The present spring has so far brought an unusually small number of frosts likely to be injurious to the truit crops on the Atlantic seaboard. The severest of them occurred before the warm weather came and a decided impulse has been given to vegetation. This fact is interesting as confirming the theory that spring frosts are few when at the opening of the vernal season the snowfall remaining on the soil is scanty, as was the case this year in the Atlantic States. "When in Europe, two years ago, I tried hard to buy the receipt of this very remedy. I also told Col. Theobold to cet it for me at almost any price; but neither of us succeeded. I, myself, suffered with Rheumatian for years and spent hundreds of dollars, but never gret any permanent relief until I tried this. Since then, tover two years now! I have not suffered the least. LIGHT BRAHMAS.

HONESDALE, Ps., May 6 .- The last merchantable tree in the vast hemlock forests that have supplied the mills on the Dyberry Creek, one of the tributaries of the Laxawaxen River, for more than a quarter of a century, has been cut, and on Sat-urday the veteran river pilot, "Bill" Kimble, drove the last log down the stresm that will ever be run to the mills. He also drove the first log that was cut in the great forest, in 1860, and has never missed a day's log driving on the creek in all the intervening time. This tract of hemlock was nearly the last of any extent in Wayne county, whose forests ten years ago were yielding 100,-000,000 feet of that lumber a year.

Fifteen years ago more leather was any other county in the Union. The disappearance of the hemlock has caused all but two or three of the tanneries to be abandoned. All who were engaged in the business made large fortunes, and nearly all of them are now engaged in the same business in Elk, Ferest, Warren, and other western counties, where the greatest bemlock forest in the world still densely cover the hills.

The tanning industry of those counties now supplies almost the entire sole-leather product of the world. The cutting away of the hemlock woods in Wayne county has had a disastrous effect on the water courses, many large streams having become almost entirely dry within the past decade.
