ly the wish is father of the thought. The most important of these views comes from John Sherman, the Nestor of the party. He has had many years of experience. More than thirty years ago his name was familiar and endeared to the Republicans of the whole country. His range of experience is wide. And he is not carried away by the impulse of the hour. His head is cool and his judgment excellent. He holds that there is nothing to be cast down about in the failure of the McKinley bill to receive popular support at this particulor time

"I have seen such convulsions a dozen times or more, but they have had no pernument effect. In 1878, when I was Secretary of the Treasury, we loss the House and Senate both, but two years later, in 1880, we rallied and recovered all that we had lost and elected a Republican President. Besides, I do not regard the present situation with apprehension. The country will be wiser by next year, and better able to pass upon the issues."

Chauncey M. Depew is another National leader. His name is familiar to the publicall over the country. He is far from gloomy. His cheerfulness is not of the Mark Tapley order. He recognizes the defeat as in a sense overwhelmingly great, but he is confident that it does not amount to a rebuke of what Congress actually did, only of what it has been falsely accused of doing, and erroneously supposed to have done. His words have in them the cordial of a cheery common sense. He says :

"The farmers have been heard from. They come into their country towns to buy something, and are told by the store keeper that the McKinley tariff is raising the price of everything, and they had better buy at once, and, it is needless to say they don't like it. These are the illegitimate results of the McKinley tariff, It has hardly gone into operation yet, and its good effects cannot be felt for some time to come. I do not believe it will raise prices, as people are now pretending it will, and I think it will stimulate industry, and two years hence will reverse the decision of yesterday, for it is clear that the idea of protection is deeply rooted and growing fast in this great

Nowhere does there seem to be any reactionary disposition. If the Senate had followed the example of the House in the prompt passage of the tariff bill and Congress had then adjourned, and thus given the several members a chance to go before their constituents and explain matters, there would have been a different result, probably. As it was the people were left in the dark, to a great extent. Many Republicans, uncertain what to do, husked corn at home instead of sawing wood at the polls. But it is useless to repine or to dwell upon defeat and its causes. The Republican party is not dependent for the breath of life upon the fickle winds which blow from one point of the compass to-day, and from another

The Man Under the Seat.

Three brother officers were traveling together from Umritsir to Labore, during the afternoon. One of them fell asleep. His railway ticket, which was sticking a little out of his pocket, was taken by one of the others. When nearing Labore his brother officers woke the " Now, then, old man! Get up! Here

The incressed export to cattle is attributed to the ab sence of disease, prevented by Government inspection, and he urges a more comprehensive law which will apply to swine; he critici es the Tariff bill in taking the payment off sugar bounties and sugar interests from his department, and predicts that in the near fature half of our home consumption of sugar will be made from beets. The producion of raw silk is not encouraging. The orthcoming transfer of the Weather Bureau o this department is touched on and theadvantages of its proposed enlargement and renter efficiency to farmers. The frequent this country is conspicuous by its absence is regretted. On the whole a very much more favorable outlook is presented on the part of the farmers than for many years past, and ends by declaring that be looks forward with confidence, to the time when in the high quality of its work, as well as in the magniude of its enterprise, the agriculture of the United States shall not only lead all other

A Brave Policeman's Battle.

CHICAGO, Nov. 10,-Thomas Cowes, a farmer from Indiana, arrived in Chicago early depot and had gone about two blocks when he met two colored men named Sam Wilson and Eugene, alias "Honey" Hall. The negroes proceeded to rob the countryman, and had secured his watch and chain and pocketbook when Officer O'Malley heard the farmer's cries for help.

The officer attacked the two negroes. Wilson drew a large revolver and placed the muzzle againt the policeman's breast. Before he could pull the trigger O'Mailey had him by the throat and the gun was discharged in the air. Both men went down in the gutter, and Hall began to kick the officer in the head. After fighting for several minutes against the two burly negroes, the officer received a blow that rendered him unconscious. Just at this time, and as the negroes were running away, two officers came up. It took both of them to overpower the colored men and take them to the station. Officer O'Mailey lay unconscious in the mud, with blood streaming from a dezen wounds, until the police ambulance arrived and removed him to his home. He is in a

An Operator Among Bears.

Wilkendere Pa., Nov. 8.—Elward Smith, a young felegraph operator of New York, had a frightful experience on the mountain last night. The Central Railroad of New Jersey runs its trains through a tunnel in the mountain, and on the east side of the mountain is the mountain, and on the east side of the mountain is the mountain, and on the east side of the mountain is the mountain, and on the east side of the mountain is the mountain, and on the east side of the mountain is the mountain. The place the tunnel is a telegraph office. The place is so lonely that it is a hard matter to keep an operator there. Young Smith accepted the place last Monday. At midnight last night e usual quiet was broken by terrible yells, and Smith, looking out, saw his shanty sursounded by bears, wildcats and other wild

The wildcats dashed against the window and Smith fought them with a red-hot poker, while the bears climbed on the root Smith telegraphed in haste to White Haven and Operator McAndrews responded by sending down an engine and a number of section bands. At the approach of the engine the wildcats fled. Subsequently two large wildcats were killed. Smith said he would not spend another night in the place for a fort une, and when the next train came along for New York he boarded it.

Depew's Prayer in the Car.

New York, Nov. 8 .- There's a new-old story about Chauncey M. Depew. One night he and President Green, of the Western Union; J. Pierrepont Morgan, Pres dent King, of the Erie Road; ex Secretary Whitney and others were speeding along at sixtyfive miles an hour, when their special train struck and killed a poor printer walking on the track: The merriment of Depew's stories ceased. The train took the corpse back to Greenfield, and then proceeded on its way Then, after all in the palace car had knelt Chauncey offered a fervent prayer for the deed man's soul, and for the widow and orphans left behind. Arising from their knees he, Banker Morgan, and the others of the company contributed $200 each for the unfortunates of that family.

He Yelled "Kemp's Balsam."

I yell, "Take Kemp's Balsam, the best cough cure. I always do when I hear a man cough, and I can't help it. It saved me, and it will cure you. I was threateneu with pneumonia last winter, and it broke it up. It helps the children out when their throats are sore, cures their cough, and tastes so good. The first dose helps you." So writes A. R. Arnold, engineer on the West Shore Eailroad, at Canajoharie, N. Y.
