WHY!
The virtues or merits of a remedy are not to be ascertained by the number of testimonials, but by the results it produces. It is not an idle claim that it strikes the eye.
ST. JACOBS OIL
THE GREAT REMEDY FOR PAIN, IS THE BEST.
It is the best cure for all aches and pains, and it holds
THE TRUE PROOF.
To this specific fact: Archbishops, Bishops, Clergymen, Lawyers, Doctors, Governors, Generals, Senators, Members of Congress and Legislatures, U. S. Senate, Army and Navy Officers, Mayors and Officials, jointly and severally, have testified to its merits. It is not an idle claim that it strikes the eye.
OTHER REMEDIES FAILED, and St. Jacobs Oil cured promptly and permanently. For the same reason.
THE POOR MAN
It will relieve him and needs, it does not cost him a cent.

WHEN THE HAIR
Shows signs of falling, light it once the use of Ayer's Hair Vigor. This preparation strengthens the scalp, promotes the growth of new hair, restores the natural color to gray and faded hair, and renders it soft, pliant, and glossy.
We have no hesitation in recommending Ayer's Hair Vigor unqualifiedly for dressing the hair, and we do this after long experience. This preparation cleanses the scalp, restores the natural color, and prevents the hair from falling out. It is a good dressing for the hair, and it is a good dressing for the hair.
A Rich Brown or even black. It will not soil the pillowcase nor a pocket-handkerchief, and is always agreeable. All the dirty, grubby hair preparations should be displaced at once by Ayer's Hair Vigor, and thousands who go around with heads looking like "the devil's own" should hurry to the nearest drug store and purchase a bottle of the Vigor.
"Ayer's Hair Vigor is excellent for the hair. It stimulates the growth, cures baldness, restores the natural color, and prevents the hair from falling out. It is a good dressing for the hair, and it is a good dressing for the hair."

THE PAST AND PRESENT.
ADDRESS DELIVERED BEFORE THE LOCAL INSTITUTE OF THE FARMERS' INSTITUTE AT BELLEVILLE, PA., FEBRUARY 4, 1891, BY SAMUEL FISHBURN, ESQ.
I do not suppose it is expected of me to give much information that may be of practical use to the average farmer, but I may, from many years' close observation, and some practical knowledge obtained when quite a youth, and the direction and experience of conducting the affairs of a farm for myself for upwards of the past thirty years, I may be able to say something beneficial on the subject allotted me, viz: "The Past and the Present Modes of Farming, Together with the Remedies Acquiring to our Farming Community."
I am led to believe that a large portion of the people look upon the farmer as a being susceptible of but little improvement, and that many of our young people imagine they can attain to more prominence by abandoning agricultural pursuits and applying themselves to some thing seemingly more elevating and agreeable to their achieving more creditable distinction in the future.
But I fear such persons are greatly deluded, believing as I do, that all classes of our community are dependent upon the farmer—upon the success of the farmer—upon the clergy, the physician, the jurist, the banker, the mechanic, the manufacturer, the railroad magnate, and all classes of society, with the exception, perhaps, of the lawyers and corrupt politicians, are greatly interested in the success and prosperity of the intelligent farmer.
The natural basis of mankind in a progressive account for our interest in the science of agriculture; its success is at the foundation of their general welfare, as the fruits of the farmer's labor supports the industry of all other classes. I would beg leave to impress upon our young people that many of the most distinguished men of America delighted in agriculture. The father of our country, George Washington, together with several of our leading presidents—Jefferson, Madison, Jackson, and the lamented Garfield, and last but not least our illustrious and far-famed jurist, Jeremiah S. Black, delighted in attending to the cultivation of the soil; and I verily believe that no man is entitled to the lasting gratitude of his fellow-men more than the tiller of the soil, who will set apart a few acres of his domain for experimenting upon the best means of producing the largest results possible by systematic observations of the effect produced by the best means of culture and full preparation of the soil and then profiting by his own experience and imparting his discoveries to his neighbors. Consequently we may speak, not from what he read in history, but from our own observations of the modes of farming, the implements used, the science of agriculture, and the results of the farmer's labor, which are clearly perceptible to all intelligent farmers, greater strides in the future can and should be accomplished by the aid of the science of chemistry—the analysis of soils, by which the prediction made for years ago, "That a farmer may carry to his fields filled in his pocket hankerchief a concentrated manure that will enrich his land as much as many wagon loads would now."
Some persons have predicted that it would be clearly demonstrated that from the tallest forest tree to the tiniest blade of grass, through the application of chemistry, they could be made to grow four times as fast as they do naturally, and with almost no additional trouble. If that prediction be true, of which I have no doubt, it would be adding to raise four crops in a season, instead of one. Less than fifty years ago, a field almost within the hearing of my voice comprising ten acres was covered with clover, and sheep and cattle were pastured there for the last ten years that same land, by scientific cultivation, has produced large crops of cereals, corn and potatoes, and yielded crops of grass to the extent of three and four tons of most excellent hay to the acre.
Many of my hearers to-day may imagine but little improvement can be made in the future in the science of agriculture, by the invention of improved implements to lighten the labor of the farmer, or the cultivation of the soil to increase the quality and quantity of the products of the farm, but I would say to each doubtful person look back upon the past, within your own knowledge; contrast it with what has thus far been accomplished; then imagine what may be learned by frequently gathering together and imparting the knowledge and experience of each other, and infusing encouragement to experiment and labor for the general good. Not long since it was suggested by the construction and use of pneumatic tubes that mail matter from New York to Philadelphia could be conveyed readily at the rate of four miles per minute, with several stations upon the route for points of delivery, which if perfected, would require only about twenty-five minutes' time to cover the distance that now requires two to three hours. And I would not be in the least surprised if important lines of railway were constructed upon the same principle, thus affording a market for much of our surplus produce.

