Terrible Fate of a School Teacher. RENOVA, PA., April 1 .- A report has reached this point of a brutal murder committed four or five miles south of Curwensville, in Clearfield county, but the particulars, owing to the distance of the point from any telegraph office, are hard to obtain.

Miss Lizzie Eastman, a young lady teaching school in one of the farming districts of Clearfield county, was found deaq in the school bouse last Tuesday evening. Her ongue had been cut from its roots and lay eside her body. The school had been dismissed as usual at 4 o'clok and the pupils left their teacher alone in the school house. In the right hand of the dead woman was found a lead pencil and on the floor near her dead body was written in her handwriting the revolting particulars of her death.

DYING AS SHE TOLD BEE TALE. Two tramps had entered the school hous after the pupils had been dismissed. They verpowered and outraged her, afterwards ng her tongue with a knife and ther fled, leaving her for dead. She recovered sufficiently to write on the school house floor and had succeeded in giving the above par iculars, with description of her assailants, when she grew too weak to write more, and

The affair has created a great sensation here, where the young lady was well and fa orably known. Miss Eastman was a remarkably beautiful girl, but of a most fearless against tarrying too long after school, as the ramps were not infrequent in the neighbor hood. She always laughed at such remarks and asserted that she was not afraid of being

As soon as the body was found, a posse was organized to go in pursuit of the villains who had murdered her, but so many hours had elapsed since the deed was committed that the men made good their escape. Funeral of Chief Justice Waite.

Toleno, O., March 20.-The special train bearing the remains of Chief Justice Waite rolled into the Pennsylvania depot at 10 o'clock and the distinguished company of the funeral cortege alighted. The casket conning the body was removed from the speial car and placed in the hearse and the funeral cortege proceeded to the residence of Hon. Richard Waite, a brother of the deceased. A tremendous crowd gathered in the vicinity of the residence and awaited the arrival of the funeral cortege. The approve of of the processings outside the was borne into the house by a squad of Toledo cadets. Upon it lay the beautiful wreath from President and Mrs. Cleveland and two pairs of creased palms, crossed and fastened together with white satin ribbons. The room was filled with a large number of beautiful floral tributes from many local friends of the deceased. Among them was rlington engineers and firemen were firm a bank of flowers with the letters, "Final Decree." Another large volume, with the word, "Constitution" upon its floral page. The latter design was from the Lucas County Bar Association. Another handsome tribute was from the Chinese Legation in Washington, and was one of the most beautiful in the large number. After the casket was placed in the parlor the pall bearers, cadets and others retired, and the doors were closely guarded by two colored servants of the late Chief Justice. VIEWING THE REMAINS.

The remains, having been privately viewed by Mrs. Waite and other members of the family, at 12:30 were removed to the Guildrooms of the Trinity Church. Shortly after I o'clock the lid was removed and the face of the dead exposed to view. The features were a trifle pinched in appearance, but wore the same kindly, benignant expression which was their chief characteristic in life. The doors were opened to admit the crowd of people which packed the adjacent street, The cadets were on duty to maintain proper order and keep the crowd moving as rapidly as circumstances would permit. So dense was the throng of people eager to take a last look at the revered dead that it was ible at times for the street cars to force a passage. The doors were closed at 245 and many thousands were disappointed obtaining a view of the remains. The asket was inclosed and removed to the church adjoining. The chancel, pulpit and stalls for the choristers were heavily draped in black. The lectern bore a fine wreath of lilies, sent from Washington. The pulpit bore a fragrant bed of Bermuda lilies. The family pew of the Waites, which he oc cupied for so many years, was beautifully black. It was sel apart for the use of mourners during the funeral services.

Frequently the relief party were driven back by smoke and poisonous gasses, which rushed out the opening in dense volumes. Two or three of those who composed the succoring party were overpowered by the smoke and, being forgotten in the excitement, were left to

A TERRIBLE DEATH-LIST. It is impossible at this hour to ascertain the names of the victims, but it is feared that the list will be even longer than at first stated. A number of workmen who were at first supposed to have left the mine in reality prolonged their labors and were among those whom the shock killed or injured. A long row of corpses near the opening of the mine tells the history of one of the saddest necidents of the year. Some are injured beyond recognition and others are being identified by the clothing they wore. Several had no friends in this vicinity and will have to be buried at the public expense.

Rich Hill is a little town of Bates county south of here, on the Missouri Pacific Railroad. It is the centre of the coal mining country of that region. Mine No. 8, in which the explosion occurred, is situated a few miles out of town.

Sidney Hale, of North Adams, Mass. When it first saw the light the child weighed only only one and a half pounds. By keeping the child well wrapped in cotton and flannels its life was saved. The question of how to feed the infant was all important, too, and food was given, a drop at a time, from a medicine drop. This plan was kept up for about a month before the tiny being was able to take nourishment from a bottle. The child is now three months old, well and active, and weighs six pounds. The parents of

There is nothing new in the matter of the vacancy on the Supreme Bench. The general impression here is that the President will take his time in making the appoint ment, as there is now no urgent demand for the filling of the vacancy.
