NIGHT IN THE COUNTRY. Oh, bird that lingers in the hush. Of twilight as it falls.

My sister Belle and I, Nell, have seated ourselves at grandmother's feet to hear the story of her courtship, a half century ago.

Women, Beautiful and Strong. Ambitious girls may well be reminded that, in these times, the brilliant prizes open to them in all the professions, sciences, letters, art, and in every walk of life, are better open to those who have deep chests and a good digestion. Much else is requisite, much else desirable; but physical strength and stamina are indispensable. As Mr. Emerson remarked in one of his lectures: "The first condition of successful life is to be a good animal."
