There is now a well-established fact that when a blood disease, medical men are generally prescribing Ayer's Sarsaparilla as the most loathsome complaint, and result, in nearly every instance, proves to wisdom of their advice.

Good roads cannot be built for nothing, but can be maintained without intelligent supervision, but whatever they have been constructed they soon pay for themselves in the saving in money, putting two or three dollars in the farmer's pocket for everydime they take to market.

At Shrewsburg Wednesday a sensation was created at the Lutheran Conference when Rev. J. A. Board charging G. A. Fiergan, of Shrewsville, with drunkenness and of being guilty of other acts unbecoming a minister. Rev. Fiergan is of middle age, an eloquent preacher, socially popular and always poured "the boys" in the locality where he was stationed.

The Johnstown Relief Commission has handed up its great work. It has rendered its last and final account of a stewardship which covered the disbursement of nearly $3,000,000, and has passed into history, where it will ever hold a unique and treasured place among the famous charities of the American people. It was a grand trust, and its being by an emergency in some respect unparalleled in human history, it was wonderfully responded to the needs of its victims.

Ad. Fisher's liquor license for the Eagle hotel, Huntingdon county, was finally granted Wednesday. The petitioner's original application was refused and a rehearing granted April 4th. He expressed a willingness to submit to a criminal trial on charges of selling liquor to minors and to those of known intemperate habits, and allow a jury's verdict to determine his case. The case was pushed by the Grand Jury, and Fisher not called for trial. Under the circumstances the Court was compelled to continue the license. Temperance people are disgust.

The Washington Observer says: "Geo. Bishop of this place had his hair cut on Monday. This head of hair has a history, during the presidential campaign of 1888 Bishop, who is a Democrat made a bet with a Republican on the result of the election, Bishop betting that Cleveland would be elected, agreeing if he was not that he would let his hair grow for two years. Cleveland was defeated Mackey carried out his part of the agreement. He not only let his hair grow for two years, but let it grow for nearly three years. During that time he had a severe attack of fever, during which the doctor ordered his hair to be cut, but Mackey refused to have it done. During the three years and a half his hair grew over a foot in length."

Judge Arnold, of Philadelphia, in a case before him on Friday last gave a concise outline of the rights of a man to his house. The Judge said that the common law principle that "a man's house is his castle" had been the subject of poetical and oratorical flourishes, but he quoted a number of decisions of the supreme court which reduced the principle of the right of a man to make a castle of his house only to occasions when the Sheriff's officer came to serve upon the householder a paper under which to seize his person or a writ under which to seize goods to sell for debt. Judge Arnold said the Sheriff could not forcibly break into a house to serve these writs, but that this law did not apply to the execution of a writ in replevein where the Sheriff ought to seize goods belonging to another person, and especially when the goods were necessarie to the writ. On such occasions the Sheriff could use the force necessary to carry these goods which were in the householder's premises but which belonged to a person outside of his family.

From present indications this years fruit crop in Somerset county will be a large one, although it is unreasonable to expect it to be as abundant as last season, when thousands of bushels of apples and cherries were permitted to rot on the trees. The frosts have done no damage up to this time.

A novel sight was presented on the streets of this place Friday, when a portable engine drawn by a pair of oxen and a pair of horses passed through. The oxen were hitched to the pole of the vehicle and the ease with which they walked off with their heavy load was surprising to witness.

It is reported that "General Seigle" Miller's attorneys are prepared to go to trial at next week's term of court, and that they will not ask for a delay on account of the absence of his accomplice, "Bill" Pritts, in the murder of Jonathan Hochstetler. The same authority says that Miller's defense will be insanity.

A loafer giving the name of Charles Best who had been hanging around the Park Hotel for several days last week, helped himself to $2 in change from the till behind the bar, during the temporary absence of the clerk. He was detected in the theft and when confronted by landlord Vanear a half-hour later refunded $1.50.

It is reported that three horses belonging to a farmer of Brothersvalley township were recently shot by an officer of the State Board of Agriculture. The animals were suffering with glanders. The owner of the horses will be re-imbursed for his loss by the State authorities in accordance with an act of Assembly providing for such emergencies.

The most violent wind storm of the season swept over this place about two o'clock Sunday afternoon. It broke a number of window glass in different houses throughout the town, tore up several trees and twisted limbs from a great number of others. In the township it did great damage to fences and trees. The storm blew up very suddenly and only lasted a few minutes.

