

The Magistrate are in the grip, and the Democrats who used them are grinning at the fun.

It is officially stated that there was paid for pensions during the fiscal year ending June 30th last, the sum of $109,337.54.

Ohio Republicans have already slated Major McKinley for Governor next year. His friends claim it will be no trick at all to elect him.

Senator Ingalls is not yet buried. He has seventy votes pledged to him in the Kansas Legislature, or within fourteen of enough to elect.

Governor Cleveland made one mistake in his Ohio visit. He seems to have thought the object was to honor Cleveland, instead of Thurman.

A new prophet has appeared at Allentown, and predicts a forty years' reign of war. He must have been reading the election returns from Wisconsin.

The good old Republican side is still strong, and her timbers sound. She will weather this storm and saltnourishment until it is 1892.

Notwithstanding that Delaware was defeated, Pennsylvania is still fast and anchored in the Republican camp. If you doubt it, examine the returns and be convinced.

A Kansas man who was elected to the Legislature during his absence from the State refused to serve. This seems to be a case where the official sought the mar, and didn't get him at that.

Now that the election is over, the Democratic papers that hate Mr. Blaine show that they fear him also, by cackling like silly barnyard fowls over every movement he makes and every word he utters in public.

A Western paper remarks that the average corn crop per acre this year is seven bushels less than last year. This is another calamity that the Democratic editors unaccountably forgot to charge to Major McKinley.

British free traders in England burned Mr. Klay in effigy in their rejoicing over the Democratic victory last week. McKinley could have no higher honor. He has drawn to himself the fire of the enemies of American labor and good wages in this country.

Senator Ingalls hasn't the slightest idea of giving up the fight for reelection in the Kansas Legislature, which the Farmers Alliance has captured. Senator Ingalls is a fighter of the first class, and it would be wise for his opponents not to crow until they have him absolutely beaten.

In Kansas, Nebraska, Minnesota and Michigan the Farmers Alliance had a full ticket in the field at the recent election, and their strength was drawn principally from the Republican party. The Farmers Alliance will have at least forty members in the lower House of the next Congress.

Emulation has about as much of the blessing of free trade as an other. But statistics show that one-fourth of the immigrants to this "robber tariff" ridden country were from the Queen's dominions. Emu, isn't it that people love to come to this "oppressed, tax-ridden land"?

Senator Sherman, being a rather cool and level-headed person, is doing his best to prevent his party colleagues from being led into hysterics over the recent election, by pointing out the fact that the Democrats cast no more votes than in previous elections. But he will have his labor for his pains.

Wants to Try the Experiment. From the Columbus Dispatch. "Down with the tariff," is now the cry of the free traders who triumphed in the late election. Certainly, down with it. We want to see the Senate try the experiment. We want to see the Senate try the experiment. We want to see the Senate try the experiment.

One of these days believers in temperance will again begin to talk more temperance and less politics. Prohibition in the hands of a separate political organization has been an immense failure. Men who refuse to do any good because they cannot do all they want to, always have been and always will be failures.

Some very sanguine Democratic journals have begun to talk about carrying North Dakota for their party in 1892. Their theory is that their party did well in North Dakota this year and can do better next time. But they forget that it is the Presidential year. And all the Republicans have a habit of voting in Presidential years.

Congressman Springer hopes that the press may point the way to future success for the Democratic party. The Bill and Cleveland organs are already at work erecting sign boards, and other carpenters may be at work soon. Some of them, however, are likely to bear the name of "Springer" as the mascot of Democracy.

The rejoicing in Europe over Democratic success in the United States is general and hearty. If Americans see in it a good omen for themselves, all right. But there are multitudes of Americans who believe that it is the duty of Americans to legislate for Americans, and not for citizens of Europe. In this they seem to differ with the free traders and tariff for revenue gentlemen.

Here is one little item for the consideration of our agricultural friends: We imported 11,734,804 dozens of eggs from Canada in the fiscal year of 1889, and against exports of 329,326 dozens. But now we have a duty on eggs, and at an average price of 12 cents a dozen, we try to give this $1,466,588 worth of trade to American farmers.

