the rules adopted at the last Convention, nominate the candidates designated by a majority of the body, without knuckling to any sore head leaders or would-be "bosses," and adjourn. The Republicans of the State are in favor of unity, and are in no humor to endure a repetition of the trickery of last campaign.

They will not submit to the thimble rigger game, "Heads, I win, tails, you lose." Honest men will feel themselves bound by a decision of the majority of a convention which they voluntarily enter, and in whose proceedings they participate; tricksters will not. The latter may defeat but they cannot coerce the party. Give us a fair Convention and a good ticket, and we will agree to take the chances, despite the efforts of a few disgruntled politicians who assume to dictate to the party.

"SERVED HIM RIGHT," is the almost universal comment on the killing of Dukes by young Nutt. And yet, while Dukes undoubtedly deserved death for his crimes, the manner of his death was not right. It will not do under any circumstances to admit that any man has the right to act as judge, jury and executioner in his own case. Dukes was a doubly damned villain, but his killing by young Nutt is not justifiable. If ever a man was excusable for taking the life of another this young man cannot be conceived. The fair name and fame of a beloved sister blighted, a father murdered in defense of the honor of his child, a shameless miscarriage of justice in the acquittal of the defamer and assassin, the constant presence and bravado of the bloody wretch who wrought these crimes, was a provocation to exact atonement, scarcely to be resisted by any man, but still, the law says that the act of this grief-maddened lad is murder, and in our sympathy with him we must not forget that the law is our only safe-guard and sure refuge.

Put yourself in his place, and you feel that you would have been less than a man not to have done as he did. In your innermost heart you cannot condemn him, and yet, the law must be respected and obeyed, or chaos has come again. It was the miscarriage, or violation of the law that brought about this latest tragedy. Had Dukes been convicted, as he should have been, of the murder of the father, the son's life would not now have been jeopardized, and the hearts of the wife, mother and sister would not be wrung with a double sorrow. We hope, earnestly, for the deliverance of this lad from the last dread penalty of the law, but we must not close our eyes to the fact that he deliberately, and with intent, and not in the hot blood of a struggle, fired upon and killed the man for whose death he will be called upon to answer.

The killing under the circumstances, cannot be justified, but it may be excused. We do not believe the lad can be convicted in the community where he was raised, and where all the facts in this dreadful double tragedy are known, but it is undeniable that James Nutt in thus avenging his sister's dishonor and his father's murder, has placed his own life in fearful peril.

AFTER an exhaustive trial running through six months the "Star route conspirators" have been acquitted by a jury of the country. The newspapers that tried the case and convicted the defendants in advance, are now busily denouncing the jury because it did not agree with them. This thing of trying cases in the daily newspapers and vilifying juries, sworn to do their duty, because they do not find verdicts to please the scribes, is fast becoming a crying evil, and is rapidly sapping public confidence in the only method known to the law of obtaining final results. In this case, the Government employed the best legal talent it could command, and laboriously endeavored to convict the men believed to have wronged it, but the jury, the sworn arbiters of the facts presented, decided that they were not sufficient to convict. Their finding was accepted by the court, and it should be by the

LIFE FOR LIFE!

N. L. DUKES SHOT DEAD BY CAPTAIN NUTT'S YOUNG SON, JAMES.

He Avenges His Sister's Honor and His Father's Death.

UNIONTOWNS, Pa., June 13.—This evening at about 7:25 o'clock James Nutt, eldest son of the late Captain A. C. Nutt, shot and killed N. L. Dukes, who on the 24th day of December last killed Captain Nutt. Dukes was standing in front of the Jennings House when the evening mail arrived, a few minutes before 7, and he remained there talking to several men, and was apparently in a very fine humor, as he was laughing and conversing in a free and easy manner at the time above stated. He started down to get his mail, the postoffice being only a block from the Jennings House. The postoffice faces on Pittsburg street, and the building in which it is located stands on the corner of Main and Pittsburg streets and has been known ever since its erection, which was many years ago, as the "Round Corner."

There was an immense crowd of people standing around on the outside of the office, and they ran in every direction, for fear of being shot. The fifth ball only grazed the left ankle and glanced off and went through some of the lock boxes. A number of persons rushed up the steps when Dukes fell and at the same time Police Officer Peck ran toward and caught Nutt, who made no resistance whatever, but said to the officer, "Here, take this." Whereupon he gave him his revolver.

