The Famine In Russia.

Lospon, Oct. 1.-The St. Petersburg correwelcome presence. A. E. Patton, cashier of spondent of the Standard states that 25,000 the Curwensville Bank and a son-in-law of 000 persons in Russia are unable to pay their Banker Dill, then came down and signed the taxes, and that this causes a deficit in the badget of £12,000,000. Dire distress prevails in many sections, and the minister finance has just granted another million in aid of the famine stricken people. Private letters give heartrending accounts of the distress among the people, especially in Kazan, Samars and Mijnl-Novgored. Deaths are so numerous that many people are buried without raligious rites. The tribunals dismiss charges of robbery of bakeries. The government bas again forbidden the press to allude to the famine on account of an article proposing an income tax to relieve over-burdened peasants