The town council are still laboring with the electric light question and it seems are unable to see their way clear to appropriate a sum of from $600 to $800 annually for having the streets of the borough lighted by electricity. The delay on the part of the council is proving rather irksome to the Electric Light Company, who have entered into contracts with a large number of private consumers, have purchased a lot on which to erect there power house and have entered into a contract for the necessary machinery. There is nothing to be gained by delaying the matter. Let the council say finally how much they can set aside from the borough funds annually for street lighting purposes and then let the Electric Light company go ahead with there plant.

A committee of the Johnstown Y. M. C. A., have completed arrangements for their annual excursion, which this year will come off on June 21st, and will be to Deer Park, Md. The distance from Johnstown is two hundred and eighty-four miles and the round trip fare will be $2.00. It is probable that an invitation to join the excursionists will be extended to the young people of this place, as has been done on several previous occasions.

The Philadelphia Ledger quotes the Reading officials as saying that the trafic arrangements just concluded with the Beech Creek and Rochester & Pittsburgh roads includes the extension of the Beech Creek to Pittsburgh. It will have the effect of proving that the attempt to choke off competition by the South Penn deal was futile and be additional evidence that the latter corporation is dead as a door nail.

The Pittsburgh Times of Monday prints a choice "fake," imposed upon it by a reporter who had just had "an interesting chat" with Superintendent Holbrook of the B. & O. It relates to a section gang employed near Sand Patch, in this county, which is equipped with "a physician, a coroner and a preacher, always at hand to attend the sad duties that may confront them." The "fake" isn't a bad one, even though it is entirely devoid of truth.

A. A. Rogers, Esq., a well known Photographer who was here two years ago is again in town and has taken full charge of the Wellfley Photograph Gallery. Mr. Rogers is without doubt the most expert man in his business that has ever visited Somerset. Such of our people as desire to secure strictly first-class photographs, photographs that have real artistic merit, will do well to give him a call at the gallery on Main Cross St., opposite the Post Office.

Sunday's storm played havoc in the south of the county. Several barnes were unroofed in the vicinity of Confluence, but the power of the wind was best shown at Laurel Hill creek. The creek is spanned by a large new covered bridge bridge about 40 rods above the confluence of the three streams. The wind lifted the bridge as if it had been a straw, raised it up in the air, turned it completely around, and then dashed it to pieces on the bank. The bridge was carried easily eighty feet from its abutments and is a total wreck. It was a Howe truss bridge and was built by the county commissioners in 1878 at a cost of $9,950.

George Mostoller and wife met with an ugly accident Saturday afternoon while on their way from their home in Stonycreek township to Somerset. A pig feeding in the road in front of a farm house took fright at something as they drove by and ran squealing under the horse. The horse, a spirited young animal, took fright and ran away, breaking the buggy and kicking Mr. Mostoller on the leg. Had it not been that the horse broke away from the buggy the result might have been more serious. This should serve as a warning to persons who permit their hogs to run at large on the public highways in violation of law.

Charles Hyatt was run over by a freight train and fatally crushed Saturday evening, 7th inst. He died in three hours after the accident. Hyatt was a watchman at Indian Creek. After staying at his watch box the required number of hours he started to his home near Ohiopyle. It was his custom to ride from Indian Creek to Ohiopyle, but when he attempted to board No. 74 Saturday evening his foot slipped and he fell under the moving train. Both his legs were almost completely severed from his body. He was carried to Ohiopyle Saturday evening and Dr. Brady was summoned, but Hyatt had passed beyond the help of medical skill. After three hours of excruciating pain he died from the loss of blood.

His remains were interred at Drakestown, Monday afternoon.

Major. Wm. M. Schrock came in possession of a valuable compass one day last week. It was made in this town probably 100 years ago by Lewis Michael. The workmanship on it is of a superior quality and is as fine as on those made to-day by skilled mechanics with the aid of the most improved machinery. Mr. Schrock purchased the compass from Mrs. John Witt, whose husband was a well-known civil engineer in his day and generation.

L. C. Colborn, Esq., also owns a compass made by Michael. A few years ago he sent it to New York to have it repaired, when the firm to whom it was sent pronounced it one of the best instruments they had ever seen. Messrs. Schrock and Colborn believe that they have the only two compasses made by Michael now in existence.

In last week's HERALD appeared a notice of the mysterious poisoning of Edward Denner at Johnstown. The victim is still lying seriously ill at the Memorial Hospital in that place. Denner is a son of the late George Denner of Somerset township, and is about 22 years of age. He had been boarding at the home of George Trent in Johnstown, and he was found by Mrs. Trent lying unconscious on the kitchen floor. To a physician he stated that he had been down town the night before and had drank a little beer which he said had been poisoned.

