DR. S. B. HARTMAN, Of the Surgical Hotel, Columbus, O., Lectures on Catarrh. Catarrh a Prolific Source of Diseases Innumerable. Catarrh Capable of Destroying Four Out of Five Senses. A Radical and Permanent Cure Discussed. Health is the perfect adjustment of the human body to its surrounding conditions. Disease is the failure of the human body to perfectly adjust itself to its surroundings (environment). In hot countries the body must adjust itself to a low temperature or perish. In so-called temperate countries, where the degree heat of the tropics prevails part of the season, and the piercing cold of the arctic the other part, the human system must somehow adjust itself to these fluctuations of disease and death is the result. The change from cold to heat which occurs in the spring tends to produce disease of the blood and nervous system, while the change from warm to cold which takes place in late fall or early winter tends to the production of catarrhal diseases. Catarrh is the source of a frightful list of diseases. It is silent and insidious in its ravages, but it pervades nearly every household and hovers like a pestilence over every hamlet and city in our land. Catarrh—and its legitimate consequences—has desolated more heartstones, made wretched more happy lives, and ended more brilliant careers than all other diseases combined. Catarrh may end in deafness, blindness, loss of smell, loss of taste, or the entire loss of voice. Diphtheria, bronchitis, pneumonia, consumption and pleurisy begin almost always as the result of a catarrhal attack. The worst forms of dyspepsia and Bright's disease of the kidneys are also the direct consequence of neglected cases of acute catarrh. Even when the victims of acute catarrh escape all these dire mental and physical afflictions, it remains the great probability of its ending in chronic catarrh. It is beyond the descriptive powers of language to portray the peculiar misery of a subject of chronic catarrh. While these patients do not suffer the acute pain of rheumatism or neuralgia, or the indescribable anguish of diseases of the nervous system, yet it would be very difficult to over-paint the picture of woe which usually befalls the sufferer from chronic catarrh. THE FIRST STAGE OF CATARRH (or acute catarrh) is commonly known as "a cold." "Catching cold" is the ordinary phrase for an attack of acute catarrh. It may begin with a slight cough, or hawking and spitting mucus from the throat, or running at the nose, or watery eyes; but these symptoms, in a large per cent of cases, continue to grow worse and more or fatal disease sets in. Of course some cases recover without treatment, but it is extremely dangerous and foolish to run such risks. If no attention is paid to the acute stage it either sets up diphtheria, pneumonia, consumption, or some other disease, or develops chronic catarrh, or at least leaves the mucous surfaces of the head and throat especially liable to another attack at the slightest exposure. As soon as chronic catarrh has become established the victim is never free from a list of disgusting and troublesome symptoms which are sufficient to make life almost unendurable. If the chronic catarrh is of the humid variety an incessant spitting, hawking and blowing of the nose is kept up, to the great annoyance of the patient and others. The thickened membranes of the nose and throat produces snoring, watery eyes and deafness. If the chronic catarrh takes the form of the dry (atrophic) variety the thinned mucous membranes allow free breathing, but there is a continual raw feeling in all of the air passages, sometimes extending into the bronchial tubes and lungs. There is also a very offensive breath, dry scales in the nose, more or less loss of smell and taste, and other symptoms common to atrophic catarrh. It would be, indeed, folly for me to describe in detail this expiring disease unless I had in view some relief or cure for those people who are so unfortunate as to be afflicted. It is no longer a question in my mind as to whether Pe-ru-na can be relied on to cure all such cases. During the many years in which Pe-ru-na has been put to test in all forms and stages of acute and chronic catarrh, no one year has put this remedy to greater test than the past one, especially the winter of 1890. La Grippe spread from ocean to ocean like a devastating fire, leaving in its trail catarrhal affections of every conceivable variety in such numbers as was never before known in this country. Pe-ru-na being well known as the best catarrh remedy yet discovered, the demand for it was so great that the manufacturers could scarcely fill the demand for it at that time, pouring in from all parts of the United States. Pe-ru-na was so invariably successful in the cure of the thousands of cases in which it was used that a great number of old cases of catarrh who had given up all hope of cure began to use it, with such astonishing results that it leaves no room for doubt that every catarrh, however long standing and difficult of cure, can be permanently cured by the use of Pe-ru-na. TREATMENT. In acute cases, which come as a severe cold, a wingless fall in hot water, followed by a teaspoonful every hour or a tablespoonful every two hours, is most convenient to the patient, should be taken. In ordinary colds or catarrhal attacks it will be sufficient to take this remedy as directed on the bottle. In old cases of catarrh, whether of the humid or dry variety, it is only necessary to take Pe-ru-na exactly as directed on the bottle. Any person using Pe-ru-na who does not realize the benefit they ought from its use should write to me, giving a description of the circumstances, and I am usually able to discover the reason of the failure and help them to a speedy cure. But it is only necessary in the great majority of cases to follow the direction on the bottle and a cure is certain. For a complete treatise as to the varieties of Pe-ru-na in the various stages, uses and complications of catarrh, send at once for a copy of the Family Physician No. 2, sent free to any address by the Pe-ru-na Medicine Company, Columbus, Ohio. They were rich. The daughter was taking lessons in equestrian and social ball. "A penny for your thoughts," she archly remarked to an abstracted visitor, and then felt, from the look of horror that overspread her parent's face, she must have been guilty of a lapse. "Why didn't you come here a dollar?" was the lady's criticism after the visit of her daughter. "We've got money, and you mustn't be afraid to let folks know it."—Pallas, Times.

It is told of him that while riding along in Buncome county one day he overtook a young man, dark, with whom he thought to have "a little fun."

When The Hair
Shows signs of falling, begin at once the use of Ayer's Hair Vigor. This preparation strengthens the scalp, promotes the growth of new hair, restores the natural color to gray and faded hair, and renders it soft, pliant, and glossy.

A Rich Brown
or even black. It will not soil the pillowcase and a pocket-handkerchief, and is always agreeable. All the dirty, gummy hair preparations should be discarded at once by Ayer's Hair Vigor, and thousands who go around with heads looking like the fetid porcupine should hurry to the nearest drug store and purchase a bottle of the Vigor.
