

NABBY'S DREAM.

The Ex-postmaster of the Confederate X Roads has a Pleasant Dream but a Terrible Awakening.

CONFEDERATE X ROADS (Which is not the State of Kentucky), June 9, 1864.—I had a dream last night which I wish to share with you. I was in a room with a lot of people, and I was talking to a man who was a doctor. He was a very good doctor, and he was very kind to me. He was a very good doctor, and he was very kind to me. He was a very good doctor, and he was very kind to me.

PETROLEUM V. NABBY, (Despondent.)
Farmers Should Raise Turkeys.
I let me tell you I raise turkeys. I have six hens and a cock turkey. I have six hens and a cock turkey. I have six hens and a cock turkey. I have six hens and a cock turkey. I have six hens and a cock turkey.

THE BIRD SPOKE OUT.
The old gentleman had actually determined to be a candidate on a reform platform, and was buying up delegates at a rate which I never dreamed he was capable of. No matter what may be said by his admirers, they do not doubt of his ability, or his ability to do anything that he sets his mind to.

HE KIN SIGN CHECKS.
He is a good enough reform candidate for me. With him on your standard banner the Democracy will carry this State. Then the dream went on. I moved immediately to Injany, bekoz that ain't no money in being a Dimekrat in Kentucky.

THE BIRD SPOKE OUT.
Several weeks ago a lady riding in one of the cars of the Lexington and Louisville Railroad, between Pittsburg and Harrisburg, had the misfortune to lose a very valuable bracelet. While putting up the window of the car, it came unclasped and fell out.

THE BIRD SPOKE OUT.
I found the bracelet in a box under the seat. The lady, who had been sitting next to me, told me she had lost it. I was very glad to find it, and I returned it to her. She was very kind to me, and she gave me a nice little present.

Advice to Lean People.

"All the world," remarked Cassius, rolling a cigarette, "is against you the lean man. He it is against whom the hand of every man is turned. The great look down upon him and the lowly contemplate his meager proportions with ill-concealed scorn. The indignities to which he is subjected because of his lack of roundness are frightful."

"And you travel on your shape too," sympathetically murmured Casca, who is studying medicine. "Not denying to notice the well-known remark of Casca, continued: 'The other day I went into a clothing store in the Via Baxter, near the Senate House, to get a pair of trousers. 'Oh, yes, we can fit you just as good as tailor,' said the merchant. So I tried on a pair, and he said they fitted me like the skin in a bologna, whatever that may be. 'By the way,' he said to me, 'we have a pair of trousers for you, made by a tailor who was a great success in his business. He was a great success in his business. He was a great success in his business.'"

THE STANDARD OF WEIGHT.
In proportion to height which is recognized by most insurance companies as a basis for calculating expensiveness, a man 5 feet 11 inches in height to 175 pounds is a man 6 feet in height. The ratio of increase is not uniform. A man 5 feet 6 inches, for instance, should weigh 145 pounds; one 5 feet 7 inches, 148 pounds; one 5 feet 8 inches, 152 pounds, and so on up. The average weight of a healthy woman is about 20 pounds less than that of a healthy man. There may be and are variations from the figures I have given you even in health, but they are as near the average as can be expected.

Other men are naturally thin.
Others are thin because of their habits of life. These, when detrimental, must be corrected. Mental depression, excesses of any kind, and defective alimentation are among the most common causes of emaciation. A man should be in a measure governed in his choice of food by the work in which he is engaged. Muscular labor requires muscle-producing food, mental labor food rich in nutritive elements that support the brain. Two forces are constantly at work in the human body, one building up the other tearing down. When the human being reaches that stage where the tearing down is greater than the building up his days are numbered unless the destructive process can be checked in time. The majority of men, however, do not realize this. They eat and drink to excess, and the result is emaciation. The man who is naturally thin should be especially careful to get a good diet. He should eat a large amount of food, and he should eat it regularly. He should eat a large amount of food, and he should eat it regularly. He should eat a large amount of food, and he should eat it regularly.

Disciplining a Snake.
It is fair to snakes to state that, though I have often been scared by them, they have now and then amused and interested me. To give an instance in their favor: One day I was sitting with a friend in his veranda, when a rattlesnake, which was very tame and friendly, came up to us. It was very tame and friendly, and it was very tame and friendly. It was very tame and friendly, and it was very tame and friendly.

Large or Small Breeds.

From six months until the third year is the age of fowls most productive of eggs, although this rule may differ somewhat with different breeds. For the largest amount of eggs the small breeds are best, and in my experience the small breeds have the greatest endurance, and better constitutions, and do not put on superfluous flesh after arriving at maturity. Many suppose that egg-producing fowls are not good moulting birds. In this respect the quality and quantity vary greatly with age.

SPRING WITHOUT MOSS.

Readers of Hawthorne's "House of Seven Gables" will recall the pathos with which poor Clifford Frothingham, who had been unjustly imprisoned since his early manhood, said, after his release: "My life is Oh! give me any happiness." But that could be done only in part, as gleams of warm sunlight occasionally fall across the gloom of a New England autumn day.

In a letter to Messrs. Hancock & Co., Mr. L. H. Titus, of Pennington, N. J., says: "I have suffered untold misery from childhood from chronic disease of the bowels and diarrhoea, accompanied by great pain. I sought relief at the hands of physicians of every school, and used every patent and domestic remedy under the sun. I have at last found in PARKER'S Food a complete specific, preventive and cure. As you see, this medicine, which did for me what nothing else could do, is entitled to the credit of my happy days. I cheerfully and gratefully acknowledge the fact."
