

Now get ready for '92. Did you hear anything drap? Welcome back into the fold, Ohio. So it is a Republican job, after all. To Governor McKinley: Greeting. "That name old coin" looks up serenely. The Constitutional Convention wasn't in it. The battle is over—organize for the next.

"Boys will be boys" out in Iowa for two years to come. Major McKinley made a Napoleonic campaign and won a glorious victory. The Bardeley platform was not a safe one to stand upon. It looks as though Cleveland would float into the campaign with Boies.

Wearing "election hats" and smoking "election cigars" is now the fashion. Just in the place where the Democrats wanted their rooster to crow the loudest, he lost his voice. Whenever the battle of 1861 was fought on National issues Republicans have reason to be satisfied with the results.

The President can issue his Thanksgiving proclamation now at any time. Republicans feel thankful. We beg pardon for laughing at a funeral, but what did strike the Reynolds boomers Monday night? With a little extra work the 1,490 majority given Gregg and Morrison in this county was doubled in '92.

The Democratic cry was "Thou shalt not steal," and the Republicans prevented them from stealing the State. The vote of the "Metropolis" Tuesday would indicate that it is the home of Chairman John. The Constitutional Convention proposition didn't succeed because the people didn't want it to.

All that is left of the Farmers' Alliance in Kansas appears to be "sockless" Jerry Simpson. His county ticket was the only Alliance one elected this fall. And now the professed Republicans who voted for Reynolds because he was a "sure winner" are wishing they hadn't done it.

Chairman John—"We had the cards stacked on you," but you held the joker, played it on the last trick and won the game. The withdrawal of Mr. Koser cut the ground from under the feet of Mr. Reynolds, and his fall was sudden, hard and unexpected.

Out of fifteen judges elected in this State Tuesday, the Republicans elected ten, and four Democratic judges were retired. Not a bad day's work. The five great Republican triumphs of the north east in their usual triumphs majority for the entire ticket Tuesday night.

A plurality of 1,492 for General Gregg under all the circumstances of this election is a very good showing for Somerset county Republicans. Mr. LONGENECKER was nominated at seven o'clock Monday evening. By seven o'clock Tuesday morning he was elected President Judge of the Sixteenth Judicial District. Quick work.

Massachusetts has re-elected a Democratic Governor by a reduced majority. There is no particular significance in this as the issues at the recent election were purely legal and technical. Nobody doubts that Massachusetts will cast her vote overwhelmingly for the Republican Presidential candidate.

We hear a great deal about the Democratic party being too big to be bossed, and the time has come at the events of the past year in connection with that party. If every political organization was bossed—and bossed to death—is the Democratic party of Pennsylvania is that organization.

The editor of a Democratic newspaper wisely lifts his brows and remarks, "Will President Harrison in his message, in view of the recent elections, state all on Ohio and the McKinley idea, or will he hedge on the tariff for the rest of the country?" There is small reason for hedges. Everywhere that national issues were boldly made the election shows Republican gains. This was true in Ohio and Pennsylvania and Kansas and Nebraska, and nothing saved New York and the Democracy but the local issues and the fall pocketbook.

The result of the election in Pennsylvania is peculiarly gratifying to Republicans, the majority given to the candidates on the State ticket being far in excess of the estimates of the leaders. The desperate attempts of the Democrats to barbed wire political capital out of the State failed utterly. The Republican majority for the State is a magnificent one. Frustrated with the hope of national spoils to come, the Democrats strained every nerve, exhausted every resource, played every imaginable trick, and in the desperate game of expediency they sacrificed every principle they had ever professed, but the answer of the people is a Republican majority approaching 60,000. The meaning of this superiority is that Pennsylvania will support none of the Democracy. The old Keystone maintains her position in the front rank of Republican States and gives promise that she will lead them all in the great contest of '92.

The Republican voters of this judicial district are to be sincerely congratulated upon the election of Hon. Jacob H. Longenecker to preside over their courts for the next ten years. He is a lawyer of ability, a gentleman of spotless character, and is possessed of all the qualities which should make a fair, impartial, dignified and conscientious judge. He will prove himself a worthy successor to the present worthy incumbent. The action of the Republican voters of the district, especially those of Somerset county, in quickly laying aside all animosities and all feelings that had been foolishly engendered by the long protracted conference, and rallying to the support of the nominee, was most commendable. The contest was one of the most extraordinary ones that ever occurred in politics. With a normal majority of 3,000 the Republicans, with two candidates in the field, were starting certain defeat in the face of a within a few hours of the opening of the polls. But the few remaining hours were all sufficient for the sturdy yeomen of the two counties to snatch a most brilliant victory from the jaws of defeat. When the polls closed Tuesday evening the well-matched, well-organized and well-paid forces of the enemy had been disastrously put to rout, and victory was inscribed upon the banners of those who but a few hours before had been without the hope of success. Nor will the victors ever have cause to regret their heroic and unselfish action. They are secured, in the election of Mr. Longenecker, a capable and upright judge, one who will be a credit to the bar and an honor to those who placed him there.

Ohio is redeemed. Major McKinley's magnificent campaign is crowned with victory. The patriotic Buckeye State has spoken in no uncertain terms. She has pronounced for protection, honest money and the gallant statesman who has waged within her borders a canvass that has seldom been equalled and never surpassed in the history of American politics. The whole Republican party was vitally interested in the Ohio contest. The issue on which it was fought were national in character. The leaders were men of national reputation. Major McKinley stands before the American people as the standard representative of protection to American industry and the champion of the rights of the laboring man. As the author of the greatest economic measure in the annals of the United States he appealed to his fellow countrymen in his native State to support him and vindicate the McKinley tariff. As the unflinching champion of the Republic he appealed to every patriotic American to support him. As the champion of Ohio to sustain the cause of sound currency and repudiate the dangerous and dishonest free silver theories of his Democratic opponents. From the first the Ohio Republicans forced the issue. They conducted a brilliantly aggressive campaign. The Democrats were kept on the defensive. The Democrats were unflinching. His mastery appeals to the intelligence and patriotism of the people were irresistible. Everywhere his silences were everywhere the champions of his kind, unswerving in their support of the McKinley tariff. OFFICIAL RETURNS OF THE GENERAL ELECTION, IN SOMERSET COUNTY, HELD ON TUESDAY, NOVEMBER 3, 1892.

Table with columns for Districts, Candidates, and Votes. Includes names like McKinley, Harrison, and various district names.

WE ARE STILL SMILING. The result of the election in Pennsylvania is peculiarly gratifying to Republicans, the majority given to the candidates on the State ticket being far in excess of the estimates of the leaders.

Nearly 60,000 Republican Majority in Pennsylvania. M'KINLEY ELECTED IN OHIO. The Democrats Carry New York—Result in the States.

As the revised returns from the various counties of the State come in the Republican plurality increases, and it is now almost as large as the phenomenal plurality of Mr. Taylor in 1880. All the returns are not official, but they are very nearly accurate.

Major McKinley traversed the length and breadth of the State. His enthusiasm was unflagging. His mastery appeals to the intelligence and patriotism of the people were irresistible.
