REPUBLICAN NOMINATIONS.

STATE

FOR STATE TREASURER, HENRY K. BOYER, OF PHILADELPHIA.

FOR ASSOCIATE JUDGE, GEORGE W. PILE, OF WESTERN BERKSHIRE.

FOR DISTRICT ATTORNEY, LEWIS C. COLBOURN, OF WESTERN BERKSHIRE.

FOR POOR HOUSE DIRECTOR, FREDERICK WELLES, OF WESTERN BERKSHIRE.

This is a Republican year! It will be a year of victory!

CALIFORNIA estimates her honey crop for this season at 2,000,000 pounds.

The Minnesota wheat crop estimated at 40,000,000 bushels, and for Dakota, 25,000,000.

The Virginia Democrats are an unhappy lot. They are too much afraid of Mahone to sleep nights.

Rumors and guesses that there will be an extra session of Congress are still current in circles that claim to be well informed.

The President returned to Washington from his New England trip on Friday last. Everywhere he went he received an ovation from the people.

We are sorry, awfully sorry, that our Democratic friends are so disappointed with the outcome of the Republican platform lately adopted at Harrisburg. Don't—Tear ever thus from childhood's hour.

It is not calculated to add to our reputation as a law-abiding people, to send a large number of our citizens to jail to travel with a body guard to prevent their being murdered for the performance of their duty.

SENATOR J. G. HUTCHINSON, who has just been nominated for Governor by the Republicans of Iowa, is a native of Northumberland county, this State. Pennsylvania Republicanism is recognized as of the right stripe, wherever found.

A CHINESE man discovered the identity of the thief who stole his treasured, by finding a stick of wax, with which he and after the stove in a shanty couple by an Italian laborer not far off went into fragments, the waxpiece ceased to suffer from the deceptions of the thief.

The energetic ladies of Kansas evidently believe in their own rights. The returns from the school election in that State show that about 50,000 of them voted on school matters. A large proportion of the members of Kansas school boards will be ladies this year.

"In regard to the act of United States Marshal Nagle," says the Philadelphia Press, "there can be only one opinion. He could not stand idly by and see a Judge of the Supreme Court murdered before his eyes. The contumacy that Terry sought to put upon the Judge was only the result that was to go before premeditated murder. The case has no moral except the certainty that a violent life will end in a violent death."

Issue of the next four years the United States is likely to have a navy that will at least command the respect of the smaller powers. The completion of the vessels for which Congress has provided will give us in that time, with the new cruisers we have now, a fleet of about 30 modern war vessels, many of which will be of the fleetest and most efficient type. This is exclusive of the five double-turreted monitors, which will be formidable coast defenders when they are completed.

"WEEK" says the Philadelphia Press, "Terry slapped Justice Field in the face he doubted whether the latter to resent the affront and offer some resistance. If he had, in all human probability, this country would have had to endure the shame of a Justice of the Supreme Court murdered by an attorney whom he disciplined for insolent conduct and contempt. A vigilant officer of the court, by shooting down the assailant of the venerable Justice before he had the opportunity to do his worst, probably saved the country from this disgrace."

"KNOWING" says the Philadelphia Record, "the embittered and revengeful nature of Terry, Justice Field's friends took precautions against any attempt at violence to the venerable jurist—just without cause, as the sequel has proved. An although the killing of Terry was undoubtedly a crime, it is doubtful whether his slayer will be convicted either in the courts or at the bar of public opinion. Through all ages and in all lands the stern and sublime justice of the decree, 'He that taketh the sword shall perish by the sword,' has remained unquestioned."

SAYS THE NEW YORK MAIL AND EXPRESS: A man of violence all through his stormy and disgraceful career, the murderer of Broderick, the fearless champion of the Union in the times it tried men's souls in California, just before and at the outset of the civil war, and the appropriate champion and husband of the most notorious and shameless adultery California ever knew, David S. Terry was fitly shot and killed the other day by a fearless United States Marshal who had been assigned to the duty of protecting Justice Stephen J. Field against the excruciating bull and traitor and murderer.

THE BRIDGING RAILROAD has a scheme afoot to establish another through route between New York, Philadelphia and Pittsburg, by bridging the Susquehanna at Harrisburg and forming a connection with the Baltimore and Potomac road at that point, and thence by connecting with the Western Maryland road, and by it, with the Baltimore and Ohio road to Pittsburg and the West. This is an available route, requiring but a few miles of additional road to be constructed, but it will not equal the line by the South Penn., which the "cassidines" of a few money kings prevent from being completed.

SIXTY people have queer notions of fit subjects for honor in this world. Thus, an attorney of San Francisco moved that the Supreme Court of California adjourn "as a mark of respect to the memory of Justice Terry."

Here was a red handed murderer slain by an officer of the law, while attempt-
