

The Somerset Herald
Published every Wednesday morning at 10 o'clock.
Subscription price, $1.00 per annum in advance.
Advertisements will be inserted at the rate of 10 cents per line for the first week, and 7 cents for each subsequent week.

THE SOMERSET HERALD,
SOMERSET, PA.
PUBLISHED EVERY WEDNESDAY MORNING AT 10 O'CLOCK.
Subscription price, $1.00 per annum in advance.
Advertisements will be inserted at the rate of 10 cents per line for the first week, and 7 cents for each subsequent week.

THE SOMERSET HERALD,
SOMERSET, PA.
PUBLISHED EVERY WEDNESDAY MORNING AT 10 O'CLOCK.
Subscription price, $1.00 per annum in advance.
Advertisements will be inserted at the rate of 10 cents per line for the first week, and 7 cents for each subsequent week.

THE SOMERSET HERALD,
SOMERSET, PA.
PUBLISHED EVERY WEDNESDAY MORNING AT 10 O'CLOCK.
Subscription price, $1.00 per annum in advance.
Advertisements will be inserted at the rate of 10 cents per line for the first week, and 7 cents for each subsequent week.

THE SOMERSET HERALD,
SOMERSET, PA.
PUBLISHED EVERY WEDNESDAY MORNING AT 10 O'CLOCK.
Subscription price, $1.00 per annum in advance.
Advertisements will be inserted at the rate of 10 cents per line for the first week, and 7 cents for each subsequent week.

VOL. XXXII, NO. 29.
SOMERSET, PA., WEDNESDAY, JANUARY 2, 1884.
WHOLE NO. 1694.

Frank W. Hay, ESTABLISHED 1847ERS.
HAY BROS.,
WHOLESALE AND RETAIL
Tin, Copper and Sheet-Iron Ware Manufy,
No. 280 Washington Street, Johnstown, Pa.
WE ARE PREPARED TO OFFER
RANGES, STOVES and HOUSE-FURNISHING GOODS IN GENERAL
At Prices Less than any other House in Western Pennsylvania.

FASHIONABLE CUTTER & TAILOR,
OLD RELIABLE SADDLERY & HARNESS SHOP,
SOMERSET, PA.
Having had many years of experience in all branches of tailoring and saddlery, I am prepared to do all kinds of work in a neat and satisfactory manner. Satisfaction guaranteed. My shop is located on Main Street, opposite the Court House.

SOMERSET COUNTY BANK!
ESTABLISHED 1877.
President, Cashier.
CHARGES MODERATE.
Parties wishing to send money West can be accommodated by draft on New York, or by check on New York, or by check on New York, or by check on New York.

TUTT'S PILLS
FOR
TORPID BOWELS, DISORDERED LIVER, AND MALARIA.
From these sources arise three-fourths of the diseases which afflict the human race. These symptoms indicate their existence: Loss of appetite, biliousness, flatulence, headache, dizziness, indigestion, constipation, and a feeling of having neglected some duty. TUTT'S PILLS are the only medicine that acts directly on the bowels, and restores the system to its normal condition.

HORNE & WARD,
EATON & BROS.,
NO. 27 FIFTH AVENUE,
PITTSBURGH, PA.
SPRING, 1882.
NEW GOODS
EVERY DAY SPECIALTIES
Embroideries, Laces, Trimmings, White Goods, Handkerchiefs, Dress Millinery, Hosiery, Gloves, Corsets, Mantles and Marine Underwear, Fancy Goods, Yarns, Zephyrs, Materials of All Kinds for FANCY WORK.

Fisher's Book Store.
Always in stock at the Book Store well selected assortment of Bibles, Testaments, Gospel, Prayer Books, and all the latest and most useful books. Catalogues sent free on request.

Better than Ever!
A. C. YATES & CO.
Ledger Building, Chestnut & 6th Sts.
PHILADELPHIA.
EXECUTOR'S NOTICE
Estate of Henry M. Baker, deceased, late of Millersburg, Pa.

REST PATENTS
A good two-story frame dwelling house, with basement, good stable, and coal house, with plenty of good water, and built in a healthy location. Terms to suit the purchaser. Inquire of JACOB NEFF, Somerset, Pa.

