Got Up and Danced Pirrisauro, Feb. 17 - A miraculous cure, unaccountable except by supernatural agency of the wonderful power exercised over the body by a strong mental delusion, was wrought this afternoon at Banksville, about one and one-half miles Southwest of the city, on the person of Miss Maggie Beadling, the young daughter of a conl miner of that place. In a trance last October she claimed to have seen and conversed with the Lord and then received a divine communication to the effect that at 2 r. u., on February 17, she would be raised from the invalid bed on which she had lain for years and be allowed to walk. This morning the young girl was patiently awaiting the happy hour when she would be able to rise, and to-day friends and neighbors who knew of the preparations to receive the healing power of the Almighty gathered at the humble home of Mis Beadling's father.

The most inportant was the second reading of Mr. True's ank bill. In view of the fact that the newspapers had published certain articles con ing the same, with anonymous letters looking towards bribery, considerable excitement prevailed. A postponement was asked for, but was not agreed to. Several endments were suggested, but voted down The House felt determined to pass the bill just as it stood, and it is thought a committee to investigate the charges will be appoint ed. The bill has some merit, and under the umstances will likely pass the House. It is regarded as inquisitorial and has some other defects, and will hardly pass the Senate and become a law.
