Courtesy at Home.

One is forgibly reminded, in going from place to place, how small and seemingly trivial often are the things which go to make or mur the comfort and peace of home. In some households there is a genuine good will and kindness which only works out half its mission, for the reason that it does not express itself in little courtesies of speech and action, These are more important than some of our basy men and women may realize. The ready "thank you," "if you please," etc., at the table and elsewhere, the quiet "excuse me," when obliged to pass directly before or inconveniently near another; the loving "good night" and cheery "good morning," although little things are helps in making a happy home. Courtesy is but the ready overflow of kindness and good will to all, and is, therefore, but a natural expression which costs nothing, but which often tractive to old and young.-Detroit Free

Cutting Timber in August.

Experience has shown us that the best time to cut timber for posts, mils or stakes is in August. The bark will then come off readily, and the wood becomes harder and endures longer than if cut at any other season. Hickory never makes a good post or stake, as it rots rapidly in the ground or on it, and if cut when the bark adheres, will soon rot, or likely be cut to pieces before it can rot by worms. But if cut in August very few, if any trees, make a more durable rail for off the ground. The bark drops off, and the wood becomes so hard that it "jingles" when struck, while the worms do not attack it. Hickory rails, made from trees cut in August and kept off the ground, will last for fifty years. White oak makes a durable rail or post increased at least fifty per cent, by cuting in August. "Pin oak" is untit for posts, or for mils either, on or off the ground, when the tree has died, and is entirely unfit for posts, and almost unfit for rails if cut when the san is not flowing : but mils made from a pin oak tree, cut in August, will last at least twenty years off the ground. What is true of pin oak is The Best and Cheapest true of red chm. If cut in August it is as durable as bickory or white oak, as long as it is not set in or on the ground. White elm is fit for firewood only, no matter at what time it is cut, and this is true of wild cherry also. With but few exceptions the gain by cutting in August is sufficient to compensate for cutting at that time. It is not necessary that the that time. It is not necessary that the rails or posts be split out then. The trees and Farm Harress or earth. Price only fifteen may be felled only, and the further work may be felled only, and the further work be put off until cooler weather. But it is or address better to split the trunks into mils or posts for later use as soon as felled; the wood will then season rapidly, and the highest point of durability is attained,-American Agriculturia.