Governor Blaine has appointed A. V. Barker, Esq., of Elberston, to be President Judge of Cambria county, to fill the vacancy caused by the death of Judge Johnson. The appointment is an excellent one and reflects credit upon the appointing power. Mr. Barker is a gentleman of law, a lawyer of ability, and a lawyer of market ability. He will do honor to the position and be an ornament to the bench.

Major McKinley is not cast down by the result of the election. He is right in his declaration that the American people will stand firmly by the doctrine of protection in the future. With the Democratic misrepresentation in regard to the protective tariff undoubtedly had some effect with the people at large. But the country has not repudiated the principles of protection, and it will not. The beneficent effects of the American Tariff in the future will insure his permanent popularity with the masses.

The San Antonio Express says: "It will pay the Democracy to keep their eyes on the Alliance. It is nearly two years to the meeting of the Presidential convention. Another Democratic organ, the St. Louis Republic, however, asserts that the Alliance is only a Democratic side show, as it were. The Republic says: 'The Farmers Alliance claims eighty seven members of the next Congress. It should not neglect to state for information, however, that nearly all of them were nominated as Democrats by Democratic conventions on Democratic platforms and elected by Democratic votes. There are only three or four on the whole list who were elected as farmers.'

The colored voters of South Carolina appear to have refused to support Judge Hancock for Governor. This resulted from two causes, probably. One was the threats that Tillman and his followers freely made that there would be bloodshed if the Straightouts attempted to vote the negroes. The other was the inconsistency of the Straightouts in appealing to a class of voters who they had in past times pledged to initiate and lead from the polls. The Straightouts are largely responsible for the crimes which have been committed on the ballot box in South Carolina. After having been used the victim of these crimes for years, it must have struck even the dull-witted negro as ludicrous that the perpetrators should turn to him for support.

The infamous gerrymanders in Maryland, Ohio, Indiana and Kentucky were successful in throwing out quite a number of Republican Congressmen. The country is now face to face with this species of fraud, and must resolve to crush it, or submit in the future to an injury that grows upon itself as it feeds. There is no doubt that Congress has the power to regulate the election of Representatives, and in the light of present experience there can be no more reason assigned for the gerrymandering. To submit long to the shames of the defiance of the popular will would be criminal, and it is neither an excuse nor a defence to say that both parties were to blame for their own profit. Congress is expressly authorized to regulate the election of Representatives, and the crying necessity of the hour is that its power be exercised. Gerrymanders must be suppressed, or there is an end to representative government.

It is announced by certain free trade journals that the McKinley bill will be attacked during the coming session of Congress and the next, by introducing separate bills relating to the duty on articles on which an effort is made to place it on the free list, with the hope that enough Republicans will unite with the Democrats to strike off the duty. During the late political canvass a partially successful attempt was made, particularly in some of the western States, to stampede the agriculturists from the Republican ranks, on the alleged high duty placed on this article by the McKinley bill. It is now hoped to reintroduce the bill by introducing amendments of agricultural districts into voting to repeal the duty. The cry against the duty on this article was a very good slogan during the campaign, when stump orators made uncontradicted statements, or, in other words, resorted to downright lying; but now, when reason has resumed its sway and the agriculturalists can turn at will to the McKinley bill, the cry against the duty under the law is hardly worth a paid duty of two and one-half cents per pound, whereas under the present bill, the duty is only seven-tenths of a cent per pound. Knowing the amount of this article he has used, his state and pencil will soon give him the "winning" sum of his "loss" on this commodity. People who are ignorant in the least of the facts of the case, "catch cry," but when they get to really ciphering they are made sensible of their folly. The hope of the Democrats is to keep up the agitation, unskillful, unbusiness, attribute everything to the McKinley bill and thus prevent the country from judging it on its merits.

Wants to Try the Experiment. From the Columbus Dispatch. "Down with the tariff," is now the cry of the free traders who triumphed in the late election. Certainly, down with it. We want to see the Senate try the experiment. We want to see the Senate try the experiment. We want to see the Senate try the experiment.

