er too hard nor too soft, is a fuxury not to be found at every inn. A traveler in Norway complains feelingly of the beds of that country, so hard and small, and as poorly made up. Possibly the people get so weary with their day's work that they have no need of luxurious couches when night comes. As hunger is the best sauce, so sleepiness is the best pillow. How it has ever come about that the Norwegian notion of beds should be so restricted, I am at a loss to imagine. They are simply child's cribs-no more; as short as unrrow, and in many instances so narrow that it is impossible to turn over quickly in them without danger. I have egain and egain been suddenly waked, finding myself just going over the edge. The making of them is as queer as the size. A sort of "bulkhend" small mattress is slipped in under the head, lifting it up at an angle admirably suited to an asthmatic patient who can not breathe lying down, or to a small boy who likes to coast down hill in his bed of a morning. The single pillow is place I on this; the short, narrow sheet flung lossely over it; blanket, ditto; coverlet, ditto-it may or may not be straight or smooth. The whole expression of the bed is as if it had been just hastily smoothed up temporarily till there should betime enough to make it.

In perfect good faith I sent for a chambermaid one night, in the early days of my Norwa" journey, and made signs to her that I would like to have my bed made, when the poor thing had aiready made it to the best of her ability, and entirely in keeping with the customs of the country .- Youth's Companion.

Gored to Death by a Bull. Indiana Democrat.

On lest Friday James G. Long, of Center township, entered a pasture field on his farm for the purpose of sniting the cattle. He had performed his errand and started to leave the field, when he perceived a vicious short-horn bull making a bee-line for him. Mr. Long started to run, but the bull caught him just as he reached the fence, and tossing him to the ground, gored him savagely, breaking his neck and lest causing instant death. When found Mr. Long's head and legs were pushed through the fence by the infor ated animal's horns and his body was one mass of bruises. Deceased was a prominent and useful citizen, and his sad death has cast a gloom over the entire community. He was thirty-four years of age, and leaves a wife and family to mourn his untimely

Songs of Harriet Beecher Stowe

I was recently sitting in Mark Twain'. home in Hartford waiting for the humo . ist to return from his daily walk. Suddenly sounds of devotional singing came in through the open window from the direction of the outer conservatory. The singing was low, yet the sad tremor in the voice seemed to give it special carrying power. "You have quite a devotional domestic," I said to a member of the family who came in shortly afterwards. "That is not a domestic who is singing," was the answer. "Step to the window, look in the conservatory and see for vourself."

I did so. There, sitting alone on one of the rustic benches in the flower-house was a small, elderly lady. Keeping time with the first finger of her right hand, as if with a baton, she was slightly swaying her frail body as she sang, softly yet sweetly, Charles Wedey's hymn, "Jeis Lover of My Soul," and Sarah Flower Adam's " Nearer My God, to Thee." But the singer was not a domestic. It was Harrriet Beecher Stowe! There sat the once brilliant authoress like a child crooning a favorite air. To-Night and To-Morrow Night.
