Lincoln, Seward and Chase.

Near the end of 1862 the opposition of Chase and the Republican Senators to Seward culminated in an attempt to get the latter out of the Cabinet. "The Life of Lincoln," in the February Century, fully details the circumstances. Mr. Lincoln so managed that Seward's resignation was followed by Chase's, and he declined to accept either. Say the authors: "The untrained diplomatist of Illinois had thus met and conjured away with unsurpassed courage and skill, one of the severest crises that ever threatened the integrity of his Administration. He had to meet it absolutely unaided: from the nature of the case he could take no advice from those who were nearest him in the Government. By his bold and original expedition of confronting the Senators with the Cabinet, and having them discuss their mutual misunderstandings under his own eye, he cleared up many dangerous misconceptions, and, as usually happens when both parties are men of intelligence and goodwill, brought about friendlier and more considerate feeling between his government and the Republican leaders than had ever before existed. By placing Mr. Chase in such an attitude that his resignation became necessary to his own sense of dignity he made himself absolute master of the situation; by treating the resignations and the return to the Cabinet of both ministers as one and the same transaction he saved for the nation the invaluable services of both, and preserved his own position of entire impartiality between the two wings of the Union party. The results of this achievement were not merely temporary. From that hour there was a certain loosening of the hitherto close alliance between Mr. Chase and the Republican opposition to the President, while a kind of comradeship, born of their joint sortie and resentrance into the Government, gave thereafter a greater semblance of cordiality to the relations between the Secretaries of State and of the Treasury. But above all, the incident left the President seated more firmly than ever in the saddle. When the Cabinet had retired, and left the President with the resignation of Mr. Chase in his hands, he said to a friend who entered soon after, in one of those graphic metaphors so often suggested to him by the memories of his pioneer childhood, and which revealed his careless greatness perhaps more clearly than his most labored official utterances, 'Now I can ride: I have got a pumpkin in each end of my bag.'

"Nearly a year later he said in a conversation relating to this matter:

I do not see how it could have been done better. I am sure it was right. If I had yielded to that storm and dismissed Seward the thing would all have slumped over one way, and we should have been left with a scanty handful of supporters. When Chase gave in his resignation I saw that the game was in my hands, and I put it through.

"Though the opposition to Mr. Seward did not immediately come to an end, it never exhibited such vitality again, and its later manifestations were treated far more cavalierly by Mr. Lincoln. He had even before this dismissed one very respectable committee from New York who had called to express unfavorable opinion of the premier, by saying with unwonted harshness, 'You would be willing to see the country ruined if you could turn out Seward'; and after this incident he never again allowed the Secretary of State to be attacked in his presence."

How's Your Liver?

The old lady who replied, when asked how her liver was, "God bless me, I never heard that there was such a thing in the house," was noted for her amiability. Prometheus, when chained to a rock, might as well have pretended to be happy, as the man who is chained to a diseased liver. For poor Prometheus, there was no escape, but by the use of Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Purgative Pellets, constipation, indigestion, dizziness and sick headache, which are caused by a diseased liver, promptly disappear.

The Skies in February.

The planet of the month that will attract the greatest attention is again Venus, as she shines even before the setting of the sun. She is rapidly approaching the earth and increasing in size and brilliancy. She will not set before 9:30 o'clock, and will be a most beautiful object in the western sky throughout the month. A very important event in her is her reaching on February 18 the point of greatest distance from the sun, after which she will retrace her steps. The constellation of Pisces has the honor of containing this queen of the planets. After February 5 Saturn becomes an evening star, and he is in opposition with the sun and offers the best conditions for observation on that day. He rises in the early evening, continuing visible almost until the streaks of early dawn put out his feeble light. He shines with a steady pale yellow light that makes him easily distinguished from his setting of small twinkling stars, as well as from Regulus, the bright star in the Sickle. Mercury, with accustomed instability, passes the first portion of the month as an evening star, and the latter half as one of the morning stars. He is visible to the naked eye in the western sky about three-quarters of an hour after sunset for the first week of the month, shining with a light somewhat similar, to that of Sirius, the brightest of the fixed stars.

Mars, another of the evening stars, moves northward during the month, setting about three hours after the sun in the constellation of Aquarius, where his ruddy hue betrays his presence, and were he not so far from us his course could not be easily traced. In the constellation of Taurus is the distant Neptune, which is in quadrature with the sun on the 17th. Jupiter is the most conspicuous object in the morning sky, appearing between three and four hours ahead of the sun. His beaming light, far out shining all other stars in the heavens at that early hour, would render him a dangerous rival for Venus were he but an evening star. Uranus shares a small portion of the honor of his larger brother, and with a telescope he could be found in the constellation of Virgo.