As soon as Dukes was pronounced dead by the coroner, he was taken to the room where he killed the father of the boy who killed him. The coroner then emancipated his jury, which consisted of J. C. Marshall, Dr. L. S. Gaddis, John N. Dawson, W. H. Miller and H. H. Hoskey, Jr. After the jury was sworn it was decided to postpone the examination of witnesses until to-morrow morning at 8 o'clock.

The arresting officer's story was examined, and that one was Officer Peck, who witnessed the shooting and arrested Nutt. He testified that he was standing on the opposite corner and saw Dukes walking down street and Nutt in the room of the "Round Corner." When Dukes passed by Nutt shot twice. Dukes looked around and then Nutt ran after him and fired three more shots. He (Peck) then ran after him and caught Nutt just after he had fired the last shot. Nutt made no resistance, but handed him his revolver, saying: "You take this." He told Peck he had a bad pain in his neck. Nutt replied: "I could not help it."

This was the only witness examined to-night. The jury then proceeded to examine the body. Dukes' coat was first taken off and examined. The pockets contained some papers, which were not touched. The back had four bullet holes in it on the left side. The vest contained nothing of any importance, and the holes in the vest corresponded to those in the coat.

A dirk knife was found hanging to the suspender button on his left side, which he carried in his right hand, and in his right hip pocket was found the very identical revolver with which he shot Captain Nutt. The dirk knife was ready for a close encounter and the revolver for long range. It was thought that the revolver fired by Nutt was the same one his father had at the time Dukes killed him, but it was not. It was a Colt .32-caliber and not so large as the one his father had at the time of his death. All these things were taken by the coroner.

The coroner's examination of the wounds it was found that three of the balls and not four penetrated his body. They are so close together that a ring four inches in diameter will cover them all. Two of them went clean through the body and could be seen through the right breast and the other as near the middle of the breast as could be seen. This one fractured a rib. These balls were pulled out and the holes probed by the coroner and his father, Dr. W. H. Sturgeon. It was found that the bullet which passed through the right breast and very near the heart. The third hole was then probed and the ball found lodged in the muscular tissue of the heart. This ball passed through the lungs first and then into the heart.

It is thought that any one of these three balls would have caused his death. The two balls that went through the breast and were extracted are also in the hands of the coroner. The ball that grazed the

THE APACHES DEFEATED.

General Crook Captures Their Camp.

TUCSON, ARIZONA, June 12.—A courier arrived at Tombstone last night with the news that General Crook and his men had defeated the Apaches and captured their camp. The first official information of Crook's expedition. It left United States soil on the 3d of May, marching two hundred miles southeast from San Bernardino, on the boundary line of Chihuahua and Sonora, following a trail of the hostiles. Crook was guided by an Apache named Nadsaki, who was captured near San Carlos just previous to the expedition leaving. At a point about 200 miles south of the Sierra Madre range, a steep fifty miles over an uncharted trail, the Apaches were met by Crook's men. The Apaches did not dream of an attack, for entrance to the stronghold was next to impossible, and the warriors were principally out on a raid under July, only thirty-seven bucks being in camp with the women and children.

General Crook captured the camp of the Apaches, and the Apaches were defeated. The Apaches were captured near San Carlos just previous to the expedition leaving. At a point about 200 miles south of the Sierra Madre range, a steep fifty miles over an uncharted trail, the Apaches were met by Crook's men. The Apaches did not dream of an attack, for entrance to the stronghold was next to impossible, and the warriors were principally out on a raid under July, only thirty-seven bucks being in camp with the women and children.

The Apaches were captured near San Carlos just previous to the expedition leaving. At a point about 200 miles south of the Sierra Madre range, a steep fifty miles over an uncharted trail, the Apaches were met by Crook's men. The Apaches did not dream of an attack, for entrance to the stronghold was next to impossible, and the warriors were principally out on a raid under July, only thirty-seven bucks being in camp with the women and children.