When found Denner was in great pain, which the doctor partially allayed and says he found the throat and mouth in a terrible condition from the effects of some unknown poison. The tongue was swollen to twice its normal size, and from appearances the same condition of things existed in his throat and intestines. Though Denner is unable to talk owing to his swollen tongue, he has acknowledged in reply to questions that he believes he was poisoned by an enemy. Who that enemy is or what is the cause of the ill feeling he refuses to state.

Christiana Blough of Hooversville passed away from this world on the 6th, and was buried at Fry's Church, in Conemaugh township on Sunday, 8th,

Mrs. Blough will be remembered very well by the teamsters and stage drivers who, during the war and after, had occasion to drive the old plank road between Somerset and Johnstown, as she for a number of years kept what was known as the "Half-way House." She was born and lived in the north end of Somerset County all her life. She was born in 1801 and was eight-seven years five month and four days old. She was the mother of ten children, six of whom survive her. The oldest—Elizabeth—lives with her son in-law near Hooversville.

Mrs. Blough has been a consistent member of the Brethren or Dunkard Church for over fifty years and was always very strict in attending to her church duties. Since her husband's death, some thirty years ago, she has managed her own financial affairs, keeping the farm and all the property in her own name up to within a year of her death.

The B. & O. will make a display at the World's Fair worthy of that corporation. Maj. J. G. Pangborn will have charge. One of the leading features will be a historical exhibit of the telegraph. The Baltimore & Ohio will reproduce here the first Morse telegraphic outfit. That first line, laid in 1843 between Baltimore and Washington, was placed during the first few miles under ground. A test was then made, but owing to deficient insulation, the line failed to transmit messages. Then the underground wire was taken up and the whole was strung along on poles.

The most peculiar thing about this early underground telegraph was the way in which the wire was buried. The cable, a plain strand of iron, was wound on a reel attached to the hind end of a plow. As the plow advanced, drawn by sixteen sturdy oxen, the wire was paid out behind. A second plow followed, turning a furrow that covered the wire. This outfit, oxen and all, is what the B. & O. will reproduce. The oxen will be stuffed and mounted giants from Armour's South Chicago yards.

Another feature of this road's exhibit in the electricity building will be a group of wax figures of famous electricians now dead.

"Luck Follows Labor."

Closing Exercises of the Borough Public Schools.

A CLASS OF TEN GRADUATED.

CLASS ROLL.

Mildred M. Bills, Iga M. Casebeer, Bertha J. Cromwell, Ellen S. Fike, Clara E. Shoemaker, Nellie H. Tranp, Daisy M. Vogel, George W. Knepper, H. Milton Picking, Jacob V. Schrock.

No better illustration could be offered to demonstrate the place the public schools of this borough hold in the hearts of our people than the attendance at the graduating exercises at the Somerset Opera House, Friday evening, when every seat was occupied and the aisles were crowded with interested spectators. No such an audience ever assembles in Somerset excepting at a teachers' institute or some other public school entertainment.

The Opera House on this occasion presented the prettiest scene in the history of that house. Fragrant spring flowers and plants of foliage were banked at the sides of the stage, while great masses of flimsy white and apple-green fabric (the class colors) were caught up in graceful loops between the chandeliers and above the front of the stage. When the curtain went up and the sparkling, laughing faces of the sweet girl graduates, robed in white, and the bright manly countenances of their boy companions were revealed, all seated in a semi-circle, there was a long continued outburst of applause. The scene was indeed a pretty one.

The exercises were opened by Rev. Harkey, of the Lutheran church, who offered a feeling prayer in behalf of the graduating class and the schools. When he had finished his invocation Master H. Milton Picking, president of the class of 1892, advanced to the front of the stage and delivered an address on the part of the graduates. He spoke with clearness and freedom, and at the conclusion of his remarks was roundly applauded.

The Secretary, Miss Ellen S. Fike, called the roll before reading the minutes of the class for the term. It remained for this young lady to satisfy the curiosity of the audience who all evening had been wondering how the class motto: "Luck Follows Labor," displayed in large letters on a banner swinging above the centre of the stage, had been arrived at. The class was originally composed of 13 members, and to avoid the popular superstition in regard to that unlucky number each young lady member of the class agreed to wear a four-leaf clover in the heel of her shoe, and as this action is supposed to be invariably followed by good fortune, the motto, "Luck Follows Labor," was unanimously chosen.

The "Treasurer's Report" was read by the custodian of the class funds, Miss Iga M. Casebeer, and it abounded with many happy hits at the expense of the board of directors, teachers and members of the graduating class.

