

We are in receipt of the following special just as we go to press:

HARRISBURG, Jan'y 20, 1885.

SOMERSET HERALD: Cameron elected. 135 votes in the House, and 28 in the Senate. 6 kickers in all.

The death of Schuyler Colfax leaves but two remaining Vice Presidents—Hannibal Hamlin, of Maine, and William A. Wheeler, of New York.

The men who shed their blood or lost their limbs in fighting the rebels, will learn with some surprise that Jeff Davis was not a traitor.

The California Senate and the Illinois House are both in a deadlock. Each is made up of an equal number of Republicans and Democrats, and there is no telling when they will be able to elect Senators.

The Grey was on deck again last week in the United States Senate, on Tuesday of last week, when that body was compelled to listen to speeches eulogistic of that much maligned "patriot" Jeff Davis.

If Jeff Davis is a patriot, then it follows that the boys who wore the blue are traitors. What do the old "Vets" think of that kind of talk coming up from the Senate chamber of the country they thought they had helped to save?

Now that it has been demonstrated by the opponents of Senator Cameron, in a square stand-up fight of their own seeking, that the Republicans, by a large majority, desire his retention in the Senate, it is to be hoped that personal warfare upon him will cease, and harmony be suffered to reign in the party.

The Solid South, which elected Cleveland, celebrated its return to power with a defense of Davis on the floor of the Senate. The Southern Brigadiers emphatically denied that Jeff Davis was a traitor, and having been traitors themselves, we suppose they know. But if they do, how dreadfully misinformed the Northern mind is on this subject.

The Independents who, in advance of the caucus, boasted so loudly of their strength, and of the great surprise in store for the supporters of Senator Cameron, must feel like the little boy who was told that he could not go on an excursion, as he "was too little." He pompously replied "I am a big boy." Upon the return home he begged to be carried, but his friends told him that he had boasted that he was "a big boy." He replied "I was in the morning, but I am a little boy now."

A significant result of the late Democratic victory was displayed in the United States Senate last week, when half a dozen Southern Brigadiers took the floor and championed Jeff Davis, "outgoing him as a patriot of the first water, Senator Lamar giving notice in conclusion that "No man shall call Jefferson Davis a traitor in my presence without meeting a vigorous and stern denial from me."

It is from gentlemen entertaining views of patriotism like these, that Mr. Cleveland will be obliged to select a portion of his constitutional advisers.

In the Republican caucus for nominating a candidate for U. S. Senator which was held at Harrisburg on Thursday last, J. Donald Cameron received 116 votes, James A. Beaver 39, William D. Kelley 5, Galusha A. Grow 5, George Shiras 1, and W. J. Hulings 1. The nomination of Mr. Cameron was then made unanimous. The caucus was in session several hours, and the majority endured good naturedly the fierce philippic of Lee, Emery, and one or two others, against Mr. Cameron. It was voted, not talk, that counted, as the result proved. Mr. Cameron will receive the full Republican vote of both Houses, save perhaps half a dozen of the most rampant Independents.

The action of several Democratic Senators, in voluntarily coming forward to defend Jeff Davis and declaring him a patriot, should give the Nation pause. Benedict Arnold has always been held as one of the most infamous men that ever lived, because of his attempt to betray his country, and yet his infamy pales in the presence of that of the later traitor of Jefferson Davis. Millions of people in the south may regard him as a patriot—and presumably they do, or their representatives in the Senate would not defiantly so assert—but that only proves their very low conception of patriotism. If Jeff Davis, who betrayed his country, is to be esteemed a patriot, what place in public estimation are the men who saved their country to hold? And if men occupying the highest positions under our government volunteer, in the council chambers of the nation, to defend a man who must go down in history as the companion in infamy of Benedict Arnold, what hope is there for the future of the Nation?

In view of these declarations of esteem for Davis and of approval of his treason, how can the counter-declarations made by these people, of love for the Union, be received as true? And with this open denunciation in favor of a most flagrant traitor, it will be very strange if the loyal people of this country are not convinced that the return of the Democracy to power is a reactionary movement in favor of rebels and of rebellion.