The Apaches were captured near San Carlos just previous to the expedition leaving. At a point about 200 miles south of the Sierra Madre range, a steep fifty miles over an uncharted trail, the Apaches were met by Crook's men. The Apaches did not dream of an attack, for entrance to the stronghold was next to impossible, and the warriors were principally out on a raid under July, only thirty-seven bucks being in camp with the women and children.

The Apaches were captured near San Carlos just previous to the expedition leaving. At a point about 200 miles south of the Sierra Madre range, a steep fifty miles over an uncharted trail, the Apaches were met by Crook's men. The Apaches did not dream of an attack, for entrance to the stronghold was next to impossible, and the warriors were principally out on a raid under July, only thirty-seven bucks being in camp with the women and children.

The Apaches were captured near San Carlos just previous to the expedition leaving. At a point about 200 miles south of the Sierra Madre range, a steep fifty miles over an uncharted trail, the Apaches were met by Crook's men. The Apaches did not dream of an attack, for entrance to the stronghold was next to impossible, and the warriors were principally out on a raid under July, only thirty-seven bucks being in camp with the women and children.

The Apaches were captured near San Carlos just previous to the expedition leaving. At a point about 200 miles south of the Sierra Madre range, a steep fifty miles over an uncharted trail, the Apaches were met by Crook's men. The Apaches did not dream of an attack, for entrance to the stronghold was next to impossible, and the warriors were principally out on a raid under July, only thirty-seven bucks being in camp with the women and children.

The Apaches were captured near San Carlos just previous to the expedition leaving. At a point about 200 miles south of the Sierra Madre range, a steep fifty miles over an uncharted trail, the Apaches were met by Crook's men. The Apaches did not dream of an attack, for entrance to the stronghold was next to impossible, and the warriors were principally out on a raid under July, only thirty-seven bucks being in camp with the women and children.

The Apaches were captured near San Carlos just previous to the expedition leaving. At a point about 200 miles south of the Sierra Madre range, a steep fifty miles over an uncharted trail, the Apaches were met by Crook's men. The Apaches did not dream of an attack, for entrance to the stronghold was next to impossible, and the warriors were principally out on a raid under July, only thirty-seven bucks being in camp with the women and children.

The Apaches were captured near San Carlos just previous to the expedition leaving. At a point about 200 miles south of the Sierra Madre range, a steep fifty miles over an uncharted trail, the Apaches were met by Crook's men. The Apaches did not dream of an attack, for entrance to the stronghold was next to impossible, and the warriors were principally out on a raid under July, only thirty-seven bucks being in camp with the women and children.

THE VERDICT IN THE STAR ROUTE TRIAL.

All the Defendants Acquitted.

WASHINGTON, June 14.—You can ask that jury whether they have any communication to make to the court," said Judge Wylie to the jury, when the criminal court hearing the Star-route case reassembled this morning. Crier Donaldson soon returned with a message that the jury desired to communicate with the court. They filed into the court room apparently from the women for their long confinement. When they were seated Judge Wylie said: "Gentlemen of the Jury, the court has sent for you for the purpose of inquiring whether you have any communication to make?" The foreman in reply stated that the jury had agreed upon a verdict and a painful affair fell upon the court room only to be broken by wild shouts of applause when, in a clear tone of voice, the foreman stated that the verdict was not guilty.

Immediately the decorum of a court of justice was forgotten, and cheers resounded from all quarters of the crowded room. Mrs. S. W. Dorsey sprang to her feet, clapping her hands and crying: "Glory to God" while the tears streamed down her cheeks. There were many other ladies in the Court-room who were equally weeping.

Mr. Davidge quickly asked to have the verdict recorded, which was done, while the Deputy Marshals were vainly endeavoring to quell the tumult. Vaile leaned forward and wept. Dorsey buried his face in his hands and then tried to quiet his hysterical cry, but Brady, without a change of muscle on his features, got up and shook hands with each of the jurors and then with the Judge.

S. W. Dorsey and Brady were the recipients of many warm congratulations, and as they left the Court-room they were greeted with renewed cheers by the crowd in front of the City Hall. When order had been somewhat restored by reason of the defendants and their friends leaving the room, Judge Wylie turned to Juror Vernon and asked: "Mr. Vernon, how are you this morning?"

