Literary Note. The American rouganines have come to be recognized the world over as the best illustrated and most ably conducted; in fact, it is said that larger editions are sold in England of at least two of our leading magazines than of any of the English monthlies. This condition has resulted from the fact that the American imagazines hesitate at no expense, either for the purchase of manuscript or illustration, $50,000 has been paid by one magazine for a single series. Millions are invested in the business, and they can well afford to pay any price for an article of unusual interest. Probably no single cause is having such an effect in the education of both old and young America as these magasince. They are penetrating futo every bousehold. Their beautiful engravings serve es instructors even to those unable or too busy to read. The most popular authors recognize that they can obtain more money from the magazines than by publishing in book form. In proportion to bound volumes, the magazine gives as four to one. Take for instance the Composition, which contains annually 1506 pages by the leading writers of the world, and more than 1200 H Instrations by clever artists. That would make four volumes of nearly 400 pages each yet it is furnished to the antiscribers at only $240 a year. The four bound volumes which it would make would be worth o Ask for the book stands not less than $12.00. It seems impossible that so much should be furnished for so little, and it is only when the number reaches 100,000 or upwards that such work can be turned out at a profit to the publisher. Formerly it was conimpossible to place such a magazipe before the public for less than $4.00 per annum, and the predictions were numerous, when the price of the Canapolitan was fixed at $2.40, that it would be impossible for it to survive at such a figure. The publisher believed that a first-class magazine at the low price of $2.40 would be quickly appreciated by the public. His expectations have been more than falfilled, and the December lass of the Comepositan reached the 100,000 with the President during the week on matters connected with the political movemen of the future. Those who are in confidential relations with the President no longer heritate to say that he will be a candidate for renomination in 1891. Secretary Blaine has also informed one of his closest friends, within the past twenty-four hours, that he will support the President for renomination. and shall expect all his friends to unite with him in that direction. The Secretary is deeply interested in his diplomatic work which is not only congenial to his tastes but is a less strain upon his energies and health It is also known that Mrs. Blaine is very much averse to her husband venturing upor another campaign, and is entirely satisfied w th her present surroundings. General Clarkson had a lengthy interview ertain political matters which will have more or less bearing upon the plans of the party leaders in there preliminary stages. The financial problem is beginning to grow more and more interesting as the present situation of monetary affairs becomes better understood. The effort is to provide measure which will meet all the requirements, and try to pass it as speedily as possible. It was intimated in Secretary Windom's office to-day that the evident determination of Congress to do something to relieve the financial situation is having a beneficial offect in keeping up confidence until action could be taken. The troubles thus far have not reached well established institutions dong a legitimate business. It is believed here that the present stringency will have the effect of thinning out concerns which had nothing to warrant their operations in the beginning, and have been doing a bluff business for purposes of speculation and possible profits and success. The Secretary does not think that the disasters will be general, but that they will be confined within the limits indicated

Horace Johnson, a Connecticut weather prophet, who predicted the great blizzard of nearly three years ago, says that the coming will be a severe winter, and figures it out in the following points: The phenomenally arge hay crops of the country, the hard, thick shells of the crabs, thick corn husks, he abundant fleece inside the busks, the igh and strongly constructed muskrat buts and the heavy fur of gray equirrels. Coons are unusually flat, too, and horses and cattle bave put on a very thick coat of hair.

He Yelled "Kemp's Balsam." I yell, "Take Kemp's Balsam, the best cough cure. I always do when I hear a man cough, and I can't help it. It saved me, and it will cure you. Not long ago before the Board of Pardons came a venerable Irish woman, a neat looking, motherly old lady, who asked for the pardon of her son, in jail for some minor ofjense. With her was her daughter, a sweet shy girl, who stood besides the mother while the latter, with tears streaming down her cheeks, plend for her boy. The members of the Board were visibly affected by the scene. When the mother had finished, the daught er, looking up shyly, said in a voice scarcely above a whisper: "If yez would take a little money to let him free, I have a matter of ten dollars here," and she showed a faded old purse.