One of these days believers in temperance will again begin to talk more temperance and less politics. Prohibition in the hands of a separate political organization has been an immense failure. Men who refuse to do any good because they cannot do all they want to, always have been and always will be failures.

Some very sanguine Democratic journals have begun to talk about carrying North Dakota for their party in 1892. Their theory is that their party did well in North Dakota this year and can do better next time. But they forget that it is the Presidential year. And all the Republicans have a habit of voting in Presidential years.

Congressman Springer hopes that the press may point the way to future success for the Democratic party. The Bill and Cleveland organs are already at work erecting sign boards, and other carpenters may be at work soon. Some of them, however, are likely to bear the name of "Springer" as the mascot of Democracy.

The rejoicing in Europe over Democratic success in the United States is general and hearty. If Americans see in it a good omen for themselves, all right. But there are multitudes of Americans who believe that it is the duty of Americans to legislate for Americans, and not for citizens of Europe. In this they seem to differ with the free traders and tariff for revenue gentlemen.

Here is one little item for the consideration of our agricultural friends: We imported 11,734,804 dozens of eggs from Canada in the fiscal year of 1889, and against exports of 329,326 dozens. But now we have a duty on eggs, and at an average price of 12 cents a dozen, we try to give this $1,466,588 worth of trade to American farmers.

Governor Blaine has appointed A. V. Barker, Esq., of Elberston, to be President Judge of Cambria county, to fill the vacancy caused by the death of Judge Johnson. The appointment is an excellent one and reflects credit upon the appointing power. Mr. Barker is a gentleman of law, a lawyer of ability, and a lawyer of market ability. He will do honor to the position and be an ornament to the bench.

Major McKinley is not cast down by the result of the election. He is right in his declaration that the American people will stand firmly by the doctrine of protection in the future. With the Democratic misrepresentation in regard to the protective tariff undoubtedly had some effect with the people at large. But the country has not repudiated the principles of protection, and it will not. The beneficent effects of the American Tariff in the future will insure his permanent popularity with the masses.

What Mr. McKinley Says. Major McKinley, on a visit to Chicago since the election, was interviewed on the subject of the recent elections and among other things said: "I do not know to what extent the new Tariff law influenced the elections this year. It is said in some quarters that it had much to do with the Republican loss. This may be true, but if true it is not because of the new law itself, but because of the misunderstanding of its provisions among the people and of the studied efforts of the free traders at home and abroad, to misrepresent it. Every enemy of Protection seemed engaged in deluding the people concerning both the text and effect of the law. The alleged marking up of prices was a most telling device against the law. It must be remembered that the law was less than a month old when the elections occurred. Its effect could not be felt or shown by actual experience. The free-trade partisan, moved by selfish considerations, had his opportunity and proved it. Falsehood took the place of fact and imposed upon the credulous people. Goods were said to go up in price which had been placed on the free list in the new law. Now that the elections are over, the law will be better understood and its own story in actual operation. Time alone will vindicate it or condemn it. Misrepresentation and deception will no longer avail. Those who care to know its exact provisions can do so by examination of the law itself, removed from partisan contest or prejudice."

Sugar, Tin and Fruits. We find the Democratic press unanimously in a demand that the sugar and fruits should raise the prices of their products "on account of the infamously increased duty on tin," and we find them just as unanimously silent in a demand that they should reduce the prices of their products on account of the virtually decreased duty on sugar.

Why is this? Why does the Democratic press desire that the price of everything should be raised and nothing lowered? Why does it desire an abridgement of the general principle of protection? To submit long to the shames of the defiance of the popular will would be criminal, and it is neither an excuse nor a defence to say that both parties were to blame for their own profit. Congress is expressly authorized to regulate the election of Representatives, and the crying necessity of the hour is that its power be exercised. Gerrymanders must be suppressed, or there is an end to representative government.