Juror Vernon—"First rate, sir." The Court—"I believe we have nothing further for the jury to do during this term, and the Court is prepared to discharge you finally. You have had a laborious task to perform in this case. You have been more than six months engaged in this trial. Many of you have occupations of your own which you have been obliged to neglect during the period, and though your verdict, of course, will create dissatisfaction to many, yet having been selected according to the forms of law, and having sworn to perform your duties faithfully, the Court is bound to presume that you have faithfully performed your duty. If you have done so, each one according to the dictates of his own conscience, that will be a satisfaction to you as long as you live. You are therefore discharged, with the thanks of the Court."

In the ante-room and halls the jury was beset by a throng of interested persons, prominent among them being the defendants and Mrs. S. W. Dorsey and Mrs. Peck, who then thanked them for their verdict with tears in their eyes.

As when she was young. "I have used Parkers' Hair Balsam and like it better than any similar preparation I know of," writes Mrs. Ellen Perry, wife of Rev. P. Perry, of Coldbrook Springs, Mass. "It has cured me entirely, and a dollar bottle of the Balsam has restored the softness, and the brown color it had when I was young—not a single gray hair left. Since I began applying the Balsam my hair has stopped falling out, and I find that it is a perfectly harmless and agreeable dressing."

Happy Homes! Happy Homes!! Happy Homes!!! THE NUMBER OF HOMES MADE HAPPY BY THE USE OF THE Celebrated Lather and Health-Saving DAY'S SOAP.

DAY'S SOAP. The wrappers are used and can be used for smoothing the surface of your hand-rubbers, giving them a polish and smoothness, that will greatly assist in giving your clothes a finished look. Remember this Soap is cheaper than any other in the market, and yet does all we claim for it.

Wash-day has no terrors for the household where DAY'S SOAP is used, no unpleasant and sickening odors to fill your houses, no laborious rubbing on the wash-board, while the washing can be done in one-half the time necessary by following the old worn-out method. MADAU—for it is to the ladies we desire to speak more especially—you are the interested party in this matter; you it is that suffer the ill arising from the wash-tub and its heavy care; you it is to whom the perplexities and responsibilities of the household rightfully belong, and you it is that should interest yourself in a trial of the qualities of this soap, that has always proven itself to be a boon of salvation.

THE APACHES DEFEATED.

General Crook Captures Their Camp.

TUCSON, ARIZONA, June 12.—A courier arrived at Tombstone last night with the news that General Crook and his men had defeated the Apaches and captured their camp. The first official information of Crook's expedition. It left United States soil on the 3d of May, marching two hundred miles southeast from San Bernardino, on the boundary line of Chihuahua and Sonora, following a trail of the hostiles. Crook was guided by an Apache named Nadsaki, who was captured near San Carlos just previous to the expedition leaving. At a point about 200 miles south of the Sierra Madre range, a steep fifty miles over an uncharted trail, the Apaches were met by Crook's men. The Apaches did not dream of an attack, for entrance to the stronghold was next to impossible, and the warriors were principally out on a raid under July, only thirty-seven bucks being in camp with the women and children.

The Apaches were captured near San Carlos just previous to the expedition leaving. At a point about 200 miles south of the Sierra Madre range, a steep fifty miles over an uncharted trail, the Apaches were met by Crook's men. The Apaches did not dream of an attack, for entrance to the stronghold was next to impossible, and the warriors were principally out on a raid under July, only thirty-seven bucks being in camp with the women and children.

The Apaches were captured near San Carlos just previous to the expedition leaving. At a point about 200 miles south of the Sierra Madre range, a steep fifty miles over an uncharted trail, the Apaches were met by Crook's men. The Apaches did not dream of an attack, for entrance to the stronghold was next to impossible, and the warriors were principally out on a raid under July, only thirty-seven bucks being in camp with the women and children.

The Apaches were captured near San Carlos just previous to the expedition leaving. At a point about 200 miles south of the Sierra Madre range, a steep fifty miles over an uncharted trail, the Apaches were met by Crook's men. The Apaches did not dream of an attack, for entrance to the stronghold was next to impossible, and the warriors were principally out on a raid under July, only thirty-seven bucks being in camp with the women and children.

