Election at Somerset.

Yesterday was an ideal election day and no elector can offer the state of the weather as an excuse for not voting. A heavy rain Monday evening kept the voters up until late in the night when the rain ceased and the sun came up warm and shining

Tuesday morning and continued to shine throughout the day. Early in the morning voters began coming to town from all over the township and the streets were crowded. A noticeable feature about the election was the entire absence of street electioneering, huzzabanding and boasting and coaxing them to vote. It is not necessary to note this class of voters to the polls under the new method of voting, because as a rule they are the voters who found it necessary to ask for assistance in making up their ballots, and instead of running after them as heretofore many of them were compelled to run after the followers who were the method of voting, be-