The moon quarters on February 7, is full on February 15, and has a last quartering on February 22, making but three changes in the month, a somewhat unusual occurrence. She will be furthest from us on February 9, and nearest on February 24. The sun begins the month at 7:10 o'clock in the morning, setting that day at 5:18 o'clock. His declination diminishes one-half as he comes rapidly northward, increasing the length of the day by one hour and nine minutes during the month, and making our noonday shadows much shorter at the close than they were at the beginning.—New York Times.

If the boys have a few tools this winter they will afford them much discipline and amusement and result in repairing and patching that will more than repay their cost.

Rats and mice often eat up the farmer's profits. If you have any on your farm get rid of them at once.

A Touching Incident.

The "short and simple annals of the poor" furnish many an illustration of the noblest traits of character. The following sketch published some years ago in a Cincinnati paper, as a touch of genuine sympathy scarcely excelled by the tenderest of little English stories, "Rab and his friends."

In a pottery factory here there is a working man who had one small invalid child at home. He wrought at his trade with exemplary fidelity, being always in the shop at the break of day. He managed, however, to bear each evening to the bedside of his "wee lad," as he called him, a flower, a bit of ribbon, or a fragment of crimson glass, indeed, anything that would be out on the white counterpane, and give color to the room. He was a quite, unsentimental man, but never went home at night without something that would make the wan face light up with joy at his return.

He never said to a living soul that he loved that boy so much. Still he went on patiently loving him, and by and by he moved that whole shop into positively real but unconscious fellowship with him. The workmen made curious little jars and cups upon their wheels, and painted diminutive pictures down their sides before they stuck them in the corners of the kiln at burning time. One brought some fruit in the bulge of his apron, and another, engravings in a rude scrap book. Not one whispered a word, for this solemn thing was not to be talked about. They put them in the old man's mat, where he found them; he understood all about it, and, believe it or not, cynics, as you will, but it is a fact that the entire pottery full of men, of rather coarse fibre by nature, grew quiet as the months drifted, becoming gentle and kind, and some stopped swearing as the weary look on the patient fellow-worker's face told them beyond mistake that the inevitable shadow was drawing nearer.

Every day now some one did a piece of work for him and put it on the sanded plank to dry so that he could come later and go earlier. So when the bell tolled and the little coffin came out of the lonely door, right around the corner, out of sight, there stood a hundred stalwart workingmen from the pottery with their clean clothes on, most of whom gave a half-day's time for the privilege of taking part in the simple procession and following to the grave that small burden of a child, which, probably not one had ever seen.—Congregationalist.

Immigration of 1888.

The total immigration to the United States during the twelve months ended December 31, 1888, amounted to 518,518, against 510,058 in 1887. This immigration has been largely exceeded in three previous years; namely, in 1881, with 1,069,431 arrivals; in 1882, with 788,992, and in 1883, with 603,322. From these high figures the total immigration declined to 395,346 in 1885, and to 334,203 in 1886. What with the threats of hostile legislation to this country is not impropable.

In comparing the statistics of immigration in the last two years it is seen that the principal decline is from Great Britain and Ireland, Germany and Sweden and Norway, which have hitherto been the principal sources of foreign born population. The only important increase of immigration is from Russia, whose contribution to the country's population last year was 37,333, against 25,784 in 1887. From Italy the rise in the tide of immigrating has been very slight, the total number of Italian arrivals in 1888 amounting to 47,422, an increase of a little more than a thousand over the previous year. While there is a small increase in the immigration from other portions of the Austrian Empire the immigration from Hungary and Bohemia has declined. The total immigration from Hungary and Bohemia last year amounted to 16,585, most of which found its way to coal fields, coke ovens and iron mills of Pennsylvania.

Shiloh's Consumption Cure.

This is beyond question the most successful Cough Medicine we have ever sold, a few doses invariably cure the worst cases of Cough, Croup, and Bronchitis, while its wonderful success in the cure of Consumption is without a parallel in the history of medicine. Since its first discovery it has been sold on a guarantee, a test which no other medicine can stand. If you have a cough we earnestly ask you to try it. Price 10 cents, 50 cents, and $1.00. If your lungs are sore, Chest or Back lame, use Shiloh's Porous Plaster. Sold by George W. Benford & Son.

Gold Mines and Mills.