"I am a Man," was the subject of Master Jacob V. Schrock's oration. It was a capital effort and left no doubt in the minds of his hearers that if the lines he laid down are adhered to, the generation which Master Schrock represents will be one of high character and will be ever ready to fight for the right at all times and under all circumstances.

Miss Nellie H. Tranp recited "Child's Dream of a Star," and won the hearty plaudits of the large audience by her splendid rendition of that very touching little poem.

"The Girl of the Story Book," was the subject of a well written and well read essay by Miss Bertha J. Cromwell. She contrasted the fluffy-puffy over dressed and unhappy girl of the novel of the day with her intelligent, industrious, neatly attired, though common place sister, and the former was made to suffer very justly by the comparison.

"The Light of the East," was the subject of a carefully prepared oration by Master George Knepper. It was well delivered.

"The Day of Judgment," a story of Jack and Jill and how they were puzzled over a story they had read concerning the appearance of a comet, and their miraculous escape from death, was reitted in excellent style by Miss Clara E. Shoemaker.

Miss Daisy Vogel, the "Class Grumbler," followed Miss Shoemaker. She found good-natured fault with all most every thing connected with her school days. Her talk made it manifest, however, that if she had any fault to find with her text books it is only because she has mastered them.

Miss Mildred Bills' essay, "Finding Your Place," contained a great deal of wholesome thought and was admirably read.

M. J. Pritts, Esq., presented the diplomas to the graduates on behalf of the Board of School Directors, and Elder C. W. Granger, of the Disciples' church dismissed the audience with the benediction.

The programme was interspersed with music furnished by the Lutheran Church Choir Orchestra. This was their first public appearance and they made a very favorable impression.

The performances throughout will not suffer by comparison with those of former graduating classes of our schools, and principal E. E. Pritts and his efficient chore of assistants have just reasons for feeling proud of the work they have accomplished and of the class they have graduated.

CLOSING EXERCISES.

The closing exercises of the Borough Schools were held in the Opera house Thursday afternoon and attracted a full house. Recitations were delivered by Chauncy Fisher, Alice Coffroth and Bertha Cook. Nannie Sanner and Bertha Shaffer sang a duet and the entertainment closed with a dialogue in which John Beerits, John Colborn, George Haffley, Edmund Kooser, Howard Cromwell, Fiesie Knepper, Nannie Sanner, Bertha Grove and Winnie Knepper, took part.

All of the young ladies and gentlemen acquitted themselves in a most creditable manner.

A Great Clothing House.

Yes, such is the clothing emporium of Thomas, Karr and Ogilvie, Main street, Johnstown, Pa. In the immense stock they carry, comprising all the latest and most fashionable styles in suits, hats, men's neckties, underwear, etc., their store justly merits the distinction of great. It is really great in all that pertains to a first class business house. By their business grit, push and success they may well be called the Johnstown Hustlers. The various lines of goods now on hand, and others of which they are in daily receipt, enable them to defy competition. Adhering strictly to the principle of small profits and quick sales, their store is the recognized leading clothing house of Johnstown. See their advertisement in another column of this paper.

Lack of Time

Our unusual trade, especially in Millinery, this spring, has so entirely engrossed us that we had not even time to inquire whether our business friends and neighbors had been combining against us. We would be fair to accuse them of such a thing. With our hands so full, even if it were becoming in ladies, we have no time and no inclination to "Pick." We envy no one's success, but invite our friends to call and see our almost endless stock of Millinery, Notions, Laces, Trimings, Gloves, Hose, Jewelry etc., etc., and if you can do better elsewhere, go there and be happy.

Repectfully,
MRS. TRENWELL & CO.

Crushed Under the Wheels.

Tuesday morning about 9:15 o'clock young Thomas Morgan (or "Blinky," as he was familiarly known) met with a frightful death. He was employed in the colliery of his father, Mr. B. D. Morgan, on Grassy Run-Together father and son started for the mines in the early morning, with no thought of impending trouble. An hour later the bright young life was crushed out, and the stricken father returned to his desolate home with the inanimate body of his cherished son.

Mr. Morgan and his son rode to their work on the early train. The engine was pushing a train of forty empties and the coach. Mr. Morgan was in the coach, while young Thomas was on the forward gondola. At a point between Keystone Mines and Red Bridge station the train slowed up, and it was there the accident occurred.

When brakeman Altmiller, who was the sole witness of the tragedy, gave the signal to go ahead, "Tommy" was thrown from the car upon the track by the concussion. The entire train of forty coal cars, with the engine and passenger coach, passed over the unfortunate young man, literally severing his body in two at the abdomen. The left arm was also severed. He was also cut and bruised about the face and head. The remains were taken to Reich's undertaking rooms where they received the necessary preparation for burial.

