UNHAPPY ENGLAND.

T. C. CRAWFORD, THE COMMERCIAL DEVIL, TELLS A MOVING TALE OF BRITISH TROUBLES.

Oath in Cincinnati Enquirer.

I met here Mr. T. C. Crawford, whose name is well known to all newspaper readers as having been in Europe for the New York World during the past two years. He came home on the ship with Mr. Blaine, and wrote all the reliable interviews with him except one. He wrote the Florence interview, in which Blaine emphasized his refusal to be nominated among the other candidates at Chicago. When I was in Europe last summer Mr. Crawford obtained for me facilities to go to the naval review and other places. I had a running talk with him about general things abroad. Said I:

"Do you find the English anxious on the subject of doing our trade and breaking down the tariff?"

"I should think so. But the Englishman is a singular being in his understanding of the United States. For a nation so well set up in their own self esteem as they are, especially in the self-esteem of their superior knowledge, they are the most incapable race alive to understand our institutions. They thought that when Cleveland issued that message or proclamation it was the end of the matter; that immediately the tariffs would all come off, and they would come in and occupy the land. They were mystified and mortified when it was explained to them that the President could not either make or break any law; that his message was a mere recommendation. 'Oh, well,' they said on hearing this, 'Of course those manufacturing States will have to come in. They may resist him by force awhile, but as he is the ruler, and has expressed the policy, it cannot be very long.'

"Are the British doing well under free trade?"

"They may be able to show you some statistics to that effect, but to the naked eye and from what you hear by the ear they are the most unhappy beings to-day on the globe with respect to their trade. As prominent a man as they have in the country told me that they could not stand for their free-trade policy more than five years longer unless some other nation or nations enlarge their market. They still insist that their doctrine is the correct one, provided all the world would adopt it. But every nation on the continent is living under a tariff, and then pouring the goods made by tariff into England to be sold. The United States is doing the same. We send no end things over there, and they have to go in under the law free of duty. Then the British colonies have put up tariffs against British goods, and are manufacturing for themselves. The consequences is that they are stuck everywhere. A grower of potatoes, vegetables, and market produce in the interior of England told me that the French would land their apricots, grapes, and garden vegetables in London and sell them cheaper than he could raise them. He said that his hot-houses and wall vines, etc., were valueless to him. The Belgians are selling them railroad engines. The nation they fear the most is the German, which has a very high tariff and is pouring into England from Chemnitz hosiery and all sorts of woolen and cotton goods.

It is a notorious fact that the Americans who go over there are changing their orders from England to Germany, where, with a tariff, they are manufacturing cheaper than the English with free trade. It has been only recently that the Americans have looked into the manufactures of the continent, and when they get over there they seldom return to Great Britain. There is variety in design and accommodation to existing fashions among the continentals which the British are too slow to come to. You see that Germany extended its territory after the wars with France and Prussia, and the German cities began to grow rapidly. The government of Bismarck considered that it was the first duty of a government to set its people to work. So they extended their tariffs, gave protection to their mechanics, supervised the whole system of industry, and they have made Germany an alert, live nation. That is the nation the British fear; the Germans can make bridges and railroad iron and many other things cheaper than the English, though the one has a tariff and the other has not. That feeling of anxiety is universal throughout the British Islands. There is a party growing rapidly into prominence called Free Trade party, which means nothing but a reciprocal tariff party, or indeed a tariff party. It represents, in my opinion, today the majority sentiment of England."

"Did you look into the alleged poverty in England?"

"I did, and just before I came away. I have been in every country of Europe except Spain and Russia. I have been some half a dozen times through Holland, France, Belgium, Switzerland and Italy. Their is no nation in Europe with the amount of pauperism that you find in England. In the city of London at this moment there are 103,000 persons in the almshouses; there are 300,000 unemployed men in London. One of the greatest industries in that kingdom is the pawnshop. One of our Secretaries of Legation told me that upon the house he has, which is no very expensive house, the poor rate or poor tax alone for the support of paupers, 32 guineas a year, or about $160. This is merely to support the poor of his parish. It is equivalent to nearly the full taxes on a similar house in one of our great cities."

Mr. Crawford continued: "When I was at Manchester one of my friends there said to me on Saturday night: 'I want to take you to one of our representative pubs.' Pub means a public house. 'This is the night for the men to come there.' He asked me to a drinking house which had three different apartments, first-class, second-class, and third-class. In each compartment, the prices differed, and the grade of the drink differed correspondingly. In the lowest compartment you get the lowest kind of beer and alcohol; in the next you get a better grade, and in the third you get the best grade. I went in there and found the place crowded chiefly with what are called navies. They come in there on Saturday nights about 7 o'clock and stay until the place closes up. In that time the proprietor told me that the average drink of a man would be about four gallons of beer. They just drink it down by the pint. I was introduced to the proprietor, who told me the modus operandi. Said he: 'These men get their wages on Saturday, and the first thing they do is to lay in their houses the supply of meat and bread. The next thing they do is to go and take their clothes out of pawn. Their clothes are continually in pawn except on Sundays. What is left over after they have made this provision and redeemed their clothes they spend at the public house for beer.

