WE DO NOT PLEDGE
Ourselves to keep abreast, but to keep the lead over all others in selling you Pure, Absolutely Pure, and Well Matured, Ripe Whiskies and Wines.
At prices that make all other dealers humiliate themselves of it:
Overholt & Co's Pure Rye, five year old. Full quarts $1.00, $1.00 per dozen.
Still better:
Finch's Golden Wedding, ten year old. Full quarts $1.00, $1.12 per dozen.
Better still:
Kentucky Bourbon, ten year old. Full quarts $1.25, or $12 per dozen.
And one of the most saleable Whiskies on our list is THE PURE FIGHT-YEAR-OLD EXPORT GUCKENHEIM, Full quarts $1.10 a doz.
There is no Whiskey that has ever been sold that has grown in favor with the public so rapidly as our old Export, and the simple reason is that it is utterly impossible to duplicate it.
There will never be any let up in the price of this Whiskey in any particular part of the Pure California Wines we are now selling at 50 cents per bottle, Full quarts, or $5 per dozen.

WOMAN'S LOVE.
Men say that woman's love is bought With yellow gold and glittering gems. With titles names and of her name brought. With power, and place, and diadems. Perhaps 'tis so; I cannot say; I never had such things to give. And yet, around my humble way, It shines, and makes life good to live. There's other currency, I wend, More potent far to buy this prize. To win for each man a home a queen, With love-light sparkling in her eyes. The music and the strain we bring, The force of nerve, the life-blood of the heart's fond throbs: Could any king A golden courtesier bestow? The eagerness to work to slave, To plod, to drudge, to fight through life, The willingness to pinch, to save, All for the smile and kiss to give, The loyalty that guards her name, And holds it sacred, pure, sublime— Are these not meant to light the flame That shows us down the path of time? —M. J. MERRILL, Somerset Journal.

INDIAN GRATITUDE.
In the fall of 1886, while I was carrying a dispatch between two temporary posts on the Arkansas river, and when midway between the posts and twenty miles from either, at the hour of noon, I came upon an Indian lying on the ground between the two monotonous ridges on the plains. I saw him while yet forty rods away, and I knew that he was dead or unconscious. Before I got to him I discovered pony tracks, and knew that he had come there on horseback. I reached the body to find it that of a young Indian, about sixteen years of age, and I believed him dead. He had been shot through the head, as supposed, on one side of his head, and while I sat on my horse and looked down on him a dozen or more buzzards were sailing in the air about us, waiting for the feast. I was rather rejoiced that the force of hostilities was reduced by even one of my Indian was a hostile in those days, and I was about to ride on when the supposed dead man uttered a groan. I was under a bush in a moment. I had a bottle of brandy and a canteen of water, and when I had poured some of the former down his throat, and used the latter to wash off some of the blood, he opened his eyes and looked at me in a way to prove that he had his senses. I could speak the Sioux dialect like one born in the tribe, and I presently asked: "Who are you, and how came you to be in this condition?" "Why don't you kill me?" he asked in reply. "I have no wish to harm you." "But the white man and Indian are enemies. We kill whenever we can." "If I found you seeking my life I should try to take you. As it is, you are almost dead, and I am willing to aid you in any way I can." He looked incredulous, and composed himself for the death blow; but as I mixed some water and brandy and gave it to him, and again investigated the nature of his wound, he finally explained that he was a member of Little Crow's band. The Sioux tribe, as a tribe, was then split up into half a dozen bands, each under the leadership of a sub-chief. He would not fully explain what had occurred, but told me sufficient to enable me to supply the rest. He had attempted to run off with one of the sub-chiefs' wives, and had been pursued, overtaken and left for dead. The bullet had not entered his skull, but had plowed through the scalp clear over his head, rendering him unconscious for several hours and making a terrible wound to look at. I took needle and thread from my pack and brought the scalp together and stitched it in half a dozen places. It would have hurt him terribly, for I worked away as if minding a silk in an army blanket, but during the whole operation he never uttered a groan. When I had his head in shape I divided my luncheon with him and was amazed to see what an appetite he had. As we finished I said: "You are not able to travel, and if you were you are defenseless. What do you propose to do?" "I cannot return to Little Crow's band for a time, if ever," he replied after a moment's thought; "as my white brother says, I am weak and without even a knife. Let him tell me his plan." "I should advise you to lie quiet near the water hole for a day or two. I shall return this way inside of two days, and then you will be stronger. Here is one of my revolvers to protect yourself with. You can also take this blanket and the rest of my meat and crackers. I shall make for this spot as I return, and I hope to find you." "No Indian will give his feelings away in his face if he can possibly prevent it, but this young fellow made no effort. He looked his amazement and incredulity, and even as he held the revolver in his hand he stared at me as if he could not comprehend my motive. We were enemies. I had not only succeeded him, but had placed in his hands a weapon to enable him to take my life. He could not help but suspect some duplicity on my part, until I turned and rode away. It was 5 o'clock in the afternoon of the third day when I returned to the water hole, and failed to find my young warrior there. I waited for a full hour, but he did not show up. I was going away feeling very bitter toward him, when I discovered a trail showing that a large war party had passed there the day before, and I knew then that he had either joined it or been driven away. The chief of war was killing every day, and by the next spring I had almost forgotten the incident. The facts leaked out in one way and another, and for a time I was the butt of ridicule of all the officers and scouts. My greenness in supposing an Indian had any gratitude was bad enough they said, but the idea of my giving him food and a weapon brought down the house. During the early part of summer of the next year I was detailed as one of the guards to accompany the Stokely Hill route. There were from three to six of us with each stage, according to the demeanor of the Indians, who, at times, seemed determined to prevent all travel. A skirmish of some sort was an every day occurrence, but one afternoon, as we were riding along a bunch of a stage in which were three civilians,
