"COUTNRY LOVE."

O, "Country Love!" so sweet a story-To Nature true, portrayed with art— Shall be rehearsed till Age is heary, And find repose in every heart.

As some bright sunset glow at even A day of storms may supplement, So is, in thy perusal given, A solace sure for discontent

Blest " Country Love !" thy repetition Has swept the chords of Memory true And woke, as if by intuition. The sweetest strains love ever knew.

For, as in some entrancing vision Of trembling spirit sheen, appears The light that made the world elysian, And brightens still Life's changeful years Love in a cottage, pure and tender,

In sterling worth may far eclipse The careless vows in halls of splendor That fall from giddy Fashion's lips. In vain the city belie's fligiation With subtle heart shaft bumble him Whose heart revives the radiation

Of" Country Love"-no longer dim. Affection truest comes unbidden, As softly as if angels stepped Into the soul's recesses hidden And thrilled our being-while we slept.

O, "Country Love!" bewildering fancy ! The picture radiant we see and dream, in wild extravagancy. Of" Reuben Grey and Percy Lee."