Many of the loud complaints we now hear among our farmers of onerous taxation, can only be remedied by joint action of the farming community in asserting their rights, and giving their personal attention to the selection of persons upon whom they can rely to administer the affairs of County and State judiciously, economically and for the general interest of the farmer, which will result in the welfare of the entire community.
And I would also suggest that statements of settlements of other countries of our State be procured, from which it seems clear that lavish and wasteful extravagance is indulged in by our country citizens, causing much of the burdensome taxation of our county at the present day.
Economy in a Family.
There is nothing which goes so far toward placing young people beyond the reach of poverty, as economy in the management of their domestic affairs. It matters not whether a man furnish little or much for his family, if there is a continual leakage in the kitchen or in the parlor. It is the husband's duty to bring into the house, and it is the duty of the wife to see that nothing goes wrongfully out of it—of that the least article, however unimportant in itself, for it establishes a precedent—no undergarment, for instance, the door for rain to stain it, and be seldom leaves an opportunity unimproved. The husband's interests should be the wife's care, and her greatest ambition should carry her no farther than his welfare or happiness, together with that of her children. This should be her sole aim, and the theatre of her exertions is in the bosom of her family, where she may do so much toward making a fortune as he can in the counting-room or in the workshop. It is not the money earned that makes a man wealthy—it is what he saves from his earnings. A good and prudent husband makes a deposit of the fruits of his labor with his best friend, and if that friend be not true, he will not place confidence in the companion of his bed, where he is to place it—N. Y. Ledger.

A Born Liar.
Harold, a boy of five, converses with his friend, of equally mature years, as follows:
"My father is going to get me a goat."
"I've got twenty goats."
"Where are they?"
"Oh, they're down in father's office, course."
"Why don't they bring them here?"
"They're sick."
"A pause. Harold speaks:
"I saw Anthony's nose last summer."
"I saw Anthony himself."
"Anthony's nose is a rock, and it won't break off and fall into the water."
"I saw it fall."
"I saw a mother, an interested listener, at this point thought it expedient to interpose with a moral lesson.
"Why, Jack, said she, 'did you never hear of a man and a Sapphira?'"
"I knew them both."
"You know, Jack, they were struck dead for telling lies."
"Yes, I saw them struck."
"Jack, do you know where they went?"
"Oh, yes; I saw them go."
The First Fish Caught in Salt Lake.
At last a fish has been caught in the great Salt Lake. It was captured near Bull's Bay, and is about 10 inches long. It is different from anything ever seen here before, having a large head, a body covered with scales, and a tail which is almost transparent, except the dark outlines of the vertebrae, which is as well formed as if it were a full grown fish, and is dark. There were two of these small fish swimming together, and they were so lively that only one could be caught—Denver Republic.

Some Startling Facts.
The official returns from Boards of Health show that nearly three-fourths of all deaths are from Consumption. When we think over this fact it is really awful, though every case started with a simple Cough or Cold. Realize how important it is to check this terrible malarial cough can be done by using Pan-Tina Cough and Consumption Cure. Price 25 and 50 cents.

Passenger—Is this ticket good to stop off?
Conductor—Yes. But it won't be good to get an again.
"Why are you trespassing on my land? Don't you see that sign there?"
"Yes; but I am trespassing, and came over to see what it said."
Deacon—"How did you like the minister?"
Stranger—Very much, I have nothing but praise for him."
"Yes; I noticed that when I passed the contribution plate in your pew."
An old negro woman, paying for a slander, said:
"O, Lord, wont you be kind enough to take the door of my mouth off, and when you put it on again just hang it on the Gospel hinges of peace on earth good will to men." Amen.
The perfect woman is a rare one, and should she, by any accident, cross your path, young man, do not be disappointed if you find her in quest of a perfected man.—Detroit Free Press.
