Old or New Meadows.

Some old meadows are better than some new meadows close by, while others are not so good. Old meadows on well drained land that has been regularly top dressed, moved at the right time and otherwise properly cared for, will yield hay of a more uniform character and quality than most new meadows. But old meadows, or lands that have not been drained or top dressed, on which the grass has been allowed to ripen seed before being mown, or has been heavily pastured, will not yield as large crops nor will the hay be as good as might have been grown from new seeding.