Young Morgan will be sadly missed, not only in his parents' home, but among his youthful playmates, with whom he was a general favorite. He was 17 years of age, amiable in disposition, and as he lay in the quietude of death his features were as peaceful as an infant's. The bereaved family have the deep sympathy of the community in their sad affliction.—Meyersdale Register.

Patern Hats

At reasonable prices. Come and see them

MRS. A. E. UHL.

Remember.

By request of Deacon Jones' friends he will deliver another of his famous Lectures entitled "The Deacon's Trip Around the World," on Tuesday evening, May 24th, in the United Brethren church in Somerset, Pa. The Deacon has a well equipped ship that he built 34 years ago from his own knowledge and he will exhibit it in his lecture, where you can get a sight at it. It is a full rigged ship and he will explain all its workings. It will be a rare curiosity to people who never saw a ship.

Proceeds to go to the benefit of the church. Admission 15 cents. Children 10 cents.

Beauties of Spring.

Our millinery opening occurred on Thursday, Friday and Saturday of last week, but there was such a rush for Patern Hats that our stock was exhausted in 12 hours and we had to telegraph for more. Come and see them, or if you have not time you will see one on the head of nearly every well dressed lady in Somerset that was selected last week.

MRS. TRENWELL & Co.

Important to Sugar Producers.

All sugar propucers who wish to take out license for next season will have to write to H. J. Mitchell, Acting Col., Pittsburgh, Pa., for the necessary papers and instructions. It will be to the interest of every producer to attend to this matter at once, as the application must be in before the 1st of July, 1892.

The application must be filled up and sworn to before the Clerk of Court, Notary Public, or Justice of the Peace. The Deputies are all discharged. Now let every producer in the county see to it that he gets license for the coming season.

Send at once for your papers and fill them and return to the Collector at Pittsburgh.

Worth Thinking About.

When Dry Goods merchants advise you not to come to my Store for Millinery Goods they are not at all concerned whether you buy Millinery Goods cheap and fashionable or not, but they are anxious on their own account for fear you will see how cheap I am selling Dry Goods. The same applies to Millinery Houses when they advise you not to come to my Store to buy Dry Goods. They try to make you believe that they are very much interested in your welfare. The truth is they are afraid you will find out that you can do better in their lines with me than with them. It is a Combination Scheme.

MRS. A. E. UHL.

MEMORIAL DAY.

Order of Department Commander.

HEADQUARTERS DEP'T OF PA., G. A. R.,
No. 1025 ARCH STREET,
PHILADELPHIA, May 4, 1892.

General Orders No. 7.

I. Once more the returning spring, with its opening flowers, resurrects the memory of our fallen Comrades, and reminds us of the approach of our sacred Memorial Day. We see them as they fell when, more than a quarter of a century ago, the flood-tide of death swept them from our side; we see them scattered along our march of the passing years, some with the dews of death not yet wiped away, and the flowers, still fresh, sprinkled with tears of loved ones. Those of us that remain are but few in comparison with those who sleep beneath the ground that shall echo with our solemn tread. Soon we must commit this sacred duty to other hands; let us do it faithfully while we can. It is timely and profitable we should once again repair to the graves of our fallen Comrades, and let the memory of their heroic deeds baptize us afresh with loyalty to their heroism and devotion to their country.

Need I urge upon you that each step and action on that day be so fraught with regard for the occasion and reverence for the departed comrades that we shall command the respect and commendation of every citizen throughout the Nation?

I. t us reverently and tenderly garland each nature's purest and most fragrant gift each mound where sleeps our comrade, and affectionately think of the unknown and unmarked graves of our patriot brothers, remembering that in this solemn mission we have the sympathy and prayers of the widow and orphan, and the blessing of a grateful Republic.

II. Arrangements will be made by the Posts in this Department for the observance of Memorial Day, Monday, May 30, 1892. Comrades are enjoined to see that this sacred duty is performed in a solemn and reverent manner.

May Court.

A LARGE NUMBER OF CRIMINALS WILL BE PLACED ON TRIAL.

Two Murder Cases Head the List.

Next week's term of Court promises to be one of the most interesting in the history of the county. Criminals of all grades will be brought before the bar of justice, and it is not at all improbable that a "neck-tie party" and a "hanging bee" will result. Over 100 jurors have been summoned to be in attendance upon the Court and three or four hundred witnesses have been subpoened, more than 100 of whom are expected to testify in the case against "General Seigle" Miller.

The indications are that the crowd in attendance throughout the week will be as large as on the occasion of the Nicely brother's trial.