The Apaches were captured near San Carlos just previous to the expedition leaving. At a point about 200 miles south of the Sierra Madre range, a steep fifty miles over an uncharted trail, the Apaches were met by Crook's men. The Apaches did not dream of an attack, for entrance to the stronghold was next to impossible, and the warriors were principally out on a raid under July, only thirty-seven bucks being in camp with the women and children.

The Apaches were captured near San Carlos just previous to the expedition leaving. At a point about 200 miles south of the Sierra Madre range, a steep fifty miles over an uncharted trail, the Apaches were met by Crook's men. The Apaches did not dream of an attack, for entrance to the stronghold was next to impossible, and the warriors were principally out on a raid under July, only thirty-seven bucks being in camp with the women and children.

The Apaches were captured near San Carlos just previous to the expedition leaving. At a point about 200 miles south of the Sierra Madre range, a steep fifty miles over an uncharted trail, the Apaches were met by Crook's men. The Apaches did not dream of an attack, for entrance to the stronghold was next to impossible, and the warriors were principally out on a raid under July, only thirty-seven bucks being in camp with the women and children.

The Apaches were captured near San Carlos just previous to the expedition leaving. At a point about 200 miles south of the Sierra Madre range, a steep fifty miles over an uncharted trail, the Apaches were met by Crook's men. The Apaches did not dream of an attack, for entrance to the stronghold was next to impossible, and the warriors were principally out on a raid under July, only thirty-seven bucks being in camp with the women and children.

The Apaches were captured near San Carlos just previous to the expedition leaving. At a point about 200 miles south of the Sierra Madre range, a steep fifty miles over an uncharted trail, the Apaches were met by Crook's men. The Apaches did not dream of an attack, for entrance to the stronghold was next to impossible, and the warriors were principally out on a raid under July, only thirty-seven bucks being in camp with the women and children.

The Apaches were captured near San Carlos just previous to the expedition leaving. At a point about 200 miles south of the Sierra Madre range, a steep fifty miles over an uncharted trail, the Apaches were met by Crook's men. The Apaches did not dream of an attack, for entrance to the stronghold was next to impossible, and the warriors were principally out on a raid under July, only thirty-seven bucks being in camp with the women and children.

THE VERDICT IN THE STAR ROUTE TRIAL.

All the Defendants Acquitted.

WASHINGTON, June 14.—You can ask that jury whether they have any communication to make to the court," said Judge Wylie to the jury, when the criminal court hearing the Star-route case reassembled this morning. Crier Donaldson soon returned with a message that the jury desired to communicate with the court. They filed into the court room apparently from the women for their long confinement. When they were seated Judge Wylie said: "Gentlemen of the Jury, the court has sent for you for the purpose of inquiring whether you have any communication to make?" The foreman in reply stated that the jury had agreed upon a verdict and a painful affair fell upon the court room only to be broken by wild shouts of applause when, in a clear tone of voice, the foreman stated that the verdict was not guilty.

Immediately the decorum of a court of justice was forgotten, and cheers resounded from all quarters of the crowded room. Mrs. S. W. Dorsey sprang to her feet, clapping her hands and crying: "Glory to God" while the tears streamed down her cheeks. There were many other ladies in the Court-room who were equally weeping.

Mr. Davidge quickly asked to have the verdict recorded, which was done, while the Deputy Marshals were vainly endeavoring to quell the tumult. Vaile leaned forward and wept. Dorsey buried his face in his hands and then tried to quiet his hysterical cry, but Brady, without a change of muscle on his features, got up and shook hands with each of the jurors and then with the Judge.

S. W. Dorsey and Brady were the recipients of many warm congratulations, and as they left the Court-room they were greeted with renewed cheers by the crowd in front of the City Hall. When order had been somewhat restored by reason of the defendants and their friends leaving the room, Judge Wylie turned to Juror Vernon and asked: "Mr. Vernon, how are you this morning?"

Juror Vernon—"First rate, sir." The Court—"I believe we have nothing further for the jury to do during this term, and the Court is prepared to discharge you finally. You have had a laborious task to perform in this case. You have been more than six months engaged in this trial. Many of you have occupations of your own which you have been obliged to neglect during the period, and though your verdict, of course, will create dissatisfaction to many, yet having been selected according to the forms of law, and having sworn to perform your duties faithfully, the Court is bound to presume that you have faithfully performed your duty. If you have done so, each one according to the dictates of his own conscience, that will be a satisfaction to you as long as you live. You are therefore discharged, with the thanks of the Court."