It is announced by certain free trade journals that the McKinley bill will be attacked during the coming session of Congress and the next, by introducing separate bills relating to the duty on articles on which an effort is made to place it on the free list, with the hope that enough Republicans will unite with the Democrats to strike off the duty. During the late political canvass a partially successful attempt was made, particularly in some of the western States, to stampede the agriculturists from the Republican ranks, on the alleged high duty placed on this article by the McKinley bill. It is now hoped to reintroduce the bill by introducing amendments of agricultural districts into voting to repeal the duty. The cry against the duty on this article was a very good slogan during the campaign, when stump orators made uncontradicted statements, or, in other words, resorted to downright lying; but now, when reason has resumed its sway and the agriculturalists can turn at will to the McKinley bill, the cry against the duty under the law is hardly worth a paid duty of two and one-half cents per pound, whereas under the present bill, the duty is only seven-tenths of a cent per pound. Knowing the amount of this article he has used, his state and pencil will soon give him the "winning" sum of his "loss" on this commodity. People who are ignorant in the least of the facts of the case, "catch cry," but when they get to really ciphering they are made sensible of their folly. The hope of the Democrats is to keep up the agitation, unskillful, unbusiness, attribute everything to the McKinley bill and thus prevent the country from judging it on its merits.

Wants to Try the Experiment. From the Columbus Dispatch. "Down with the tariff," is now the cry of the free traders who triumphed in the late election. Certainly, down with it. We want to see the Senate try the experiment. We want to see the Senate try the experiment. We want to see the Senate try the experiment.

One of these days believers in temperance will again begin to talk more temperance and less politics. Prohibition in the hands of a separate political organization has been an immense failure. Men who refuse to do any good because they cannot do all they want to, always have been and always will be failures.

Some very sanguine Democratic journals have begun to talk about carrying North Dakota for their party in 1892. Their theory is that their party did well in North Dakota this year and can do better next time. But they forget that it is the Presidential year. And all the Republicans have a habit of voting in Presidential years.

Congressman Springer hopes that the press may point the way to future success for the Democratic party. The Bill and Cleveland organs are already at work erecting sign boards, and other carpenters may be at work soon. Some of them, however, are likely to bear the name of "Springer" as the mascot of Democracy.

The rejoicing in Europe over Democratic success in the United States is general and hearty. If Americans see in it a good omen for themselves, all right. But there are multitudes of Americans who believe that it is the duty of Americans to legislate for Americans, and not for citizens of Europe. In this they seem to differ with the free traders and tariff for revenue gentlemen.

Here is one little item for the consideration of our agricultural friends: We imported 11,734,804 dozens of eggs from Canada in the fiscal year of 1889, and against exports of 329,326 dozens. But now we have a duty on eggs, and at an average price of 12 cents a dozen, we try to give this $1,466,588 worth of trade to American farmers.

Governor Blaine has appointed A. V. Barker, Esq., of Elberston, to be President Judge of Cambria county, to fill the vacancy caused by the death of Judge Johnson. The appointment is an excellent one and reflects credit upon the appointing power. Mr. Barker is a gentleman of law, a lawyer of ability, and a lawyer of market ability. He will do honor to the position and be an ornament to the bench.

Major McKinley is not cast down by the result of the election. He is right in his declaration that the American people will stand firmly by the doctrine of protection in the future. With the Democratic misrepresentation in regard to the protective tariff undoubtedly had some effect with the people at large. But the country has not repudiated the principles of protection, and it will not. The beneficent effects of the American Tariff in the future will insure his permanent popularity with the masses.

What Mr. McKinley Says. Major McKinley, on a visit to Chicago since the election, was interviewed on the subject of the recent elections and among other things said: "I do not know to what extent the new Tariff law influenced the elections this year. It is said in some quarters that it had much to do with the Republican loss. This may be true, but if true it is not because of the new law itself, but because of the misunderstanding of its provisions among the people and of the studied efforts of the free traders at home and abroad, to misrepresent it. Every enemy of Protection seemed engaged in deluding the people concerning both the text and effect of the law. The alleged marking up of prices was a most telling device against the law. It must be remembered that the law was less than a month old when the elections occurred. Its effect could not be felt or shown by actual experience. The free-trade partisan, moved by selfish considerations, had his opportunity and proved it. Falsehood took the place of fact and imposed upon the credulous people. Goods were said to go up in price which had been placed on the free list in the new law. Now that the elections are over, the law will be better understood and its own story in actual operation. Time alone will vindicate it or condemn it. Misrepresentation and deception will no longer avail. Those who care to know its exact provisions can do so by examination of the law itself, removed from partisan contest or prejudice."

