strength will permit in bracing the platform

The danger of gorging himself after his long fast is now past, and he cats with relish and avidity all the food that is passed in to him. At six o'clock last Thursday evening John Anderson, of Johnstown, was still in the well. Last night he had a chill and complained of feeling co.d, but by rubbing his limbs and getting circulation started he soon rallied. The new well is down 58 feet, and the diggers are at work tunneling to the old well. They think they will strike in about three feet below the man. From this tunne they aim to let the boards extend out nearly across the old well so as to form a platform. Anderson says that if they do this he can come to them. The great danger will be that when they strike the old well it may give way and let sand in on the man and smother him instantly. They talk with him frequently, and he gives them his views as FERGUSON, DAVID, County Clerk and ex- to the best way to work.