THE OLD YEAR AND THE NEW.
Fleets the Old Year passing,
With its joys and hopes and fears,
And even its ill life is ended,
It will be with coming years.
Like the soft and silent snow flakes,
Fell off bright-gem'd hour that past,
Or like the dust of a swift breeze,
On the Autumn's rapid blast.
At each moment as it vanished,
With it passed a soul away:
And has come the new-born infant
To behold the light of day.
Words and deeds through all the Old Year,
Have, like seeds, been thickly sown,
In the New they'll yield the harvest,
And will by their fruits be known.
But the New, what fruits it hidden?
In the New they'll yield the harvest,
Pain or pleasure, rest or labor,
Able or blessing yet untold?
Ah! new work will bring each toiler
Mid the world's uneasy throng,
Whom hearts beat nobly battling
That the right may end the wrong.
Then shine out, O light from Heaven,
And make glad our earthly way!
Banish mist and darkening shadows,
Shine our low how forth-true way.

Sixty Years' History.
General Cameron on Three Generations of Public Men.
Personal Recollections of Every National Administration Since James Monroe was President and Henry Clay Speaker of the House—The Tariff as a Weaker of Parties—Since 1824.
From a Staff Correspondent of The Press.
HARRISBURG, December 6.—The election of Mr. Carlisle early in the afternoon of the next Presidential campaign. It sharply draws sectional lines and reintroduces sectional questions into our politics which all thoughtful men had hoped were forever buried. In placing the Democracy squarely in line for a raid upon the tariff, freight and express rates, and against a united country and the bulwark of its industries, it is curious to witness how the old party refuses to learn wisdom from the expensive lessons of the past. There is an old saying that experience keeps a dear school, but some folks will learn no other lesson than that of the political folly of the Democracy in thus reviving issues hurtful to the country and dangerous to themselves. The party of Jefferson is to-day but a sad reminder of what it was when I began political life. It seems to be living only upon its traditions and its past glories.

THE VIEWS OF A POLITICAL SEER.
I am too old to expect to see that beautiful region reach the point where it will recognize the fact that those who work frame the corner stones of the next Presidential campaign. The tariff issue ought not to be decided within sectional lines. The reviving South should not array itself against the business interests of the industrial North. Such an attitude will be far more hurtful to the country than sectional divisions upon purely political questions could possibly be. If it shall be found that the South is solid against protection it will create bitterness that will last much longer and be more far-reaching in its consequences than any feeling aroused by a scramble for party supremacy upon ordinary questions.

TUTT'S HAIR DYE.
GREAT HAIR RESTORATIVE. Cleanses the scalp, restores the hair to its natural color, and prevents its falling out. It is the only hair dye that does not injure the hair.

Don't go shivering through this cold weather for want of a good, warm Overcoat; it will not pay.
We have them in all grades, from the plainest, low in price, to the finest.
SIXTY FIVE YEARS OF POLITICS.
A record of the busy and eventful life of General Simon Cameron would make volumes of important history. His political career has spanned nearly three-quarters of a century of the national life. During all that long time he has, without a halt, been in the front rank and among the foremost leaders in important political events. To-day he is a great and picturesque character. In March he will be 86 years old; but yet he is as much in love with life as a man of thirty, and has a heart as young as a child's.

REST PATENTS
A good two-story frame dwelling house, with basement, good stable, and coal house, with plenty of good water, and built in a healthy location. Terms to suit the purchaser. Inquire of JACOB NEFF, Somerset, Pa.

THE LAWS OF 1842.
In 1842 another acrimonious discussion on that tariff question was begun, and ended in a complete revision of the Compromise bill of 1833. The bill of 1841, that had provided for a distribution of the proceeds of the sale of public lands among the states, had proved unpopular. The measure to distribute the present surplus among the states will be likely to be discovered long ago that no make shifts would do, but that a revenue bill strong enough to anticipate not only the demands of the government but to give protection to the industries, is necessary to the prosperity of the country. Out of the struggles between the President and congress the tariff bill of 1842 was born. It was not all that was desired, but under its provisions our manufacturers prospered and the finances of the Government were restored to a fair basis. In the presidential contest of 1844 the tariff question played an important part. Mr. Clay, the idol of the Whig party, had been nominated for the presidency, and Mr. Frelinghuysen for the vice presidency. Polk and Dallas led the Democracy. The Whigs claimed that the Democracy with the intention of disturbing the tariff of 1842. From one end of the country to the other the Democrats raised the cry, "Polk and Dallas and the tariff of 1842!" This was only a mask to satisfy the protected industries of the country, and the people were deluded into electing Polk over Clay under the promise made by the Democracy of standing by the tariff already in force. Had it not been for this, Mr. Polk could never have been elected president. During all these years, though not in public life, I had taken an active part in politics. Mr. Buchanan had been my ideal, and I had been instrumental in having him made United States Senator.