Sugar, Tin and Fruits. We find the Democratic press unanimously in a demand that the sugar and fruits should raise the prices of their products "on account of the infamously increased duty on tin," and we find them just as unanimously silent in a demand that they should reduce the prices of their products on account of the virtually decreased duty on sugar.

Why is this? Why does the Democratic press desire that the price of everything should be raised and nothing lowered? Why does it desire an abridgement of the general principle of protection? To submit long to the shames of the defiance of the popular will would be criminal, and it is neither an excuse nor a defence to say that both parties were to blame for their own profit. Congress is expressly authorized to regulate the election of Representatives, and the crying necessity of the hour is that its power be exercised. Gerrymanders must be suppressed, or there is an end to representative government.

It is announced by certain free trade journals that the McKinley bill will be attacked during the coming session of Congress and the next, by introducing separate bills relating to the duty on articles on which an effort is made to place it on the free list, with the hope that enough Republicans will unite with the Democrats to strike off the duty. During the late political canvass a partially successful attempt was made, particularly in some of the western States, to stampede the agriculturists from the Republican ranks, on the alleged high duty placed on this article by the McKinley bill. It is now hoped to reintroduce the bill by introducing amendments of agricultural districts into voting to repeal the duty. The cry against the duty on this article was a very good slogan during the campaign, when stump orators made uncontradicted statements, or, in other words, resorted to downright lying; but now, when reason has resumed its sway and the agriculturalists can turn at will to the McKinley bill, the cry against the duty under the law is hardly worth a paid duty of two and one-half cents per pound, whereas under the present bill, the duty is only seven-tenths of a cent per pound. Knowing the amount of this article he has used, his state and pencil will soon give him the "winning" sum of his "loss" on this commodity. People who are ignorant in the least of the facts of the case, "catch cry," but when they get to really ciphering they are made sensible of their folly. The hope of the Democrats is to keep up the agitation, unskillful, unbusiness, attribute everything to the McKinley bill and thus prevent the country from judging it on its merits.

Wants to Try the Experiment. From the Columbus Dispatch. "Down with the tariff," is now the cry of the free traders who triumphed in the late election. Certainly, down with it. We want to see the Senate try the experiment. We want to see the Senate try the experiment. We want to see the Senate try the experiment.

One of these days believers in temperance will again begin to talk more temperance and less politics. Prohibition in the hands of a separate political organization has been an immense failure. Men who refuse to do any good because they cannot do all they want to, always have been and always will be failures.

Some very sanguine Democratic journals have begun to talk about carrying North Dakota for their party in 1892. Their theory is that their party did well in North Dakota this year and can do better next time. But they forget that it is the Presidential year. And all the Republicans have a habit of voting in Presidential years.

Congressman Springer hopes that the press may point the way to future success for the Democratic party. The Bill and Cleveland organs are already at work erecting sign boards, and other carpenters may be at work soon. Some of them, however, are likely to bear the name of "Springer" as the mascot of Democracy.

The rejoicing in Europe over Democratic success in the United States is general and hearty. If Americans see in it a good omen for themselves, all right. But there are multitudes of Americans who believe that it is the duty of Americans to legislate for Americans, and not for citizens of Europe. In this they seem to differ with the free traders and tariff for revenue gentlemen.

Here is one little item for the consideration of our agricultural friends: We imported 11,734,804 dozens of eggs from Canada in the fiscal year of 1889, and against exports of 329,326 dozens. But now we have a duty on eggs, and at an average price of 12 cents a dozen, we try to give this $1,466,588 worth of trade to American farmers.