POLITICAL HISTORY cannot show anything more farcical than the "kick against Cameron."

Two years ago a few personal enemies of Senator Cameron organized a bolt in the Republican party, defeated General Beaver because he was Mr. Cameron's friend, and turned the State over to the Democrats, all for the purpose, as they alleged, of "unloading Cameron." Mr. Cameron, as a good Republican, pursued the even tenor of his way, supporting party men and measures, and he and his friends helped swell the immense majority in this State for Blaine and Logan. But Blaine and Logan were not the only candidates voted for. Among others, every district in the State elected members of the Assembly and one-half of them members of the Senate, and every intelligent voter knew that this Legislature would elect a United States Senator. It is only fair to assume, and in the absence of proof to the contrary it is not straining a point to allege, that legislators were chosen with an understanding or knowledge of how they would vote on the Senatorial question. As the legislative session approached, the same men and the same journals that helped to slaughter the gallant Beaver, for the alleged purpose of "unloading Cameron," again commenced their personal warfare on Mr. Cameron, and some of them attempted to bulldoze members, while others tried to instigate another "bolt." When the nominating caucus assembled, not being able to persuade one of their so-called Independent brethren to make a square issue against Mr. Cameron, the honored name of General Beaver was thrust forward against his own protest by the men who had formerly defeated him both for Senator and Governor, and he received but thirty-nine votes to one hundred and sixteen for Cameron. Of the thirty-nine votes cast for General Beaver, a large proportion were given him as a mark of personal esteem or friendship or preference, notwithstanding his positive assertion that he was not a candidate, and these gentlemen will all earnestly support Mr. Cameron as the choice of the overwhelming majority of the caucus. But what an amusing and farcical ending is this of the mighty resolve of a few disgruntled politicians to "unload Cameron." A state scribbler, a party betrayed, a superb soldier and stainless gentleman, in a fruitless attempt to gratify personal revenge. Having again tried conclusions with Mr. Cameron and his friends, and again being worsted, we hope, for the sake of the future welfare of the party in this State, that the lesson will have a lasting impression. Let us have peace!

There were fifty votes cast against Cameron in the Republican caucus, as follows: For Beaver—Senators Aull, Hood, Lee, Longenecker; Representatives Barton, Marshall, Ashcom, Calhoun, Edmunds, Shaw, Leighton, Hartman, Kaler, Stables, Fetters, Nichols, Beach, Fuller, Bates, Chadwick, J. B. Robinson, Brown, Osborn, Boyer, Giles, Lowry, Elkin, Stephenson, Divan, Hughes, Magee, Fort, Northrup, Stewart, Faust, Hackett, Phillips, Morgan, Riddle, Johnston—39.

For Kelley—Senators Emery and MacFarland; Representatives Hard-enbury, Vodge, Wayne—5.

For Grow—Representatives Cox, Ross, True, Packer, Criswell—5.

For Shiras—Hulings—1.

The Philadelphia delegation went solid for Cameron, with the exception of Vodge. The Allegheny delegation, with the exception of Fox and Barton, voted the same way. Butler, Bedford, Crawford, and Indiana County delegation went solid for Beaver.

GLEASINGS.

The generous offer of Mr. Vanderbilt and the high sense of personal honor which dictated the refusal of General and Mrs. Grant have seldom been paralleled. The consideration with which the gift would be made in almost any case have compelled acceptance; but the keen sense of self-respect which has characterized Mrs. Grant's conduct throughout her husband's tribulations has been strong enough to resist even such a generous generosity. The heroism of the General has been rivalled by the social heroism of his noble wife.

A good many Democratic editors are aspiring to become postmasters under Mr. Cleveland. Here is the Democratic editor out in Arkansas talks, who seems to have been wrongly charged with seeking the office: "The miserable scoundrel who edits our contemporary is lying as usual. We don't want the postoffice, but we are in the hands of our friends, and by the Eternal I'll see that we get it, whether we like it or not."

