What does it require to justify this place, at 10 o'clock Tuesday morning, a city or town in setting up the claim that it is the metropolis of a state or country? Is it not because of the fact that it contains the largest population, the largest aggregation of wealth and property, that the volume of its trade and business exceeds that of all other cities and towns, that it leads in all these particulars and that a'l roads of the entire state or country leads toward its gates? So also on a smaller scale must the town ascounty posses these conditions, to justify its pretentions. We'll how far can Meversdale meet the required conditions over and above what her neighbors possess to justify her claims to being the Metropolis and chief business town of this county?

In the matter of population it is conceded that Moversdale does lead the next largest town by perhaps a hundred souls. This alone is a very slender claim and unless it be sustained by others of those named it will not hold. We will therefore examine further into the merits of her claims.

The mercantile appraiser's list for the current year, just published, reveals the fact that Meyersdale has twenty-three business houses on the list that pay a mercantile license. Now, as there are a great ma-, for one, can testify to the truth of this Scep snow. Well do I remember the year of Pittsburgh, Ryan, of Shamokin, and Starr, 1843. I was then a boy of lifteen years, of Erie, to make the investigation. Mr. Scott driving one of my father's teams, in company with several farmers, sledding ore some three miles to Rockingham Furnace, which | ready to conduct the inquiry in a day or so. my father then owned and was carrying on at that time, and hauling with sleds until after the middle of April. This furnace was near the mountains, in Shade township, merset county, where the snow lasts longor than it does in the valleys. Mr. Smith is correct. Some farmers had sugar camps in that part of Shade, and, as the season was getting late, they, tapped but a few trees around the houses, and at that time made roughs from a block of wood about two feet long, and hollowed out with an ax to catch the sap of the trees. After the snow had melted away, the farmers, to their surprise at the depth of snow, found they had tapped their trees over four feet from the ground. SAMUEL CUSTER.
