Both are dead, and everybody, for a moment, is awed with the tragedy, save the fare dealer. He smiles as before and taps his silver box: "Game, gentlemen!" The Great Benefit Which people in a run-down state of health derive from Hood's Sarsapardia, conclusively proves that this medicine "makes the weak strong." It does not act like a stimulant, imparting fietitions strength, but Hood's Sarsaparilla builds up in a perfectly natural way all the weakened parts, purifies the blood, and assists to healtfly action those important organs, the kidneys and liver. A Puzzle. The following proposition is left for the reader to think about :	"Well, then, Mollie, would it be possible for you to metamorphose that cat into a squirrel." "What an idea 1 Don't yourlike cats." "Oh, yes, indeed. That is why I object, to your taking such unwarranted liberties with that feline." "What do you mean." "What do you mean." "Well, you see you have made your cat come down the tree head foremost. A cat can't do that : a cat always backs down. So you'll either have to reverse that cat or paint a bushy tail over her back, and cut her head down a little, and shorten her legs, and make her over gen- erally, so that she will pass muster as a squirrel." The matter at last was finally compre- mised by the conversion of the cat for synirrel into a large knot-hole in the side of the tree, which left less room for hypercritical discussion

A Snow Storm Indoors. On a very cold, clear night an evening party was given ia a saloon in Stock- holm, Sweden. Many people were gath- ered together in a single room, and it be- came so warm in the course of the even- ing that several ladies complained of feeling ill. An attempt was made to raise a win- dow, but the sashes had been frozen in their place and it was impossible to move them. In this situation, as it was absolutely necessary that air should be admitted, a pane of glass was smashed out. A cold current at once rushed in, and at the same instant flakes of snow were seen to fall to the floor in all parts of the room. I must hurry up, or I cannot get a good supper for General Washington." The officer, injoying the joke, obedi- ently took up the axe, and soon the chips were flying in all directions. He was busily working away when General Washington and his staff rode up to the tavern. "Why, General Lee," said the Com- mander-in-chief, "what in the world are you doing?" "Ob," replied Lee, lifting his head, "I am helping the maids in the kitchen. General Washington and his officers are coming here for supper to-night." Both generals burst into a hearty laugh, in which their companions joined; and even the landlady, who had set the general to work, enjoyed the joke affer she had recovered somewhat from her mortification.