Earthquakes and Storms.

MADRID, January 14.—Earthquake tremors were felt yesterday at Torrox, Sanlúcar, Almoron, and Algebrós. The storm in the Southern provinces still continues, and the rivers are greatly swollen. The sufferings of the people who have been rendered homeless by the earthquakes are intense. According to the official record the number of persons killed by the earthquakes in Granada was 65 and the number injured 1480.

It is estimated that $50,000,000 has been squandered in trying to solve the problem of perpetual motion. It is a good thing to keep a man home nights.

RELEASING THE GRANT.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 14.—The Senate this morning passed Senator Edmunds' bill authorizing the President to appoint to the retired list one person who has occupied the position of general, commanding any of the armies of the United States, or general-in-chief of the United States Army. He moved to amend by adding "with the rank and full pay of such general or general-in-chief, as the case may be."

The Democratic Conundrum.

Still the main question is, "What is a Democrat?" All the Democratic newspapers are at present engaged in expressing opinions on that subject, and no two agree. The Standard, for example, is quite sure that a Democrat must be in favor of a strict construction of the Constitution. "On all other questions," it says, "Democrats may fairly differ without impugning their title to appear the party standard."

Now it is interesting to observe that this little discussion takes place after the election. These people first support their party, and then try to find out what it is. They first elect a President, and then set themselves to investigate him, and send out exploring expeditions to Albany and ask each other with what breath and corrugated brow, "What does the man believe, and what sort of a man is he, anyhow?"

Having succeeded in electing the great politician what is left to the President, and intrusting the power for four years to a so-called party which does not agree with itself at all on the main question of what it is for, these people have one comfort: they have secured for themselves a conundrum to amuse them for the next four years. More fascinating and more perplexing than the "fifteen puzzle," more enduring, because not likely to get settled until Cleveland's term expires; and more interesting because all the offices depend on it; this pleasant conundrum is to occupy the attention of the supporters of the Democratic party, as long as they have power to tolerate government by the so-called Democratic party—N. Y. Sun.

Cameron's Triumph.

HARRISBURG, January 16.—The Republican Senatorial caucus was held yesterday afternoon. Senator Smith, of Philadelphia, was president. Thirty Senators and one hundred and thirty-five Representatives were present. A number of propositions were presented and an animated debate of two hours followed, with little reference to the pending questions but mainly devoted to criticism upon the public acts of Senator Cameron by his opponents, and explanations of these in remarks eulogistic of the Senator by his supporters, who, as indicated by the frequent bursts of applause, clearly outnumbered their antagonists. Finally the following resolution, offered by Cooper, was adopted, without a division.

The Washington County Boom.

PITTSBURG, Jan. 15.—The oil excitement at Washington, Pa., still continues. A stranger secured a bottle of oil from the Gantz well and made his retreat, having eluded the vigilance of the guard. There is no disposition on the part of the owners of the well to torpedo it and test its ultimate capacity. A derrick has been located on the Gordon farm near the town, and drilling is fast proceeding. The country will soon be dotted with derricks, and several geologists now in the field predict a big gusher in the Franklin Township.

A Duel on Horseback.

BAINSBRIDGE, Ga., January 14.—A report comes from Calhoun County that two men, named Joel Shuman and Thomas Ginn, fought a duel on horseback to settle an old quarrel. The combatants were armed with pistols, and the fight was a long and desperate one. Ginn was the victor, and the loser was severely wounded.

Governor Martin on Prohibition.

TOPEKA, Jan. 14.—Governor Martin's inaugural message was presented to the Legislature today. Regarding prohibition, the Governor says the people by their vote adopted the constitutional prohibition amendments, and it is the duty of the Legislature to make laws as effective to that end. He recommends the repeal of the provision in the existing statute governing physicians and druggists as antagonistic to the purpose of the amendment.

Mr. Lowell's Headquarters on Fire.