BUCHANAN AND CAMERON—HOW ONE BECAME SECRETARY OF STATE AND THE OTHER SENATOR.
When Mr. Polk was inaugurated, Mr. Buchanan came to me and said: "Cameron, Mr. Polk has tendered me the position of Secretary of State in his cabinet; what would you do about it?" "Why ask me? You have already made up your mind to accept it?" "Then who will succeed me as Senator?" asked Mr. Buchanan. "I think Simon Cameron will be your successor," I replied. "Mr. Buchanan walked away and was never after my friend, although we never quarreled. I have always thought he had a candidate of his own."

THE DEATH OF GENERAL HARRISON.
The Whigs always believed that Mr. Tyler's treachery was the cause of their defeat. They were right. The party was a party of leaders rather than of principles. Success soon divided it into factions. Between the friends of Mr. Webster, Mr. Clay, and other leaders, there grew an implacable hostility that was only increased by the failure of the Whig Administration to satisfy the friends of each leader with offices.

BUCHANAN'S POLITICAL CAREER.
In 1829 I had been engaged in suppressing a mob, about twenty miles above Harrisburg, and was appointed adjutant general of the state soon afterward. This brought me into more prominent political relations with public men and I paid a great deal of attention to politics. Mr. Calhoun had been made vice president, and the Democratic party, which had been torn and divided over the question of the tariff and internal improvements, and defeated by the National Republicans upon that issue, was given new life by the popular Andrew Jackson. He was the most significant fact in the history of the South since the death of Mr. Tyler, a Democrat, who at the death of Mr. Harrison returned to his natural Democratic affiliation. The Whigs always believed that Mr. Tyler's treachery was the cause of their defeat. They were right. The party was a party of leaders rather than of principles. Success soon divided it into factions. Between the friends of Mr. Webster, Mr. Clay, and other leaders, there grew an implacable hostility that was only increased by the failure of the Whig Administration to satisfy the friends of each leader with offices.

BUCHANAN'S POLITICAL CAREER.
In 1829 I had been engaged in suppressing a mob, about twenty miles above Harrisburg, and was appointed adjutant general of the state soon afterward. This brought me into more prominent political relations with public men and I paid a great deal of attention to politics. Mr. Calhoun had been made vice president, and the Democratic party, which had been torn and divided over the question of the tariff and internal improvements, and defeated by the National Republicans upon that issue, was given new life by the popular Andrew Jackson. He was the most significant fact in the history of the South since the death of Mr. Tyler, a Democrat, who at the death of Mr. Harrison returned to his natural Democratic affiliation. The Whigs always believed that Mr. Tyler's treachery was the cause of their defeat. They were right. The party was a party of leaders rather than of principles. Success soon divided it into factions. Between the friends of Mr. Webster, Mr. Clay, and other leaders, there grew an implacable hostility that was only increased by the failure of the Whig Administration to satisfy the friends of each leader with offices.

BUCHANAN'S POLITICAL CAREER.
In 1829 I had been engaged in suppressing a mob, about twenty miles above Harrisburg, and was appointed adjutant general of the state soon afterward. This brought me into more prominent political relations with public men and I paid a great deal of attention to politics. Mr. Calhoun had been made vice president, and the Democratic party, which had been torn and divided over the question of the tariff and internal improvements, and defeated by the National Republicans upon that issue, was given new life by the popular Andrew Jackson. He was the most significant fact in the history of the South since the death of Mr. Tyler, a Democrat, who at the death of Mr. Harrison returned to his natural Democratic affiliation. The Whigs always believed that Mr. Tyler's treachery was the cause of their defeat. They were right. The party was a party of leaders rather than of principles. Success soon divided it into factions. Between the friends of Mr. Webster, Mr. Clay, and other leaders, there grew an implacable hostility that was only increased by the failure of the Whig Administration to satisfy the friends of each leader with offices.