"Little Dandy" the boys called him. He joined our company in Vicksburg just before the siege, and none of us felt enough interest in him to make any inquiries. His extreme youth (he was gout 16) would have excited our sympathy under other circumstances, but the war-worn veterans in the trenches had no use for the curled darlings of the parlor, and Little Dandy's appearance was against him. The lad were the gray uniform of a private, but it was of the very finest material finer than anything worn by the Generals. His buttons had an unsoldierly glitter. He sported white handkerchiefs, carried a pocket mirror, and every morning he combed and curled his golden locks until they looked like a girl's tresses. "Hello, Little Dandy!" yelled the soldiers, whenever the young fellow passed them. To this rough salutation he always responded with a bow and a smile, but his soft ways did not win favor. When we met in town we passed him by without notice, and in camp we let him alone. Little Dandy was proud after a fashion-too proud to notice the slights heaped upon him. He went through the NY routine duties without complaint, but nothing could induce him to abandon his pocket mirror and his fancy toilets. The siege was well under way and we were no better acquainted with little Dandy than at first. He shared our meals of moldy corn bread and mule meat without a murmur, and it must be admitted that this raised him in our estimation. But we still had to learn what a true heart beat behind those glittering buttons. An angle of the enemy's works was dangerously close to our intrenchments and we had to keep our heads well sheltered. When we raised a hat on the muzzle of a muzket it was invariably riddled with bullets. One morning we found our men being picked off by an unseen sharpshooter at the rate of five or six an hour. This astonished us, because we were all keeping under cover, and the men who were killed all occupied welf protected positions.

Where was the sharpshooter? This was the question appermost in every mind. We were not long in satisfying ourselves on this point. Just outside of the angle of the Federal works stood a giant oak, whose leafy top afforded an admirable covert for an active rifleman. A vigilant scrutiny convinced us that the man who was doing such deadly work in our ranks was concealed in this tree. To reach it he must have made his way there during the night, and he would have to remain there all day. But we could not stand it even one day. His aim was so unerring federate bit the dust. We tried a rattling discharge of musketry, but a moment lat-

The yellowing of paper, according to Prof. Wiesner, is due to an oxidation deermined by light, especially by the more refrangible rays. It is greater in wood than in rag paper, and in moist than in dry air. The electric light, rich in the more refrangible rays, has a greater dissoloring effect in libraries than gas. stopped. A convenient contrivance. A less restricted diet in athletic training is being favored in England, and, instead of the large proportion of meatformerly rigidly insisted on, physiologists now consider a variety of food essential to the best results. The Cambridge boat crew, in training for the race with Oxford, were this year permitted to eat fish, puddings and deserts, though still forbidden sugar with pastry. How much influence do fish exert on each other? W. A. Barter, in speaking recently on "Marine and Fresh-Water Fishes," mentions a shoal of carp following a single one acting as a leader, which conducted them a long distance to a considerable amount of food. Trout some times seem to follow a leader which swims along at the head of a tribe. Both fresh-water and salt-water fish appear to show the same characteristic. Herring and bass have frequently been observed following an apparently-chosen lead-

It is a fact worth noting the no comet, so far as known, has ever came in contact with the earth, or mingled its substance with the earth's atmosphere. The nearest approach ever observed was Lexell's comet of 1770, which approaced to within 1,400,000 miles of the earth, and subtended an angle of 2 deg. 23 minutes, the largest apparent diameter yet observed in any comet. It has not been seen since 1770, though an orbit was computed for it of only five and a half years, and astronomers are of the opinon that perturbation by Jupiter may have changed its orbit to one of long period. Mrs. Mackey's Jewels.

Mrs. Mackey's latest acquisition in the ine of exquisite gems is a sapphire of brilliant line, not quite the largest of its kind extant, but nevertheless one of the most valuable. Its former possessor, a Russian Prince whom necessity drove to a separation with the gem, looked long and lovingly at it before consenting to let it go, but the $150,000 which the bonanza king's wife offered for the bit of stone finally overcame reluctance and the gem is hers. Of this lady's mateldess jewelry much has been aiready writen, but the fame of all her other possessions has been eclipsed for the time by the set of oral ornaments, literally incrusted with diamonds, which she has also added to her store. In this arrangement an oirfice of about It is the only Wagon made that has this improvement. It avoids the necessity one inch in diameter is made in the cov- of taking off the wheels to grease, as in the old style; by simply forming a cap the wagon can be olled in less than five infinites. This Wagon seen to be fully appreciated, and parties wishing to buy will do well to see it

Every Wagon Fully Insured.

In offering this make of Wagon to the public, will my I used the same make of Wagon for five years when freighting across the Rocky Mountains, over roads that were almost impassable, and they always stood the test. I first atranted in saying I believe them the Best Wagon on wheels.
