The Potter county banner is red and white The Potter county banner is red and white and its inscription says it gained 29 per cent. over the Blatte vote. These banners are to be presented during the campaign.

In the campaign of 1887 two banners were offered to the counties making the two highest increases over the Blaine vote. They were won by Crasford and Forest. Mose at the hume time that the fone superb banners at State headquarters are delivered, two more will be offered by the State committee to the counties that shall give in November next the nearest relative approach to the Harrison rote.

The winning of the banners by certain counties is ascribed more to political activity and earnestness than changes in population, and by awarding the banners according to the percentage of increase every county has the same chance to win the banners, which are prizes worth fighting for. A table of great interest to the Republican contestants for the banners shows which counties in 1888 made the largest relative gains over the vote of the largest relative gains over the vote of 1884. The table places the counties in order of merit for Republican activity thus:
