On the occassion of Prince Bismarck's last speech in the reichstag Count Herbert, his eldest son, now secretary of state in the foreign office, kept the cognac bottle in his own hands, while a group of high functionaries divided the rest of the work between them. Nothing could exceed for downright comicality the busy scene that was enacted behind the chancellor's back during the whole of the speech. The difficulty with which the glass mixers had continually to contend was that of securing the requisite degree of dillution. First one would taste and find the compound too weak, so that more cognac had to be added. Then auother would pronounce it too strong, and the adition of seltzer water was the con-

More than once the chancellor, hard to please, refused to drink the draught so carefully prepared, and one of the solemn group had to drain the glass, so that the blending operation might begin again. Probably a dozen and a half small glasses were handed to Prince Bismarck full and statesman's mind. That was a high record to reach, but then the occasion was momentous and the chancellor's throat was unusually troublesome .- Truple Bar, Shiloh's Catarrh Remedy.

The Playground and the School

Two generations of flabby muscles will obliterate intellectual superiority and courage. One generation will impair it.

Of course, the influence of either parent may be peculiarly adverse, and this may account for the more remarkable cases of degeneracy. Take the case, then, of an exceptional intellect in a weak body. It is the fruit of phylcisal energy in parents and it is the end unless the weak youth is strengthened by regular physical exercise. The application of these truths is first of all to the public schools, and it Pa. has been shown by positive experiment that children playing four hours and stu-