'Now,' said he, 'you must come here Monday and you will see the other side of the question. On Monday the women take the same clothes which have been taken out of pawn on Sunday and put them back into the pawnshop. Then, having the money, it is their day to treat themselves. They come here and fill up with beer just like their husbands. The next Sunday the husband redeems the clothes, puts in the hard provisions, and comes in and fills up with beer on what he has left.' I asked him how much he made a year at this public house. He replied, £3,000 a year, or $15,000. Such is the condition of the operative in England, and it is especially hard in their manufacturing centers like Manchester. There is no disparagement of this statement. I saw it with my own eyes."

Working Small Fruits in the Fall.

In many sections it is not until Spring arrives that the work of cleaning the fields begins, and then hurry ensues. While the decayed weeds and grass covering the roots of the plants may serve as a mulch, and partially protect against the severity of the winter, the question comes up as a matter of cost. Apparently it is cheaper to allow the weeds to grow and remain, if they are valued as mulching material, as no labor is required in their use, but weeds are very expensive, and are really costly, if the matter be viewed from an economical standpoint. The storing of the material for the production of next year's crop of fruit goes on in the vines now, and the greater portion of the effort of reproduction is when the conditions of heat and moisture are most favorable. Some plants bear fruit before the summer comes on, but it is during the summer that the growth of new canes and vines is greatest. All the elements of growth come from the soil, and as no plant will thrive as well under competition as without it, it is plain that the weeds simply rob the not only of nourishment, but also of moisture. When they die in the fall they do not return to the soil that which is derived from it, as during the process of decomposition much of the nitrogenous matter is dissipated in the atmosphere. Instead of assisting to protect the fruit plants in the winter, it is more frequently the reverse, for the strong, vigorous weeds retard the fruit plants and cause them to be weak and sickly, thereby subjecting them to the chances of more easily succumbing to the cold. At this season the first duty should be to cultivate between the rows of strawberries, raspberries and blackberries, thinning out the surplus plants and either hoeing or hand-pulling the weeds. If some kind of winter covering be needed it is more economical to use salt hay or some cheap material that can be easily applied. It is also best to cut back the tops of tall canes. If growth is to be made let it be made of laterals. It is much better to cut back early than to wait until the plant has wasted energy in producing vine that must be removed in the spring. All the energy saved now will be brought into use next spring in the effort to produce fruit, which will be of better quality.—The Farmer's Magazine.

Hay Fever.

I have been a periodical sufferer from hay fever since the summer of 1879, and until I used Ely's Cream Balm was never able to find relief. I can truthfully say that Cream Balm cured me. I regard it as of great value and would not be without it during the hay fever season.—L. M. Georgia, Binghamton, N. Y.

I can cheerfully recommend Ely's Cream Balm to the suffering public for hay fever and stoppage of the nasal passages. I have tried it and find it gives immediate relief.—J. E. Rector, Little Rock, Ark.

A Baby with Two Heads.

A French couple by the name of Rosolbeault, living in Manchester, N. H., for a year past, are said to be the parents of a genuine freak of nature. Mr. and Mrs. Rosolbeault left town on the Montreal express for Canada last night, having with them two children, one a bright little fellow three or four years old, and the other an infant in arms. The former seemed perfectly well formed, and was apparently as active and healthy as any child in Manchester. The infant, however, is reported by several persons who saw it at the passenger station last evening to be a genuine monstrosity. The little one, now four weeks old, is asserted to have two perfectly-formed heads, joined at the body by short, but well-formed necks.

The lower portion of the body and limbs are said to be regular and well proportioned and that the child's lungs were all right was evinced by its frequent cries and screams. It is said that it cries alternately with one mouth and then with the other, and that it can close one pair of eyes while the others are open. The parents are abnormally sensitive in regard to their strange offspring and, as far as possible, have kept its birth a secret. This sensitiveness is said to be the cause for the departure of the family for Canada. The child seemed perfectly strong and healthy, and partook of nourishment with an avidity and appetite which spoke well for its future growth.—Chicago Herald.

Here's a Girl Worth Having.

A pretty talented girl who has just completed her school course with credit, and by reason of rather special talents, has received more attention and admiration than falls to the lot of most girls, was asked the other day how she was enjoying her vacation. "Oh, I'm enjoying it very much," she answered, brightly. "I'm doing the housework now, and letting mother have a little rest." "Your mother is away on a vacation, then?" was the natural question. "Oh, no, she's at home, but I'm giving her a chance to rest in the morning and to dress up and sit out on the piazza when she feels like it. I think it will do her good to have a little change."

A Problem and its Answer.

How can any one have a perfectly beautiful set of teeth, and healthy gums? Use Minot's Dentifrice, the safest, best, and most popular tooth wash ever introduced. Price 25 cents;—used by millionaires and mechanics, and praised by all. Sold everywhere.

One of the necessities and luxuries also of the toilet table is a bottle of water in which you put as much powdered borax as will dissolve; Keep putting it in until it begins to fall to the bottom and remains there. When you take your bath, or simply wash your face and hands, pour a little of this into the washbowl; it softens the water and removes soil without making the skin rough. It is good to use also when you wash the children's hair, as much soap is universally condemned for that purpose. When you feel that cleanliness demands soap a little pure castile soap is recommended.