In the ante-room and halls the jury was beset by a throng of interested persons, prominent among them being the defendants and Mrs. S. W. Dorsey and Mrs. Peck, who then thanked them for their verdict with tears in their eyes.

As when she was young. "I have used Parkers' Hair Balsam and like it better than any similar preparation I know of," writes Mrs. Ellen Perry, wife of Rev. P. Perry, of Coldbrook Springs, Mass. "It has cured me entirely, and a dollar bottle of the Balsam has restored the softness, and the brown color it had when I was young—not a single gray hair left. Since I began applying the Balsam my hair has stopped falling out, and I find that it is a perfectly harmless and agreeable dressing."

Happy Homes! Happy Homes!! Happy Homes!!! THE NUMBER OF HOMES MADE HAPPY BY THE USE OF THE Celebrated Lather and Health-Saving DAY'S SOAP.

DAY'S SOAP. The wrappers are used and can be used for smoothing the surface of your hand-rubbers, giving them a polish and smoothness, that will greatly assist in giving your clothes a finished look. Remember this Soap is cheaper than any other in the market, and yet does all we claim for it.

Wash-day has no terrors for the household where DAY'S SOAP is used, no unpleasant and sickening odors to fill your houses, no laborious rubbing on the wash-board, while the washing can be done in one-half the time necessary by following the old worn-out method. MADAU—for it is to the ladies we desire to speak more especially—you are the interested party in this matter; you it is that suffer the ill arising from the wash-tub and its heavy care; you it is to whom the perplexities and responsibilities of the household rightfully belong, and you it is that should interest yourself in a trial of the qualities of this soap, that has always proven itself to be a boon of salvation.

THE VERDICT IN THE STAR ROUTE TRIAL.

All the Defendants Acquitted.

WASHINGTON, June 14.—You can ask that jury whether they have any communication to make to the court," said Judge Wylie to the jury, when the criminal court hearing the Star-route case reassembled this morning. Crier Donaldson soon returned with a message that the jury desired to communicate with the court. They filed into the court room apparently from the women for their long confinement. When they were seated Judge Wylie said: "Gentlemen of the Jury, the court has sent for you for the purpose of inquiring whether you have any communication to make?" The foreman in reply stated that the jury had agreed upon a verdict and a painful affair fell upon the court room only to be broken by wild shouts of applause when, in a clear tone of voice, the foreman stated that the verdict was not guilty.

Immediately the decorum of a court of justice was forgotten, and cheers resounded from all quarters of the crowded room. Mrs. S. W. Dorsey sprang to her feet, clapping her hands and crying: "Glory to God" while the tears streamed down her cheeks. There were many other ladies in the Court-room who were equally weeping.

Mr. Davidge quickly asked to have the verdict recorded, which was done, while the Deputy Marshals were vainly endeavoring to quell the tumult. Vaile leaned forward and wept. Dorsey buried his face in his hands and then tried to quiet his hysterical cry, but Brady, without a change of muscle on his features, got up and shook hands with each of the jurors and then with the Judge.

S. W. Dorsey and Brady were the recipients of many warm congratulations, and as they left the Court-room they were greeted with renewed cheers by the crowd in front of the City Hall. When order had been somewhat restored by reason of the defendants and their friends leaving the room, Judge Wylie turned to Juror Vernon and asked: "Mr. Vernon, how are you this morning?"

Juror Vernon—"First rate, sir." The Court—"I believe we have nothing further for the jury to do during this term, and the Court is prepared to discharge you finally. You have had a laborious task to perform in this case. You have been more than six months engaged in this trial. Many of you have occupations of your own which you have been obliged to neglect during the period, and though your verdict, of course, will create dissatisfaction to many, yet having been selected according to the forms of law, and having sworn to perform your duties faithfully, the Court is bound to presume that you have faithfully performed your duty. If you have done so, each one according to the dictates of his own conscience, that will be a satisfaction to you as long as you live. You are therefore discharged, with the thanks of the Court."