Governor Blaine has appointed A. V. Barker, Esq., of Elberston, to be President Judge of Cambria county, to fill the vacancy caused by the death of Judge Johnson. The appointment is an excellent one and reflects credit upon the appointing power. Mr. Barker is a gentleman of law, a lawyer of ability, and a lawyer of market ability. He will do honor to the position and be an ornament to the bench.

Major McKinley is not cast down by the result of the election. He is right in his declaration that the American people will stand firmly by the doctrine of protection in the future. With the Democratic misrepresentation in regard to the protective tariff undoubtedly had some effect with the people at large. But the country has not repudiated the principles of protection, and it will not. The beneficent effects of the American Tariff in the future will insure his permanent popularity with the masses.

What Mr. McKinley Says. Major McKinley, on a visit to Chicago since the election, was interviewed on the subject of the recent elections and among other things said: "I do not know to what extent the new Tariff law influenced the elections this year. It is said in some quarters that it had much to do with the Republican loss. This may be true, but if true it is not because of the new law itself, but because of the misunderstanding of its provisions among the people and of the studied efforts of the free traders at home and abroad, to misrepresent it. Every enemy of Protection seemed engaged in deluding the people concerning both the text and effect of the law. The alleged marking up of prices was a most telling device against the law. It must be remembered that the law was less than a month old when the elections occurred. Its effect could not be felt or shown by actual experience. The free-trade partisan, moved by selfish considerations, had his opportunity and proved it. Falsehood took the place of fact and imposed upon the credulous people. Goods were said to go up in price which had been placed on the free list in the new law. Now that the elections are over, the law will be better understood and its own story in actual operation. Time alone will vindicate it or condemn it. Misrepresentation and deception will no longer avail. Those who care to know its exact provisions can do so by examination of the law itself, removed from partisan contest or prejudice."

Sugar, Tin and Fruits. We find the Democratic press unanimously in a demand that the sugar and fruits should raise the prices of their products "on account of the infamously increased duty on tin," and we find them just as unanimously silent in a demand that they should reduce the prices of their products on account of the virtually decreased duty on sugar.

Highest of all in Leavening Power.—U. S. Gov't Report, Aug. 17, 1889.

Baking Powder
ABSOLUTELY PURE

MARRIED.

YANHOHN—MUNG.—On Tuesday, November 11, 1890, at the residence of the bride's father, near Stoyestown, of Rock, E. S. Johnston, Mr. Albert Van Horn, of Stockton, Ill., to Miss Fanny Mung, of Stoyestown.

NAKURST—POSENRIEDE.—At the office of Scott & Ogle, No. 15, 183rd St. W. Granger, Mr. Edward Nakurst and Miss Anna Marie Posenriede were united in matrimony.

They will make their home in Somerset county.

DIED.

ADAMS.—On Tuesday, November 11, '90, at the home of her son-in-law, Chauncey Berkley, near Lanesville, Mrs. Rosanna M. Adams, aged 73 years, 5 months and 20 days.

Mother Adams, whose maiden name was Young, was baptized in her infancy, confirmed in her youth, and was a consistent member of the Lutheran church for many years.

Her husband was Frederick Adams, of whom she had five children, five of whom preceded her in the great beyond. Two daughters and one son are left to mourn their loss. There are but three of her grandchildren living—J. A. Berkley, Esq., and Mrs. H. F. Barron, of Somerset, and Frank E. Young, of Lanesville. The little daughter of J. A. Berkley, Esq., is her only great-grandchild. The interment took place at Summit's church. Pastor.

STERN.—On Wednesday, Nov. 12, 1890, near Lanesville, Mrs. Rosanna Stern, aged 82 years, 1 month and 12 days.

SHAFER.—On Thursday, Nov. 13, 1890, Henry Shafer, aged 33 years, 5 months and 11 days.

NEW YORK TRIBUNE.
1891.

The Tariff and the Farmer.

The Tribune will devote much space during 1891 to the Tariff and the Farmer. It will discuss the Tariff and the Farmer, and will also discuss the Tariff and the Farmer.

He lost all his Friends and is going Home to Die.

Young Men Who Wish to Succeed.