The Homeliest Man

In Somerset, as well as the handsomest and others, are invited to call on any druggist and get free a trial bottle of Kemp's Balsam for the Lungs, a remedy that is selling entirely upon its merits and is guaranteed to cure and relieve all Chronic and Acute Coughs, Asthma, Bronchitis and Consumption. Price 50 cents and $1.

A curious smoking pine tree on the Vaughan estate in Hallowell, Me., is again the topic of discussion in that city. A gentleman the other day said that the last time he saw it smoke was on June 9th. The vapor comes from the extreme top or apex and extends several feet into the air, waving to and fro. The column is about the diameter of a man's arm, and sometimes divides into two columns. It smokes periodically, and is really a phenomenon.

Some Foolish People

Allow a cough to run until it gets beyond the reach of medicine. They often say, "Oh, it will wear away," but in most cases it wears them away. Could they be induced to try the successful medicine called Kemp's Balsam, which we sell on a positive guarantee to cure, they would immediately see the excellent effect after taking the first dose. Price 50 cents and $1. Trial sizes free. At all Druggists.

The bananna has come to be almost a necessity in thousands of northern families to whom it was unknown a few years ago. They are fried and served as an entree; pies are made of them, with a delicate uper and under crust with plenty of sugar and a suggestion of spice, but when sliced thin and mixed with chopped pineapple or with chopped oranges they are simply delicious. At breakfast they are served by removing the skin, cutting the bananas in two pieces, cross-wise, and piling them on a pretty china or fancy plate.

Answer This Question.

Why do so many people we see around us seem to prefer to suffer and be made miserable by Indigestion, Constipation, Dizziness, Loss of appetite, Coming up of the Food, Yellow Skin, when for 75 cents we will sell them Shiloh's System Vitalizer, guaranteed to cure them. Sold by Geo. W. Benford & Son.

A Colt That Knew Its Mother's Footfall.

Animal instinct is at times so very like human reason that there is a distinction with scarcely a difference. The Albany News and Advertiser says that Dr. W. L. Davis, behind his fleet Kentucky mare, had occasion to pass the doctor's home, where the mare's colt was housed. It was impossible for the colt to have seen its mother, and yet, as she passed on the street, it neighed most vociferously, giving every sign that it recognized her presence. It must have been that the colt recognized the mare's trot, as children do the step of their parents.

Shiloh's Catarrh Remedy.

Shiloh's Catarrh Remedy, a marvelous cure for Catarrh, Diphtheria, Canker Mouth, and Headache. With each bottle there is an ingenious Nasal Injector for the more successful treatment of these complaints without extra charge. Price 50 cents. Sold by George W. Benford & Son.

Pat had recently secured a place on a farm. One day at noon he was handed a glass of buttermilk. He tasted the liquid, set the glass down, and went into the house.

"Oi say, sor," he said to his employer "Don't ver tink Oi'd better be after goin out an seein' to the stock?"

"Why?"

"Because, Oi've me suspicions that somebody's left the cow standin' in the sun and lettin' her milk get sour."

Shiloh's Consumptin Cure.

This is beyond question the most successful Cough Medicine we have ever sold, a few doses invariably cure the worst cases of Cough, Croup, and Bronchitis, while its wonderful success in the cure of Consumption is without a parallel in the history of medicine. Since its first discovery it has been sold on a guarantee, a test which no other medicine can stand. If you have a cough we earnestly ask you to try it. Price 10 cents, 50 cents, and $1.00. If your lungs are sore, Chest or Back lame, use Shiloh's Porous Plaster. Sold by George W. Benford & Son.

To remove grease from garments, dissolve a tablespoonful of salt in four tablespoonfuls of alcohol, shake well and apply with a sponge.

Yon sturdy oak whose branches wide
Boldly the storms and winds defy,
Not long ago an acorn, small,
Lay dormant 'neath the summer sky.

Not unlike the thrifty oak in its germ, developement and growth, is consumption. But even this mighty foe of mankind, positively yields to the wonderful curative properties of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery if taken early. Don't be blind to your own interests and think yours a hopeless case. This remarkable remedy has rescued thousands. Of druggist.

CATARRH.—Prof. C. B. Cook, Principal High school, Cohoes, N. Y., says of Nature's Remedy for Catarrh: "It is the best physic for Catarrh I ever tried. It is the best catarrh cure I ever tried. It is destroyed out of use of anything I ever tried. If any friend of mine should read this, I wish him to understand that I say with all sincerity that I am acquainted with Mr. L. M. Gray, one of the proprietors of Nature's Remedy for Catarrh. He is an upright, honorable gentleman, and his medicine is the best catarrh remedy that can be found. It has cured me, and, I believe it will cure any person suffering from catarrh."

It is sold by druggists and dealers. It may be sent by mail: price $1. Every package contains a full quarter pound of medicine. Send for our book (it can be had for the asking) "How to cure Catarrh." Address, L. M. GRAY & CO., Rush, Somerset County, Pa.
