When the husband went home to supper he found the house dismantled, all the furniture having been taken away. Adams is anxious to recover his daughter, and is willing to let his wife and the property go. He asserts that on election day he informed his wife of his intention to vote the Republican ticket and due notified him that if he did there would be a vacancy in the household as she would not live with any one but a Democrat. Adims said to-day :-- " When my wife found I had voted the Republican ticket she quietly made preparations to leave, but said nothing to me.
