Senator Quay won his Legion of Honor medal for bravery at the battle of Fredericksburg. He was colonel of the One Hundred and Thirty-fourth Pennsylvania volunteers, and after some severe service his health failed. It had spray of goldenrod to tack in the brown never been robust, and a surgeon told treeses; better an old-fashioned woolng him be must go home to recuperate or Finding himself physically unable to pursue his duties Colonel Quay sent in his resignation. It was accepted a day or two before the battle of Fredericks-burg. But it then had become clear that the great engagement soon to be fought would be a bitter one. It was believed that it was to be one of the critical battles of the rebellion. Colonel bulldog, not to guard his pleasant quarters at the Flatbush agency, but to give to lead his old command, but as his rehis Indian wards a new ambject for study signation had been accepted, this request was refused. The best answers to these misstatements come from prominent manufacturers and business men nent manufacturers and business men of Allegheny county, some of whom have not been alined with Senator Quay's friends in the Republican party, though all staunch Republicans. They refute and completely explode the charges of absenteersm, and show what great service was rendered by Senator Quay in so shaping the tariff legislation as to make the McKinley bill give anythe protection. the McKinley bill give ample protection to Pennsylvania's industries.

A WIDOW'S BLESSING.

She Deeply Appreciated Kindly Interest in Her Little Boy. In 1888 there was a little page at Washington, a very bright boy, who attended upon Senator Quay, says the Philadelphia News. His name was George H. Mann. When the senator went to the Chicago convention, the lad was taken along as one of the party. He was exceedingly useful, gathering all kinds of political information, always accurate, cheerful and respectful, Senator Quay became quite attached to the boy. In the memorable presidential remuseion of 1888 when Senator Quay campaign of 1888, when Senator Quay Grand Opera with voice unimpaired. A Charge That Dalzell Is Only a Stool Pigeon After All.

There are many who have been curious to account for certain support given to Dalzell in his senatorial aspirations, or rather the assaults on Senator Quay that have been taken as an indersement of the Pittsburg congressman. The editor of the Mifflintown Sentinel thinks he has an explanation.

"The Philadelphia Press," says the sditor of The Sentinel," has a dark horse in the political bushes, to trot out by and by, for the United States senate, and that is the reason it is hammering at Senator Quay. The Press wears a collar, and is barking for the collar. The owner of the collar is the owner of This has led the political writer of remark: "The intimation that Dalzell is ily a stool pigeon to entrap innocent birds to become the prey of some marks-men now hiding under the cover of the woods at least furnishes a possible explanation of his candidacy. It has been frequently asserted before that Calvin Wells, the Pittsburg owner of the Philadelphia Press, was desirous of ob-taining a sent in the United States

"If Dalzell is only a skirmisher to draw the fire for Wells' benefit it would explain some things that have long been a minor mystery to Pennsylvania Repub-licans. Calvin Wells figured at a Dalzell extension circle at Pittsburg the other day, and perhaps it was this show-ing of his hand which led the Mifflintown Sentinel to think that it is Calvin Wells and not John Dalzell, who hopes to be Senator Quay's successor."

Dalzell "a Rainbow Chaser." The Hon. John Dalzell, who wants to succeed Mr. Quay in the United States senate, is a confident gentleman who evidently has the gift of discerning gor-geous rainbows in the political heav-ens. It is true, the anti-Quay folks are making a brave fight, but there is more newspaper talk about it than real actual work and results, and it is much to be feared that those grave and pertentous resolutions denunciatory of Quay, that have come from several counties reances of a few individual Republicans than they are the protests of large and tative gatherings of the faithful. - York Guzette Saved the McKinley Bill.

Senator Quay saved the McKinley bill by formulating a plan to stop the everlasting talk in the senate, where there is no rule for calling the previous question. The bill had passed the House, but the Democrats meant to de-teat it in the senate by a series of long speeches. By an arrangement that postponed the consideration of the Force bill, Senator Quay got a vote on the McKinley bill. This explanation is made necessary now for obvious reasons.
