> How to Plant Trees. Many persons who imagine that the star of their destiny has dorred "but luck" to them in planting trees, would doubtles look at the matter in a different way if they would exercise more care and better Judement in planting and in cultivating after

As this is the season when most of the planting is done in our section of country, I will venture to offer some hints, many of which have been gleaned from authorities of high standing in the nursery business and in fruit growing, and have been confirmed by observation and experience. In regard to the best time for planting I wish it were possible to remove some of the superstitions to which many of our people still cling. Without stopping to enumerate tion of the moon, the signs, &c., I would suggest that the rule of every one should be to plant when the ground is in the best condition. Regarding coltivation and fertility of the soil, and the weather favorable for starting by growth, I would caution lovers of urnamental trees not to plant overgreens in autumn, nor, indeed, any of the more tender fruit trees, she't as the peach. Many dollars have been thrown a way on evergreens business was to sell, the possibility of growing causing them ter concern-