LONDON, January 14.—The offices occupied by the American Legation in this city narrowly escaped destruction by fire this afternoon. The building in which Mr. Lowell's official headquarters are located were set on fire through some as yet unascertained cause. By means of a prompt arrival of a brigade of the fire department was brought to the scene in early control of the flames and through its strenuous exertion the buildings were saved, the rooms occupied by the Legation escaping without any serious damage.

A Wife Feeder's Husband's Fleets to the Morgue.

UTICA, N. Y., Jan. 16.—William Druse, a Farmer of moderate circumstances, living in the town of Warren, Herk Co., N. Y., has been missing for a month. Suspicions of murder were caused by a quarrel between him and his wife. For several days it has been rumored that Druse had been murdered by his wife, his body cut and burned and the bones cast into a swamp, as he was ordered by Druse to do in a newspaper.

The Crime Confessed.

The District Attorney and Coroner are conducting an examination into the death of William Druse, Farmer murdered by his wife in the town of Warren, four miles from Richfield Springs, Frank Gates, aged 14, nephew of Druse, living in the family made an artless confession showing that the crime was committed December 18, and that Mrs. Druse confessed to the crime on the second day, and aid her to dispose of the body. They boiled it and fed the flesh to hogs and burned the bones, the ashes of which were buried in a swamp. The boy says the woman cut her husband's head off and put it first in the stove. The Druses were more or less injured, but no one has yet been reported fatally hurt. Great damage is reported to have been done to farm property generally.

Robbery at McKeesport.

A telegram from McKeesport says: Last evening William Wampler left the door of Neil & Wampler at the usual time, having locked the safe and put everything in good shape. On going into the office this morning he was surprised at finding the office door had been sprung open, the safe door blown off, and the cash receptacle robbed of $1700 in mortgages and $600 in bills of property. The marks left show plainly that those engaged had some former experience. There is no clue to the perpetrators of the burglary.

Beaten, Caged and Robbed.

SCOTSDALE, Jan. 15.—Christ Keck, proprietor of the Vance House, at Everson, and his brother Adam, were assaulted and robbed last night. Adam occupies a sleeping apartment in a house adjoining the hotel. The brothers were in the room, awaiting his coming. About 11 o'clock he went in and was attacked, beaten insensible, gagged and bound and robbed of about $20, after which the robbers went to Christ's room, where he and his wife were sitting, beat him and took a large trunk containing bed clothing, which they also carried off. The Kecks' money.

The War on Double Headers.

FORT WAYNE, January 14.—The striking brakeman of the Pittsburgh Fort Wayne and Chicago Railroad against the system of running two trains of freight in one train with two locomotives and one crew, styled the double-headed system, remains unchanged. Only one freight train, a local bound east, left this city today, which eluded the strikers by running through the city at a high rate of speed without stopping. The strikers could not board the train to disable it. The yards are blocked with freight trains, which the officials are unable to move. At noon Superintendent C. D. Law himself unspiked and turned a switch to allow a freight train to pull out, but the strikers immediately replaced and spiked it and would not allow the train to leave. No more express or passenger trains have as yet been molested. Superintendent Law holds a conference with a committee from the strikers this afternoon.

An Express Train Jumps the Track.

WILKESBARRE, Pa., January 15.—The Buffalo Fast Express train from New York, jumped the track at Stony Creek, near White Haven, this afternoon. The accident was caused by a misplaced switch. The freight, seeing the danger ahead, jumped from the engine and was instantly killed.

The Recent Southern Cyclone.

CHATTANOOGA, Tenn., January 13.—A special to the Times from Collinsville, Ala., gives fuller details of the terrible cyclone in Alabama on Sunday night. The residence of Noble Galbreath, about four miles west of Collinsville, together with all his farm houses, located at the base of Sand Mountain, was completely destroyed. His youngest child was instantly killed by flying timbers, his body being terribly mangled. A young man living with the family was seriously and probably fatally wounded. The family had retired an hour before the storm appeared. No other member of the family received any injury. Every article of household goods was blown away, not even wearing apparel for the grief-stricken family being left. Three miles further off two other residences were completely blown away. One of them contained thirteen occupants all of whom were more or less injured, but no one has yet been reported fatally hurt. Great damage is reported to have been done to farm property generally.