At Lead City, near Deadwood, Lawrence county, are located the largest gold mines and mills in the world, the "Homestake." The ore bodies mined by this company show a working face from two hundred to four hundred feet wide, sinking to an inexhaustible depth. Six hundred stamps, crushing 20,000 cubic feet of rock every twenty-four hours, drop incessantly, day and night, in the several mills, without an intermission even for the Sabbath. During the ten years in which the mines of the Homestake combination have been operated they have produced about $25,000,000 in bullion, and paid over $6,000,000 in dividends to stockholders.—Harper's Magazine.

Answer this Question.

Why do so many people we see around us seem to prefer to suffer and be made miserable by Indigestion, Constipation, Dizziness, Loss of appetite, Coming up of the Food, Yellow Skin, when for 75 cents we will sell them Shiloh's System Vitalizer, guaranteed to cure them. Sold by Geo. W. Benford & Son.

What the Row is All About.

The Samoan Islands are in the South Pacific, about half way between the Sandwich Islands and Australia. They were formerly the Navigator Islands, and are north of the Friendly Islands. The people resemble the Sandwich Islanders. The only relations existing with this country grew out of the treaty of guaranteed neutrality signed by Great Britain and Germany, with the United States as an arbitrator in all disputes arising under the treaty. Their ruler, who is elected by the popular vote, is King Mataafa; but through the machinations of the Germans, it is said, a rebellion against him has arisen under the leadership of a chieftain named Tamasese. The Germans are sustaining Tamasese, contrary, as Great Britain and the United States maintain, to the treaty which the three governments jointly signed.

The Handsomest Lady

In Somerset remarked to a friend the other day that she knew Kemp's Balsam for the Throat and Lungs was a superior remedy, as it stopped her cough instantly when others had no effect whatever. So to prove this and convince you of its merit, any druggist will give you a sample Bottle Free. Large size 50c. and $1

Attorney, examining witness—You say you saw the shots fired?

Witness—Yes, sir.

"How near were you to the scene of the affray?"

"When the first short was fired I was ten feet from the shooter."

"Ten feet. Well, now, tell the court where you were when the second shot was fired."

"I didn't measure."

"Speaking approximately, how far should you say?"

"Well, it approximated to half a mile."

"If a woman is pretty,
To me 'tis no matter,
Be she blonde or brunette,
So she lets me look at her."

An unhealthy woman is rarely, if ever beautiful. The peculiar diseases to which so many of the sex are subject, are prolific causes of pale, sallow faces, blotched with unsightly pimples, dull lustreless eyes and emaciated forms. Women so afflicted, can be permanently cured by using Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription; and with the restoration of health comes that beauty which, combined with good qualities of head and heart, makes women angels of lovliness. "Favorite Prescription" is the only medicine for women, sold by druggists, under a positive guarantee from the manufacturers, that it will give satisfaction in every case, or money will be refunded. This guarantee has been printed on the bottle-wrapper, and faithfully carried out for many years.

Study to arrange farmwork so that every season will have its employment and its income.

The Blood

Is the source of health; therefore, to keep well, purify the blood by taking Hood's Sarsaparilla. This medicine is peculiarly designed to act upon all the organs and tissues of the body. It has a specific action, also, upon the secretions and excretions, and assists nature to expel from the system scrofula, humors, impure particles, and effete matter through the lungs, liver, bowels, kidneys, and skin. It effectually aids weak, impaired, and debilitated organs. A trial will convince you that it does possess peculiar curative powers.

Do your chores regulary (especialy the milling), and do them well.

Mr. P. M. Rarber has used Ely's Cream Balm for catarrh in his family and commends it very highly. A Tunkhannock lawyer, known to many of our readers, says he was cured of deafness—Pittston, Pa., Gazette.

It Makes You Hungry

"I have used Paine's Celery Compound and it has had a wonderful effect. It invigorates the whole system and I feel like a new man. It suppresses the appetite and promotes digestion." J. T. CORLEW, Prosper, S. C.

Paine's Celery Compound

is a unique tonic and appetizer. Pleasant to the taste, quick in its action, and without any injurious effect, it gives that ragged health which makes everything taste good. It cures dyspepsia and kindred disorders. Physicians prescribe it. 25c. 50c. $1. Druggists.

The Best Spring Medicine.

"In the spring of 1887 I was all run down. I would get up in the morning with no rest, a feeling, and was so weak, that I could hardly get around. I bought a bottle of Paine's Celery Compound, and before I had taken it a week I felt very much better. I can cheerfully recommend it to all who need a building up and strengthening medicine. MRS. R. A. DOW, Burlington, Vt.