In the ante-room and halls the jury was beset by a throng of interested persons, prominent among them being the defendants and Mrs. S. W. Dorsey and Mrs. Peck, who then thanked them for their verdict with tears in their eyes.

As when she was young. "I have used Parkers' Hair Balsam and like it better than any similar preparation I know of," writes Mrs. Ellen Perry, wife of Rev. P. Perry, of Coldbrook Springs, Mass. "It has cured me entirely, and a dollar bottle of the Balsam has restored the softness, and the brown color it had when I was young—not a single gray hair left. Since I began applying the Balsam my hair has stopped falling out, and I find that it is a perfectly harmless and agreeable dressing."

Happy Homes! Happy Homes!! Happy Homes!!! THE NUMBER OF HOMES MADE HAPPY BY THE USE OF THE Celebrated Lather and Health-Saving DAY'S SOAP.

DAY'S SOAP. The wrappers are used and can be used for smoothing the surface of your hand-rubbers, giving them a polish and smoothness, that will greatly assist in giving your clothes a finished look. Remember this Soap is cheaper than any other in the market, and yet does all we claim for it.

Wash-day has no terrors for the household where DAY'S SOAP is used, no unpleasant and sickening odors to fill your houses, no laborious rubbing on the wash-board, while the washing can be done in one-half the time necessary by following the old worn-out method. MADAU—for it is to the ladies we desire to speak more especially—you are the interested party in this matter; you it is that suffer the ill arising from the wash-tub and its heavy care; you it is to whom the perplexities and responsibilities of the household rightfully belong, and you it is that should interest yourself in a trial of the qualities of this soap, that has always proven itself to be a boon of salvation.

BARGAINS! BARGAINS! BARGAINS!

Notwithstanding the very low prices at which we have been selling our goods this season, we are compelled to make a great reduction, in order to close our entire stock before occupying our New Store, which will be ready in about eight weeks.

Bargains No. 1. Bargains No. 2. Bargains in Dress Suits, Bargains in Business Suits, Bargains in Everyday Suits, Bargains in Dress Pants, Bargains in Cheap Pants, Bargains in Work Pants.

Bargains No. 3. Bargains No. 4. Bargains in Straw Hats, Bargains in Soft Felt Hats, Bargains in Fine Stiff Hats, Bargains in Duck Vests, Bargains in White Vests, Bargains in Cheap Vests.

Bargains No. 5. Bargains in Underwear, Bargains in White Shirts, Bargains in Summer Wear.

CHILDREN KILLED. The work of getting out the bodies of the victims was begun immediately. They were laid out in the hall, and the parents of those killed were admitted for the purpose of identifying the bodies of their children. Most heart-rending scenes transpired while the work of identification was in progress.

Some of the families whose loved ones were suddenly darkened lost three children. One man and woman washed their way into the hall, which lay the bodies of their children, and, without betraying emotion, began to scan the faces of the dead. Recognizing the face of one of their children, the father, pointing with his finger, exclaimed, "That's my boy! That's my boy!" Another man, who was also a father, pointed to another child, and said, "That's my boy! That's my boy!"

Queen Victoria sent a telegram to the Mayor of Sunderland expressing her grief at the disaster. Children of the various Sunday schools also sent telegrams of sympathy. They were at half mast. One Sunday school loses thirty scholars by catastrophe. Many survivors had their limbs broken in the crash. Others are suffering from broken ribs, rupture of internal organs. Graham hall keeper, says children not twenty yards from the door came forward unaware of the tragedy, the making things ten times worse than they really were.

The eagerness of the children to depart from the hall was caused by their desire to receive the promises them. Graham then placed the blame for the calamity upon man connected with the entertainment, who it appears fastened the door half open in order that prizes might be given to children one at a time while they were leaving the hall.

Happy Homes! Happy Homes!! Happy Homes!!! THE NUMBER OF HOMES MADE HAPPY BY THE USE OF THE Celebrated Lather and Health-Saving DAY'S SOAP.

DAY'S SOAP. The wrappers are used and can be used for smoothing the surface of your hand-rubbers, giving them a polish and smoothness, that will greatly assist in giving your clothes a finished look. Remember this Soap is cheaper than any other in the market, and yet does all we claim for it.