Blown 75 feet in Air.

SYRACUSE, N. Y., Jan. 13.—At the Toway Process Soda Ash Works, three miles west of this city, at 4 o'clock this morning, a large distilling vessel, weighing four tons, exploded and was blown seventy-five feet in the air. It landed inside the building, carrying away the entire roof of the large main building, wrecking the machinery generally and doing damage estimated at $40,000. Fifty men were at work at the time. Twelve men were consequently injured by scalding and the flying missiles.

West Snowstorm of the Winter.

CHICAGO, January 16.—Special dispatches from all parts of Iowa, Wisconsin and Illinois indicate the prevalence of one of the worst snow storms of the winter. In Iowa the snow is reported to be badly drifted, and in a number of instances the trains have been abandoned. The east bound passenger train on the Illinois Central road, due at Dubuque this morning, was abandoned at Sioux City, owing to huge snow drifts and high winds. Snow ploughs and gangs of men are at work on all the lines.

Another Dynamic Outrage.

LONDON, January 15.—The Town Hall at Westminster, in Whitehall, was partially wrecked by an explosion of dynamite last night. Several houses in the neighborhood were badly shaken, many windows shattered and several persons thrown to the ground by the violence of the shock. The report of the explosion was heard for two miles around the Town Hall, and great excitement was caused until it was ascertained that no one had been seriously hurt.

Flags at Half-Mast for Colfax.

WASHINGTON, January 16.—The President has ordered that the flags on the executive departments in Washington be placed at half-mast to-morrow, in respect to the memory of ex-Vice President Colfax, whose funeral takes place on that day.

CAMERON WINS.

THE REPUBLICAN CAUCUS at Harrisburg. THE INDEPENDENT STRENGTH SHOWN TO BE VERY SLIGHT DESPITE THE GREAT FIGHT MADE BY SOME OF THEM.

HARRISBURG, Jan. 15.—The republican Senatorial caucus was held this afternoon. Senator Smith, of Philadelphia, was president. Thirty Senators and 135 representatives were present. A number of propositions were presented and an animated discussion of two hours followed, with little reference to the pending questions, but mainly devoted to criticisms upon the public acts of Senator Cameron by his opponents, and explanations of these in remarks eulogistic of the senator by his supporters, who, as indicated by the frequent bursts of applause, clearly outnumbered their antagonists. Finally the following resolution, offered by Cooper, was adopted, without a division.

Resolved, that the nominations for United States senator, equally with other nomination for national, state and county officers publicly made in accordance with party usage, are binding upon the representatives of the party and especially upon those participating therein.

Cure for Piles.

Piles are frequently preceded by a sense of weight in the back, loins and lower part of the abdomen, causing the patient to suppose he has some affection of the kidneys or neighboring organs. At times, symptoms of indigestion are present, as flatulency, uneasiness of the stomach, etc. A moisture, like perspiration, producing a very disagreeable itching, after getting warm, is a common attendant. Blind, bleeding and itching Piles yield at once to the application of Dr. Bosanko's Pile Remedy, which acts directly upon the parts affected, absorbing the Tumors, allaying the intense itching, and effecting a permanent cure. Price 50 cents. Address, The Dr. Bosanko Medicine Co., Piqua, O. Sold by C. N. BOYD, Druggist, Somerset, Pa. dec. 3-ly.

The Mormons.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 14.—The census of 1880 contained the only reliable record of the number of Mormons in the United States, the previous inquiries have elicited information only in regard to the number of churches, producing a very disagreeable state of affairs. From these inquiries it appears that in 1850 there were 16 church organizations and 10,880 members; in 1860, 24 organizations and 13,500 members; in 1870, 189 organizations and 87,838 members; and in 1880, 267 organizations and 165,232 members. The actual membership of the Mormon Church was, according to the census of 1880, was 79,776.
