"I was off my horse, and my arteries were cot. Our army was in retreat. Two soldiers passed and saw me. I was perfectly conscions, and I called the soldiers.

"Boys,' I said to them, 'come and take my watch and my pocketbook. I should rather they'd go my countrymen than to Prussians."

"After they had done so I asked them to brace me up against the hedge with my face to the enemy, and then leave

"They objected, but I said, it will make perhaps, ten minutes difference in the length of my life. What does that amount to ? Thank you, boys-now,run along "

"They seated me with my back against the bedge and left me. I was growing weaker; my blood was flowing in abundance. However, the flesh, or the thickening of the blood, seemed presently to stop the arteries. I had no notion of fainting. "Presently I heard footsteps behind me. It was my two soldiers come back again. "'We can't leave you so, colonel," they said. "There's an ambulance over there. We're going to carry you to it."

"In spite of my refusals they picked me up and finally left me in a little hut. The surgeon came, hastily dressed my wounds and rode away at a gallop. Then I was forgotten for thirty-six hours; and I did not die. I was fearfully thirsty, and I could not keep off the swarming flies with my stumps.

At last I was away in an ambulance, with six companions picked up on the almost unconsciously to clap, and then road. All six of these died, but I did everybody clapped and applauded until not.
