General E. C. Williams, of Chapman township, Snyder county, Pa. He is also a veteran of the Mexican war, and helped suppress the Philadelphia riots in 1844. At the utbreak of the Mexican war Williams raised a company called the Cameron Guards, and presented the roll to Governor Shank who refused to accept it, stating that It was not a regularly organised body, but after ome persuasion by others the company was accepted and marched to the front. They set sall on a vessel for Lobos Island,

Gulf of Mexico. After about forty days voyage they arrived, but were not permitted to go ashore on account of many cases of small pox. As soon as these were sufficiently recovered the company began its march to ward the City of Mexico. At Chapultopee General E. C. Williams and Captain Montcomery, with brave determination, raised the first American flag on the citadel and kept it flying there until General Scott rode | John up the causeway. Others had tried to claim this distinction, but General Williams holds the proof that the honor belongs to him.

He served through the entire war.