Many men feel the lack of early direction of their energies and early inauguration of the maxims of success in their life. Every such man would give anything to know how to succeed in life.

He Gave Money to the Lord.

Montrose, Pa., Nov. 13.—Paul Hill is visiting in the Susquehanna. Quarter Sessions will be held at Montrose on the 14th inst.

Vital Topics of the Day.

Other Features.

Asailed by Burglars.

An Oregon Horror.

Prizes for Large Clubs.

Spotted Fever in Tennessee.

Cosmopolitan for December.

Appointments to be Made by the Next Governor.

Harper's Bazar.

Harper's Bazar.

Harper's Bazar.

Harper's Bazar.

Harper's Bazar.

Harper's Bazar.

Harper's Bazar.

Harper's Bazar.

Harper's Bazar.

Harper's Bazar.

Frighful Wreck in a Fog.

While the Western Express ran at the Pennsylvania Mills was taking water at a pump, the fire section of the rail express crashed into the rear sleeper, completely wrecking it and causing the instant death of two people.

The Western Express was due at 9 minutes at 3:30. On account of a freight train above Johnson, however, it was 35 minutes late. It was a double-header, and as only one engine could take the water from the trough between the rails, the train was stopped at the New Florence pump. It required only a few moments to take water, with several minutes in the engine house. It was the engine of the most recent make, and it was the history of the Pennsylvania roads had taken place. The mail express came up untroubled. A dense fog obscured the danger lights in the rear of the fast sleeper, but it was not until the instant that it was struck that the fog prevented the signal being seen until the engine was within a few feet of the freight train, and that only a short distance from the engine of the freight train. The brakes were applied, the engine reversed, but it was too late. The freight train was struck in the rear, and the engine of the freight train was thrown overboard. The engine of the freight train was thrown overboard. The engine of the freight train was thrown overboard.

The scene at the wreck was horrifying. There were 20 people in the rear sleeper. A few of them had arisen, but the greater part were still in their berths. The collision completely demolished the entire car. The engine remained on the track, and the three of whom preceded her in the great beyond. Two daughters and one son are left to mourn their loss. There are but three of her grandchildren living—J. A. Berkley, Esq., and Mrs. H. F. Barron, of Somerset, and Frank E. Young, of Lanesville. The little daughter of J. A. Berkley, Esq., is her only great-grandchild. The interment took place at Summit's church. Pastor.

STERN.—On Wednesday, Nov. 12, 1890, near Lanesville, Mrs. Rosanna Stern, aged 82 years, 1 month and 12 days.

SHAFER.—On Thursday, Nov. 13, 1890, Henry Shafer, aged 33 years, 5 months and 11 days.

NEW YORK TRIBUNE.
1891.

The Tariff and the Farmer.

The Tribune will devote much space during 1891 to the Tariff and the Farmer. It will discuss the Tariff and the Farmer, and will also discuss the Tariff and the Farmer.

He lost all his Friends and is going Home to Die.

Young Men Who Wish to Succeed.

Many men feel the lack of early direction of their energies and early inauguration of the maxims of success in their life. Every such man would give anything to know how to succeed in life.

He Gave Money to the Lord.

Montrose, Pa., Nov. 13.—Paul Hill is visiting in the Susquehanna. Quarter Sessions will be held at Montrose on the 14th inst.

Vital Topics of the Day.

Other Features.

Asailed by Burglars.

An Oregon Horror.

Prizes for Large Clubs.

Spotted Fever in Tennessee.

Cosmopolitan for December.

Appointments to be Made by the Next Governor.

Harper's Bazar.

Harper's Bazar.

Harper's Bazar.

Harper's Bazar.

Harper's Bazar.

Harper's Bazar.

Harper's Bazar.

Harper's Bazar.

Harper's Bazar.

Harper's Bazar.

Harper's Bazar.

Harper's Bazar.

Harper's Bazar.

Harper's Bazar.

Harper's Bazar.

Harper's Bazar.

Highest of all in Leavening Power.—U. S. Gov't Report, Aug. 17, 1889.

Baking Powder
ABS